147 acres for $2.2 million

Archdiocese offers to sell land to Oakton for campus

by KATHERINE BOYCE

The Chicago Catholic Archdiocese has offered to sell 147 acres to Oakton Community College for a permanent campus at a cost of about $2.2 million.

John Philbin, executive director of Chicago Catholic Cemeteries, said Wednesday the Archdiocese will sell the property, located along the Des Plaines River between Golf and Central roads, for $15,000 an acre. Philbin said the price matches appraisals made on the property for Oakton.

Paul Gilson, chairman of the site and facilities committee of the Oakton Board of Trustees, said the offer will probably come before the board at its meeting Tuesday night.

OAKTON ALSO IS negotiating for 23 acres of land adjoining the archdiocese property. The 23-acre portion is owned by the Sisters of the Holy Family, a Catholic Order which operates Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines. Gilson said Oakton has conducted separate negotiations with the Sisters of the Holy Family and no agreement on price has been reached.

Philbin said the paperwork involved in selling the Archdiocese land to Oakton has just begun. Negotiations between Philbin and Neil King, real estate consultant for Oakton, have been going on for several months. Wednesday was the first time either side has announced a price and according to Philbin, "The thing is wrapped up for all practical purposes."

Oakton officials hope to complete a master plan for the 170-acre campus by November this year. Architects hope to begin construction next spring and open the buildings by the fall of 1977. Oakton has already received state approval of the site. The state pays up to 75 per cent of the cost of community college construction and the remainder comes from local taxes.

OAKTON HAS BEEN operating out of leased facilities at 7900 N. Nagle Ave., Morton Grove, since it opened in 1970.

The college has failed in two attempts to acquire a permanent campus since then. It attempted to purchase Maryhill Cemetery in Niles from the Chicago Catholic Archdiocese in 1971 but the Archdiocese refused to sell and the college dropped the plan after several citizens from the area voiced opposition to the campus.

Oakton also dropped plans to purchase a campus along Beckwith Road in Morton Grove in 1972 when residents of the area said they did not want the college located there.

Pavilion will affect wind currents, yacht club says

by JOHN MAES

Des Plaines Yacht Club officials have voiced opposition to current plans of the city's Military Commemorative Committee to build a memorial pavilion at Lake Opeka.

Representatives of the group vocalized their beliefs Tuesday night to Des Plaines park officials at the park board's monthly meeting.

Kenneth Mowbray of Des Plaines, a spokesman for the yachters, told park officials the location and size of the proposed structure would affect the flow of wind currents and impede sailing on the lake at Howard and Lee streets.

Mowbray said he will try to schedule a meeting between the yachter's group and the committee to discuss the problem further.

THE CLUB is not against building the proposed facility but hopes to "influence thinking regarding size," Mowbray told park officials. "Wind turbulence will cause problems in sailing."

The yacht club consists of about 100 city residents who boat frequently on the park district lake.

Mowbray claimed trees being planted around the lake have already resulted in boating difficulty and current plans for the pavilion would, "put another chunk of wood and concrete there to cause us another problem."

PLANS FOR THE project indicated the pavilion will be 25 feet at its highest point. Group representatives mentioned alternatives, however, such as moving the site or building a smaller, unroofed platform with a 2-foot high stage.

Also suggested was a dugout memorial that would allow viewing of events "in the round."

Another yachting club member, James Kremers, who is also president of Des Plaines School Dist. 62 board of education suggested a portable bandshell be built.

Current plans call for construction of a $60,000 pavilion that would be used as a bandshell for concerts, plays and other civic events.

THE COMMITTEE, organized in 1967 to raise funds for the pavilion, received an important financial boost this week from city officials who announced they would contribute $11,000 to $12,000 of federal revenue sharing funds.

The commemorative organization has already raised approximately $30,000 of the cost, most of it in the last year through weekly bingo nights.

The sessions are held each Tuesday night at the Casa Royale, 783 Lee Street, at 7:30 p.m.

Schools revise policy on collective bargaining

by LINDA PUNCH

The East Maine Dist. 63 Board of Education approved a revised policy prohibiting teachers and board members from involving students in collective bargaining disputes.

The policy — approved by the board at Tuesday night's regular meeting — was part of an out-of-court settlement reached on a lawsuit filed by teacher union leaders against Dist. 63 school officials.

Seven officials of the East Maine Education Assn. filed suit against the board in March for allegedly violating their civil rights during and after last fall's contract dispute. The suit was aimed at a board policy prohibiting teachers from wearing buttons referring to negotiations during class hours.

In addition to revising the button policy, the board agreed to remove letters of reprimand from the files of teachers who wore buttons during the contract dispute.

ALTHOUGH THE CASE was dismissed June 27 by U.S. District Court Judge Abraham Lincoln Marovitz, EMEA and school board representatives withheld details of the agreement until a joint statement could be issued. According to the Boundaries may be altered to prevent school overflow

by FRAN SLIMMER

Boundaries for John Jay School in Mount Prospect may be gerrymandered to send some children from new and planned apartment complexes to Des Plaines schools.

A boundary change is the most feasible solution to having from 100 to 200 new students attend already overcrowded Jay school, the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 boundary committee decided Tuesday night. The committee eliminated other alternatives, which included buying mobile classrooms, building an addition to Jay, holding split shifts at Jay or busing one grade level to empty space in another school.

The boundary change, proposed by committee secretary Jan Schulz, calls for an estimated 85 children from three apartment complexes along Busse Road to be bused to Brentwood School in Des Plaines. These complexes, none of which are built yet, are Crystal Towers, Forest Cove and Laurel Estates.

MRS. SCHULZ also proposed that the estimated 69 children from a planned townhouse development at Ill. Rte. 58, west of Briarwood, be bused to Robert

Building plan may aid new road link

by STEVE BROWN

Tentative plans to build two new apartment buildings in the River Street and Mill Street area probably will prompt Des Plaines officials to expedite plans for a new road to connect both streets.

The city is reviewing plans by Harmony Builders for a six-story condominium on a tract of land at the east end of Mill Street on property owned by Barney Franzen.

A portion of the land has been considered an optional site for a connector road between Mill and River streets. The city has been planning the connector for some time as a part of the proposed River Road overpass at Miner Street to ease traffic congestion in the area.

THE FOREST PRESERVE District recently refused to allow the city to use its land for the connector road and the city is now forced to seek an alternate route over private property. In addition to the plans for the apartment buildings on the Franzen property, another housing development is being proposed on land owned by Robert Dooley and several other persons in the area.

Development of that land could mean demolition or removal of several historic buildings on the property. Local residents and members of the Des Plaines Historical Society have made several unsuccessful efforts to relocate or take over the Socrates-Rand Mill and the former home of Dr. Clarence Earle. Both structures are believed to be more than 100 years old.

DEVELOPERS OF THE proposed projects have met with city officials to discuss their plans. But plans for the condominium on the Dooley property, which could be a 12-story building, are in the very formative stages at this time.

Mayor Herbert H. Behrel said Wednesday he did not think the city would issue building permits for any additional development in the area until some decision on the connector road is finalized.

If the proposed overpass is built, Mill Street traffic would not be able to exit onto River Road. The city is planning the connector road so that traffic from Mill Street can travel to River Street and then onto River Road. Residents in the area have objected to the proposed River Road overpass claiming it would lower their property values and cause traffic congestion.

Tree spray project to begin in township

Elk Grove Township officials will have more than 500 trees sprayed in the Waycinden Park area to help combat cottony maple scale disease.

Townshhip Highway Comr. Alfred C. Steil said Colonial Tree Care Co., Arlington Heights, will spray the trees in the area with malathion to help control the tree disease. The project will begin immediately.

Cottony maple scale infecting trees throughout area

by KAREN BLECHA

Cottony maple scale, an insect that feeds on leaf tissue, has infected trees throughout the Northwest suburbs in one of the worst attacks by the insect in years.

The insect, which usually feeds on silver and red maples, has been seen on all types of trees in the area, public works crews said. Roscoe Randall, entomologist for the University of Illinois, said this year's cottony maple scale is the worst he has seen in nine years.

While the scale rarely kills trees, it does kill branches, libs and twigs, said Jim Fizzell, horticulturist for the University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service. Besides maples, honey locusts are also susceptible, he said.

"It's been building up for three or four years now and it's pretty bad," he said. "I can't ever recall it being this bad."

MOST REPORTS OF the scale have come from the Chicago area, Randall said. While most of the Northwest suburbs report widespread cases of the insect, Hoffman Estates officials said it has not been too bad there.

"It could be that there are natural predators of the scale out in the area because it is still relatively open," said Fizzell. "There are still a lot of fields out there." He said the scale can be controlled naturally by bacteria and certain insects, including wasps.

Late June and July are the peak season for the scale, he said. The disease is easily recognized by popcorn-like cocoons hanging on tree branches.

DAMAGE DONE by the scale comes when the insect crawls to the leaves and feeds on nutrients essential to the life of the tree. The insect also secretes a substance called honeydew which drips onto branches and foilage of infected trees as well as onto sidewalks and cars below. A sooty mold that sometimes grows in the honeydew causes branches and foliage to appear black. In the fall, after the scales mate, the female crawls back into its cocoon for the winter.

Fizzel said the scale itself does not move from tree to tree, but is often carried on the feet of birds.

Both Fizzell and Bob Towler, superintendent of the Des Plaines Park District and a forester, advise residents not to

Airplane parts do fall off: FAA

"Parts aren't designed to come off but sometimes they do," said Milton S. Washington, a Federal Aviation Administration official, who identified the airliner part that fell Tuesday in Arlington Heights as a "wing flap cover." Washington, an FAA air carrier operations inspector, said Wednesday that United Airlines officials have asked government investigators to turn over the part to them. The one-foot-by-1½-foot aluminum cover fell within 15 yards of two persons making a park survey Tuesday. Washington said United's maintenance will be checked to see if the flap cover was installed properly.

Oakton College may get land

The Chicago Catholic Archdiocese has offered to sell 147 acres to Oakton Community College for a permanent campus for about $2.2 million. The offer for the land, between Golf and Central roads along the Des Plaines River in Maine Township, will be considered at the Oakton board of trustees Tuesday. An archdiocesan official described the sale as "wrapped up for all practical purposes." Oakton has been housed in temporary quarters in Morton Grove since it opened in 1970.

Anti-speed drive may spread

A campaign by Wheeling residents to reduce speed limits along McHenry Road in the village may spread to other communities. Organizers of the Citizens of Old McHenry Road Proposing Slaughter Elimination (CORPSE) have received support from nonresidents along the road and have scheduled a rally for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at 555 McHenry Rd. CORPSE is seeking a speed limit reduction from 55 to 40 m.p.h. and installation of two traffic signals.

Store manager charged in theft

The former assistant manager of the Walgreen's Drug Store at Northpoint Shopping Center in Arlington Heights has been arrested in Las Vegas, Nev., and charged with stealing $15,000 cash from the store. Andrew Kozak, 25, of 3250 N. Keating, Chicago, was nabbed in Las Vegas after Arlington Heights police tailed another man from Chicago to a rendezvous with Kozak in the Nevada city. Police said they recovered more than $15,000 cash from Kozak.

'Rent strikers' face eviction

Residents of five apartments at the Schaumburg Green complex will be evicted by the end of the month because they have withheld rents to protest the lack of air-conditioning, swimming pool facilities and security. "It's like living in a hotel, only they mess things up instead of get them cleaner," said one woman resident, who came home once to find someone had been in her apartment, eaten her groceries and broken her stereo system.

Woman knifed in her home

Two men entered a Buffalo Grove home through an unlocked garage door early Wednesday and attacked and robbed a woman resident. The woman, whom police refused to identify, was dragged from the dining room area of the house about 1:30 a.m. and taken to the garage where she was beaten and knifed. She was reported in good condition later Wednesday at Northwest Community Hospital. A stolen car was later found abandoned near the house.

2,000 homes lose power

A cut electrical cable knocked out power to 2,000 homes Wednesday morning in the area of Golf and Higgins roads. The outage caused cancellation of summer school classes at Hoffman Estates High School. The incident apparently was caused by a contractor who nicked the cable with excavating equipment, according to a Commonwealth Edison Co. spokesman.

IGE reports under wraps

Two reports evaluating the first year of an Individually Guided Education program in School Dist. 96 are being kept under wraps by Supt. William Hitzeman. The self-directed, open-school teaching program was adopted in 1972 by the district, which serves the Buffalo Grove-Long Grove area in Lake County. Hitzeman, who was asked for copies of the reports he promised earlier to release, replied Wednesday that he was on vacation, although he was approached by a reporter after a meeting at Twin Groves School.

County to meet with NEC officials to discuss charges against Dwyer

by WANDALYN RICE

Officials from County School Supt. Richard Martwick's office will meet with Northwest Education Cooperative officials Friday to discuss charges of improper operation of the Dwyer School for emotionally disturbed children.

The two sides agreed to get together in a closed meeting in the NEC administration building after NEC officials refused to attend a meeting Martwick planned Wednesday in his Chicago office.

In a letter to Martwick explaining why NEC officials refused to attend the meeting, NEC attorney Allyn Franke charged that Martwick's handling of the charges against Dwyer indicate "that you have no interest in developing relevant information at the source but rather that your interest is to maximize your political exposure."

IN A LETTER replying to Franke, Martwick called the NEC response "unfortunate," and said the charge that he is seeking political exposure in the investigation is "insulting."

"Had we wanted exposure for political purposes, we long since could have announced publicly the allegations and the fact that we are instituting a probe," Martwick said.

In explaining the change in meeting plans, an official from Martwick's office said, "We're taking the position that it is our job to serve the community and so we will come out there."

Officials in Martwick's office also said that if they are not satisfied with the outcome of Friday's meeting they will hold a public meeting on the charges at Kirk Center in Palatine next Wednesday.

EDITH FREUND, NEC governing board chairman who earlier said she would be glad to meet with Martwick in the Northwest suburbs, said, "I think this (the Friday meeting) is a sensible thing to do at this point to try to get answers." She said she and NEC administrators will attend the Friday meeting.

The charges against Dwyer School have been made by a group of former and present teachers in the program. The teachers have said that the program's clinical director, John Whipple, is unqualified to hold his job, that children are unnecessarily physically punished and that Whipple allows the staff to behave in an "unproffessional" manner.

Richard Martwick

Edith Freund

John Whipple

In addition, officials in Martwick's office have said they are concerned about the validity of claims made by NEC for state school aid for the program, saying there may have been "misinterpretations" of state school aid guidelines.

NEC had responded to the charges earlier in the week by writing to officials of State School Supt. Michael Bakalis's office inviting them to visit the program and inspect NEC records.

IN HIS LETTER to Martwick, Franke said, "The administration of the Northwest Education Cooperative welcomes review procedures. Its programs are outstanding and evaluation is long overdue."

In addition, Franke said that Martwick's letter telling NEC officials to attend the Wednesday meeting "constitutes, in our opinion, an implied threat."

He added, "Such implication is consistent with the attitudes adopted by your office for the past few days. By inference and innuendo your office has referred to 'very serious allegations' in connection with the operation of the Northwest Education Cooperative. However, notwithstanding particular requests that your threats and accusations be specified in writing, your office has refused to make any specific charges."

Franke added that "the most obvious source of information" on the charges is at the NEC administrative headquarters, but that "for reasons best known to your office, none of your staff has seen fit to visit the cooperative to investigate any accusations.

IN HIS LETTER of reply, Martwick said, "It is surprising to me that your clients declined to attend the meeting in this office where there would have been an opportunity to refute the charges made and certainly an opportunity to hear those charges."

Martwick added, "It's unfortunate that you have placed such a high priority on the amenities rather than setting the priorities on getting the facts of the allegations" and added that "what you interpret as an implied threat is our mandate under the school code."

The Dwyer School program includes classes for emotionally disturbed children in elementary and junior high school, with junior high school programs housed last year at Recreation Park in Arlington Heights rather than at Dwyer School.

School districts that send children to Dwyer are Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21, Arlington Heights Dist. 25, Prospect Heights Dist. 23, Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 and Mount Prospect Dist. 57.

Police nab extortionist-killer

MIAMI (UPI) — A bearded extortionist took at least $50,000 from a wealthy industrialist and his wife Wednesday and then slaughtered them with a burst of rifle fire before police trapped him in a jungle-like thicket and overwhelmed him with gas. The suspect, identified as 23-year-old Thomas Knight, was found "burrowed in the mud" by a team of flak-vested sheriff's deputies who swept through the area after it had been fogged with pepper gas. Police said the victims were Sydney Gans, the 64-year-old owner of a local paper company, and his wife, Lillian. They were shot to death in their car, which the suspect abandoned before fleeing into the densely vegetated area in southwest Dade County.

Tough strip mining bill backed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Wednesday concluded initial debate on federal strip mining legislation, opening the way for an anticipated close fight on substituting a coal industry-backed measure for a stronger committee-approved bill. Managers of the bill indicated House action would extend over to next week. The Senate passed its version of the legislation last year. Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., told the House millions of acres of land and 10,000 miles of fishing streams have been destroyed by surface mining. "If we are not wise enough to stop this ravage of our land and streams, then we deserve the contempt of every generation that follows," Udall said.

Reinecke attorneys ask dismissal

Defense attorneys immediately asked Wednesday for dismissal of perjury charges against California Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke after a congressional stenographer gave surprise testimony that the trial evidence included incorrect Senate committee transcripts. Reinecke's lawyer, James E. Cox, promptly called for dismissal. Judge Barrington Parker did not rule immediately but ordered the jury out and sharply criticized government lawyers for failing to catch the mistake.

Anthrax epidemic halted

Animal health officials in Texas and Oklahoma Wednesday said they had isolated and controlled an anthrax epidemic which had threatened to destroy cattle herds in both states and spread across the nation.

Communists attack buses

Communist troops attacked buses on South Vietnam's two most important highways and killed, wounded or kidnaped 10 civilians, military spokesmen said Wednesday. One attack was carried out in daylight when Viet Cong troops opened fire on a bus carrying civilian passengers, killing two and wounding five, on Mekong Delta Highway 4, about 45 miles from Saigon.

Israel seeks $2 billion aid

Israeli leaders told Treasury Secy. William E. Simon Wednesday that Israel needs more than $2 billion in military and economic aid from the United States to ease its postwar financial situation, government officials said. Finance Minister Yehoshua Rabinowitz emphasized Israel's worsening balance of payments deficit in the nine months since the October Middle East war.

Cambodian garrison shelled

Communist gunners shelled a Cambodian garrison at Kompong Seila with captured American-made artillery Wednesday, wounding five persons, field reports said. At the same time, the high command reported that 180 insurgent troops were killed and six captured in heavy fighting south of Oudong, 18 miles northwest of Phnom Penh.

Joint military committee set

Jordan's King Hussein and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat agreed Wednesday to set up a military committee among others to work out joint policies for the Arab stand at the Geneva Middle East peace conference. "A military committee and other committees have been formed to consider all subjects under discussion," Sadat told newsmen. He said details would be announced later in a joint communique.

Turks threaten invasion of Cyprus

From United Press International

Turkey massed troops, tanks, artillery and landing ships on its southern coast Wednesday within 50 miles of Cyprus for a possible invasion of the revolt-torn island to protect the Turkish minority there.

Turkish Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit arrived by air in London and went into urgent consultations with Prime Minister Harold Wilson. Deposed Cypriot President Makarios conferred with Wilson earlier in the day at No. 10 Downing St.

Ecevit told newsmen, "We are after a peaceful solution. We regard the Greek government as the instigators of the intervention against the independent state of Cyprus."

On Cyrpus, the new leaders of the Greek Cypriot majority consolidated control of the island and announced that Nicosia international airport would reopen at 6 a.m. today to all flights. The coup leaders also lifted the curfew for eight daylight hours, and Radio Nicosia announced that "Turkish Cypriots have nothing to fear." All Cypriots were ordered to turn in their guns.

Turkey's parliament was scheduled to go into emergency session Wednesday to vote on authorizing an invasion of Cyprus.

In Athens, U. S. Ambassador Henry J. Tasca told Greek Foreign Minister Constantine Kypraios the United States opposes any violation of Cyprus' sovereignty. The military junta which rules Greece has taken the line that it had nothing to do with the uprising.

In Brussels, the Western allies stepped up the pressure on Greece to roll back the Cyprus coup before the crisis explodes into a war between Greece and Turkey that would shatter the southern flank of the North Atlantic alliance.

BRITISH TROOPS form an honor guard for Archbishop Makarios as the Cypriot leader begins talks with world leaders about the crisis threatening his island nation. Makarios also appealed to the U.N.

Milk: a case of bribery?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Several members of the House Judiciary Committee said testimony Wednesday by former presidential attorney Herbert Kalmbach strengthened suspicions that the administration raised milk price supports in 1971 in exchange for a $2 million campaign pledge.

Both Democratic and Republican members said Kalmbach, Nixon's former personal attorney and fund-raiser, drew a strong link between the milk producers' campaign pledge and the increase in federal price supports for dairy products.

"We're beginning to establish a case of bribery," Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, N.Y., said after Kalmbach's testimony in closed session. Rep. Trent Lott, R-Miss., who would not characterize the testimony, added, "I'd just as soon he hadn't said some of the things he said."

But none of the members said that Kalmbach implicated Nixon in the alleged scheme. Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill., said Kalmbach did not even mention the President's name and he doubted the committee would vote an article of impeachment on the matter.

Kalmbach was the final witness before the committee head rebuttal arguments from Nixon's Watergate attorney, James D. St. Clair. Special Committee Counsel John M. Doar said he planned to offer a number of alternative articles of impeachment to the members Friday along with evidence supporting them. A final committee vote was expected next week.

Several members said Kalmbach testified that H. R. Haldeman, Nixon's former chief of staff, authorized him to meet with a lawyer for the Associated Milk Producers, Inc., in 1969 to accept a $100,000 contribution.

Kalmbach testified he did so, according to Holtzman, and was told by the lawyer, Milton P. Semer, that the AMPI had a "request or demand, whichever way you want to put it, for price support increases."

Other members said the AMPI had two other requests — for Nixon to speak before their banquet and for a personal greeting by Nixon in his Oval Office. All three requests were realized within the next year.

A LONDON BOBBY comforts a Swiss woman tourist and her two children after a bomb exploded without warning in the famous Tower of London. Some 31 persons were injured, many of them children.

Bomb rips famed Tower of London

LONDON (UPI) — A bomb, possibly planted by IRA terrorists, exploded in the 900-year-old Tower of London Wednesday, hurling broken glass and masonry into crowds of children and their parents jamming the city's most popular tourist sight.

At least 33 persons — more than half of them children — were injured in the explosion, several of them in critical condition with crushed arms and legs. Detectives sifting through the debris found the severed foot of a small child.

Police said most of the injured were German and Danish.

The explosion sent hundreds of American and other foreign tourists fleeing from the moated stone fortress. A few were crying but there was no panic.

The bomb, the second to explode without warning in London Wednesday, might have been the work of the Irish Republican Army, police said, but there was no proof. Polise said the bombings had some of the hallmarks of othr IRA attacks that have killed 12 persons and wounded 115 others in England since December.

Oops! Computer bureaucrats lose $30 million

NEW YORK (UPI) — Computerized New York City bureaucrats, who in the past week paid $7.5 million in excess welfare checks and lost $5.4 million in bonds, reported Wednesday they had found another $30 million bookkeeping error and a $35.5 million bungle.

"We've had better weeks, fiscally speaking," one budget bureau official said.

The audits and other studies of the city comptroller's office for the period during which Abraham Beame occupied it before becoming mayor Jan. 1, found a pattern of poor security, lax controls and bookkeeping systems which one auditor described as "something out of Dickens."

John Lennon has 60 days to leave U.S.

"Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to breathe free, the wretched refuse of your teeming shore . . . but please take back John Lennon." The most controversial of the ex-Beatles has been invited to leave the United States, with the Board of Immigration Appeals — in a decision made July 10 and announced Wednesday — giving him 60 days to do it voluntarily, or face deportation. In the U.S. on a nonmigrant visa since 1971, activist Lennon was cited for a guilty plea to marijuana possession in England and his failure to leave the country when his first authorization expired on Feb. 29, 1972.

• Funeral services will be held Saturday in Wiggins, Miss., for the cotton-picker's son who etched an American legend with his baseball skill, unashamed ego and fractured English — Jerome "Dizzy" Dean, dead of a heart attack at age 64 in Reno, Nev. Tempering his arm by throwing clods at prairie dogs, Dean joined the St. Louis Cardinals in 1931, almost immediately becoming the soul of the famed "Gas House Gang" and a symbol of the golden age of baseball — a brilliant pitcher who won 30 games in 1934 and with his brother Paul "Daffy" Dean led the Cards to a World Series triumph. His career cut short by injury, he faded away with the Cubs in 1941, but gained new popularity as a broadcaster and made it to the Hall of Fame in 1953.

• It's no way to treat a matador in Spain, especially one who's a national folk hero, but the law is the law and "El Cordobes" — the slum boy who became the world's richest bullfighter — wound up in the Cordoba slammer after a traffic offense that led to refusal to take a blood test and a fight with a policeman. The arrest became something of a national issue in Spain, where the matador — real name Manuel Benitez retired three years ago.

The economy—who really knows where it's going?

Gross national product shows some improvement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Commerce Dept. is expected to report today that the economy, as measured by the Gross National Product, pulled out of recession in the second quarter because of increased productivity and easing food and oil prices.

"The raw figures suggest that the economy will flatten," said Dr. Sidney Jones, White House deputy assistant and former assistant commerce secretary for economic affairs.

Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns also said the GNP probably grew in the second quarter, but added that the improvement from the first quarter slump would be modest.

The GNP, a barometer of the nation's output of goods and services, will be released today.

The GNP actually grew $14.5 billion on an adjusted annual basis in the first quarter. But the worst inflation since 1951 wiped out the gains and the "real" GNP declined 6.3 per cent — the first fall in 17 years.

"I learned when I worked on the GNP that you don't really know what the results are until the numbers drop out on the table," Jones told UPI Wednesday. "But the indications are there."

Jones said productivity has been increasing, industrial orders for new goods are up and housing starts have improved since the January-March quarter.

Output of the nation's factories, mines and utilities increased in April after a four-month decline, jumped again in May and held steady in June.

Inflation, the second key factor in GNP, increased at a slower pace in the second quarter after soaring to 11.5 per cent in January-March.

Oil prices leveled out in the second quarter and food prices dropped, at least on the wholesale market. But food prices have started going up again this month, and Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz expects them to continue climbing until autumn.

Grocer promises not to 'confuse and irritate'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Safeway Stores Inc., which sells more food to the American public than any other chain, said Wednesday it will no longer "confuse and irritate" its customers by putting new price stickers on top of old ones when prices go up.

Instead it will allow shoppers to buy up items marked at the old price, while replacing them at the back of the shelf with new stock marked at the higher price as space becomes available.

If a price goes down, the chain said, a new sticker will be put on top of the old one — and it will stay there even if the price goes back up again. Weekly specials in the store will be coded with letters to alert checkers that the item is selling for less than the marked price.

Safeway, which recently surpassed A&P as the nation's largest-selling food chain, operates 1,950 stores in 27 states, all but 169 of them west of the Mississippi.

Items controlled by fair trade laws — such as milk in the state of California — will not be affected, Safeway said, but most merchandise will be.

During Bell's news conference at a downtown hotel, representatives of the Consumer Federation of America handed out leaflets accusing Safeway of "cosmetic consumerism."

Carol T. Foreman, executive director of the federation, told Bell Safeway lacked credibility among buyers so long as the grocery industry continued to oppose legislation to create a consumer protection agency now pending in the Senate. Bell replied he was not in a position to comment.

Home construction stages modest June rally . . .

. . . But mortgage situation is bleak

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Home construction, the weakest sector of the economy, staged a modest rally in June, the Commerce Department said Wednesday.

New home and apartment unit starts rose 8 per cent last month, nearly canceling out a 9 per cent drop in May. Building permits showed no change in June over May.

Economists will be watching closely to see if the June improvement is the beginning of a broad-based construction surge or is merely a temporary change in the depression that has plagued the housing industry for more than a year.

Privately owned housing starts in June were at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.60 million, 26 per cent below the level of June, 1973.

Building permits, which reflect the construction plans of contractors in the months ahead, were at a 1.12 million rate last month, 45 per cent below June, 1973.

Housing Secretary James T. Lynn said he was pleased with the June increase, but said the figure was not definitive.

"Financing for housing remains scarce," Lynn said. "This tight money market over recent months clearly demonstrates the need for basic reform in the financial structure for housing."

In a separate report, the department said wages, salaries and other forms of income increased $7.4 billion in June, slightly under May's $9.2 billion rise. About $1.8 billion of this amount was due to retroactive pay increases for federal employes stemming from the October-December, 1972 salary period.

Farm income declined for the sixth straight month.

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Three of Hartford's largest banks are now charging record interest on home mortgage money and are requiring prospective buyers to be able to pay 50 per cent down on homes.

The Society for Savings this week established new mortgage rules requiring 50 per cent down at an interest rate of 9.75 per cent annually. Further, the bank will offer mortgages only to regular customers.

The bank had been writing mortgages at 9 per cent interest with 50 per cent down and 9.5 per cent with 25 per cent down.

Other banks following similar policies are the Mechanics Savings Bank and Hartford National Bank and Trust. The Connecticut Savings and Loan Assn., a minority bank, said it will accept no new mortgage applications until mid-August at the earliest.

Let's hear it for alleys...

I think we should take a moment and salute the alleys of Des Plaines. Not all neighborhoods have them — some people are less fortunate than others — but those that do have a corner of Americana that should be held in high esteem.

A co-worker and I have had long involved discussions on the problems of suburbia and have come to the conclusion that a lack of alleys, combined with the homeowners mania for well kept lawns makes the suburbs culturally deprived.

I wouldn't buy a home without a good old-fashioned rutted alley in back. I lived in a house once where gardens met gardens in back and was forever getting in trouble for traipsing through the tulips in the very spot where there should have been an alley.

MY HOUSE has a great alley. It's filled with garbage cans, stones, puddles of water, a few sunflowers and weeds — just like a real alley should.

To a kid it is paradise. My No. 1 son found enough discarded lumber, paneling and rugs in a few trips down the alley to build a dilapidated ground fort last spring. With selective garbage picking he's come home with broken toys, old tools, a cracked mirror and a few cigar boxes in which only a kid can find value.

It's the only place to put garbage. My beat up, broken garbage cans have their own special place in my alley and I can't imagine setting them out in front of the house — right there in full view of the neighbors — once a week. This way the garbage is well hidden in a place where garbage pickers have a bit of privacy in which to select.

AN ALLEY is a place to learn to ride a bike, a place to build a ramp so you can ride your Big Wheel up and over, a place to play hide and seek, or have long, secret discussions with best friends.

I have a neighbor who forbids activity on her blades of green. Her kids actually walk down a sidewalk to get to the street and go to the park to play anything that necessitates running around.

True — her blades look better than mine but my psyche suffers when a kid plays croquet on the sidewalk.

And because of the "stay off my lawn" mentality that exists in the manicured communities, an alley is a must for a kid who needs to run, play and . . . be a kid.

Bargaining policy revised

statement, prepared by Mrs. Nidetz and EMEA Pres. Barbara Korb, both sides agreed to the revised policy "in a mutual effort to develop an improved relationship of cooperation and good will."

The new policy — a revision of the staff conduct policy passed last fall — deletes a passage prohibiting teachers from wearing or displaying "buttons or other insignia relating to collective bargaining matters . . . including but not limited to advocating strike, a threat of strike or the withholding of services . . ." in the performance of classroom duties.

According to the revised policy, entitled "Collective Bargaining Conduct," "teachers and board members shall not discuss with or involve students in collective bargaining disputes between the board of education and themselves during any part of the school day or school activity and shall not discuss such disputes with students or in their presence."

JEROME ROBBINS, Dist. 63 board attorney, said both sides "understood the really prime motive" of the policy is that students won't be abused.

"The policy says that no student will be used as a focal point for any dispute between the staff and board," he said. "Disputes of a labor nature belong at the bargaining table or outside the building."

Robbins added that the policy applies to teachers discussing negotiations in the classroom but also to the board "distributing pieces of paper to the students saying we're having troubles with the staff."

"The real gut problem is whether we're going to use the classroom to propagandize and politicize," he said.

A second lawsuit, filed in U.S. District Court in February by teacher Jerome Slowinski, is pending. Slowinski is charging the board with violating his civil rights in the aftermath of the contract dispute.

Frost School in Mount Prospect. Another 23 children who would come from 19 homes to be built, would still be able to go to Jay, she said.

The children from apartments would have been bused to school anyway, she said, whether they went to Jay or another. She said she chose Brentwood and Frost schools because both would be under capacity, even with the additional students.

Also, she said, these children would still live in the same junior high school area — Dempster — as their classmates.

The only problem with this proposal is that it gerrymanders, Mrs. Schulz said.

"Who cares if the map is gerrymandered as long as the children aren't?" committee member Marilyn Magsamen asked.

OTHER MEMBERS suggested sending the 85 children from along Busse Road to the other Des Plaines schools, High Ridge Knolls, Devonshire or Einstein. High Ridge Knolls students now go on to Dempster, but students from the other two schools go to Friendship Junior High School.

The committee decided to postpone action until next week, after it received information from Supt. James Erviti. The committee wants to know whether the four Des Plaines schools and Frost School would have the physical space to take on the additional children. All schools would be under capacity even with the proposed changes, but they might not have any empty classrooms, committee members said.

The committee is expected to make a final decision on a boundary change at its meeting next Tuesday, at 7:30 p.m. in the Dist. 59 administration center, 2123 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights. The principals of the six elementary schools being discussed will be invited to attend. A public hearing on the committee's decision will be held July 31, at Friendship Junior High School, 550 Elizabeth Ln., Des Plaines.

Tabatt off environment panel

After several months of controversy, the Des Plaines city council has ousted Richard Tabatt from the city's environmental control commission.

The council voted not to reappoint Tabatt, who had served as chairman of the commission for a year, primarily because of a number of run-ins he has had with Mayor Herbert H. Behrel and several other aldermen.

The Tabatt-Behrel feud was sparked last March, after some members of the commission issued a controversial report criticizing the proposed downtown redevelopment plan.

BEHREL LABELED the action irresponsible and almost immediately said that he would not reappoint Tabatt for another term.

At Monday's city council session, Behrel said he had been asked by several persons to reappoint Tabatt.

"I would not recommend his reappointment, but if you people (referring to the council) want to reappoint him, go ahead," he said.

"Frankly I have been disappointed with Mr. Tabatt," Behrel added. The mayor also said he is having trouble finding people to serve on the nine-member panel hinting the controversy has caused people to shy away from the group.

Ald. Alan Abrams, 8th, also was critical of Tabatt because the commission had not taken up the issues of air and noise pollution caused by O'Hare International Airport and the proposed Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) plant.

TABATT WAS not available for comment after the city council's action. He earlier stated that a commission study of the airport and MSD problems would be a duplication of efforts that have been made by other groups.

The council did vote to reappoint Mark C. Rooney, 1355 Phoenix Dr., to the commission. Rooney was not one of the commission members who sided with Tabatt over the Superblock dispute.

Metal chunk from sky: FAA

An inspector with the Federal Aviation Administration said the jagged piece of metal which fell within 15 yards of two persons in Arlington Heights Tuesday has been identified as an airplane "wing flap cover."

Milton S. Washington, FAA carrier operations inspector, said "we cannot be certain what plane it came off of" but added United Airlines has asked it be turned over to them.

He said the aluminum alloy section, measuring about 1 foot by 1½ feet, will be turned over to the airline. He said any further investigation will be handled by the FAA certification holding office in San Francisco.

He said United Airline's maintenance will be monitored "to see if the part was properly installed."

THE HERALD carried a story in its Wednesday editions telling of the metal object which apparently fell from a jetliner landing at O'Hare Airport. Robert Fredericks and his stepdaughter Debbie Kimball, who were making a land survey for the Arlington Heights Park District at Belmont Avenue and Council Trail Road, when the object hit the ground near them, brought the metal object to the Herald offices after they "were a little shaken" by the incident.

Washington said it is "very unusual" for an airliner to lose a piece of equipment. "But it's just like a car," he said. "Parts aren't designed to come off, but sometimes they do."

United Airlines officials said they have been unable to determine whether the metal came from one of its jetliners.

You're looking at our new five million dollar switchboard system.

Now, when you use the operator for putting through a toll call, it's likely the operator will be sitting at one of these 62 brand new electronic switchboards.

The new system has buttons and lights. No more cords, plugs, tickets or keys.

Toll calls are completed faster through these new boards.

What kind of calls will be affected by this new system?

Person-to-person long distance.

Credit card and collect calls.

Third number billing calls (when you call from one phone and want it billed to another number).

There's more. Hotel and hospital phone users will be able to dial long distance calls direct.

You'll now be able to dial long distance direct from our pay phones.

And on your operator assisted toll calls, if you want to be notified after a certain length of time, we'll do it automatically.

This completely computerized system also includes many provisions for future advances, such as direct dialing overseas.

Best of all, we'll be converting all pay phones so you won't have to put your dime in before you get a dial tone.

Instead, you'll get the dial tone first. Which means that if you have an emergency and don't have change, you'll be able to reach an operator by just picking up the receiver and dialing "O."

This new switchboard is just one more step in our continuing effort to give you the kind of good phone service you expect.

The aviators were forced to change locations for the third time. Here, they pass under the Ill. Rte. 53 bridge at W. Frontage Road, Palatine.

Shades of Orv 'n' Wilbur!

by RONALD NORBERG

Two determined brothers and their next-door neighbor tried to make a place for themselves in aviation history this week by trying to conquer man's ancient desire to fly.

Scott Sowers, 15, of 1704 Wilshire Ave., Arlington Heights, his brother Mark, 18, and next door-neighbor Sandy Dameron, 15, looked nervous as they unfolded a giant kite, 24 feet long and 22 feet wide, to which Scott hoped to attach himself, and with the aid of his brother and friend, go soaring off into the heavens.

THE KITE, made of bamboo poles taped to a plastic tarpoline looked less than substantial. Scott said it weighs 40 or 50 pounds.

The three aviators unraveled the tarp, fastened it to the poles, grabbed hold of the long water-ski tow rope which would be used to launch the pilot from the top of a 25-foot dirt mound in back of the Lake Louise apartments, off Ill. Rt. 53 in Palatine.

The historic flight was then interrupted by the authorities.

Palatine Patrolman John Robertson had been dispatched to the scene after a complaint from the manager of the Lake Louise apartments, who said the three were trespassing on the company's land.

THE THREE dismantled the kite and moved to an embankment off Ill. Rte. 53, about half a block south of Anderson Drive. Again they prepared themselves to conquer the heavens.

Passing motorists slowed down on Rte. 53 as they watched the youths carry the unwieldy kite up the embankment. Four small children, cramped into a plastic swimming pool, shouted their encouragement.

"I'm ready," Scott called from the top of the embankment. Mark and Sandy grabbed the tow line, and the three ran down the hill, through grass almost waist high, hoping to catch a gust of wind.

Scott leaped! And hit the ground, landing on his backside. The kite came down over his head. Failure. He said there wasn't enough wind.

THE THREE then took the kite across the bridge to try the embankment on the other side.

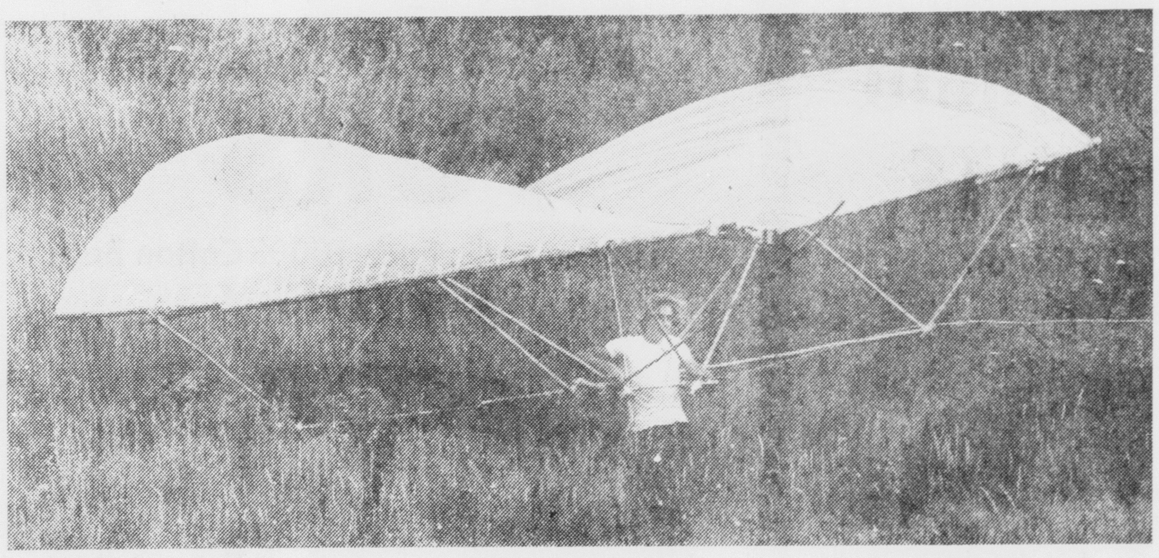
They ran through the grass, and Scott jumped again. It flew. It did not soar; it was never more than two feet off the slope, but it flew. For about five feet.

Then Scott landed again on his backside. Success.

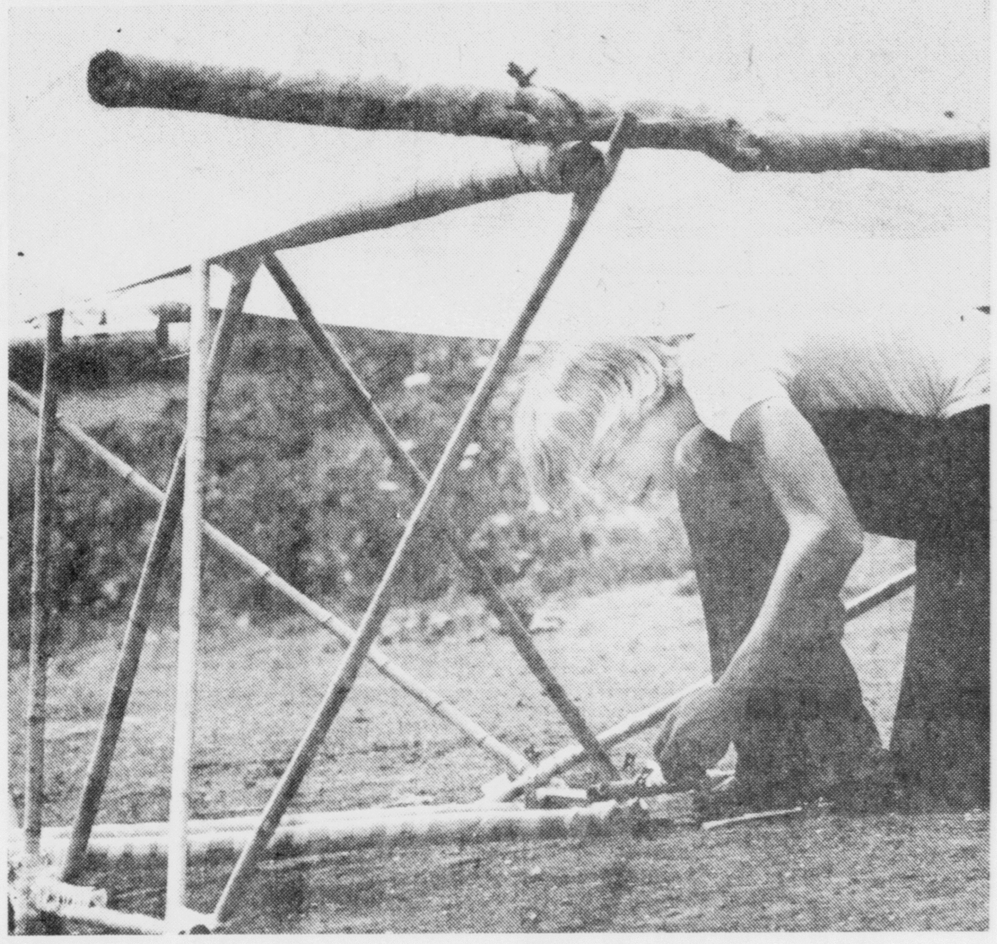
For the second time since he made the kite, Scott had flown.

The kite, Scott said was made last winter for a school project, at which time he jumped off a dugout at the Hersey High School baseball field and flew eight feet. He said he got the idea from an aviation magazine.

He does it because he says he "just likes to fly."



Success! Scott Sowers comes to an abrupt landing after his five-foot flight.



Police chagged Scott off this hill before the kite was assembled.

Stereotyping of sex roles to be topic

Sex role stereotyping in school curricula and textbooks will be examined during an all-day workshop Tuesday at Harper College.

Under scrutiny will be curricula and textbooks which foster traditional sex roles. Such stereotyping may emphasize courses in home economics for girls and shop for boys; careers as nurses for girls, and as doctors for boys.

"This workshop comes at a particularly appropriate time," said Rena Trevor, coordinator of the women's program at Harper, "in view of the fact that State Schools Supt. Michael J. Bakalis recently announced the appointment of an 18-member committee to study and report on sexism in textbooks and teaching materials used in Illinois schools."

Linda Hays and Judy Keller, co-chairpersons of the Citizens' Task Force on Sexism in Education in School Dist. 21, will lead the workshop entitled, "Learning To Be a Girl, Boy, Person." The program will include the film "Dick and Jane as Victims."

ALSO participating in the workshop will be a representative of Palatine Dist. 15, who will discuss the problems involved during the transition period while textbooks are being revised.

The workshop is open to the public. Hours are 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. in A-242. The fee of $7.50 includes lunch.

Reservations may be made by mail or by phoning Harper. Registrations will also be taken on July 23 at 9 a.m.

"Learning To Be a Girl, a Boy, a Person" is one of two workshops remaining in Harper's summer series of Expanding Horizons programs. These programs are presented through the Harper Women's Program.

The final summer workshop, on "Football Fundamentals," for those who want to increase their knowledge of this popular sport in time for the fall season, will be held Aug. 1.

Harper College is in Palatine at Algonquin and Roselle roads.

Art show Sunday at Northpoint

A one-day show of contemporary paintings and sculptures will take place at Northpoint Shopping Center Sunday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Artists will be in attendance during the show. All works in the collection will be offered for sale.

Northpoint Shopping Center is at Arlington Heights and Rand roads in Arlington Heights. Admission is free.

Amling holds grand opening of addition

The grand opening of the $500,000 addition to Amlings Flower and Garden Center, at Ill. Rte. 62 and Wilke Road in Rolling Meadows, has been announced by Otto Wentland, president of Amlings' nine flower and garden centers in the Chicago area.

The new addition to the Rolling Meadows center brings three new departments — "Critter Corner" for pet and tropical fish supplies, "Craft Gallery" for do-it-yourself handicrafters and "Green Thumbers," an atrium with flowers and plants.

Amlings has been in operation in Rolling Meadows for eight years.

Plan to boost oil output proposed

A program to increase Illinois oil production by drilling new wells in established oil field areas has been proposed by officials of a group known as Energy Resources Co. of Chicago.

The company said it would drill 200 wells by the end of this year.

While the drilling is exploratory, Carl F. Pampe, Olney, company geologist, said he felt the venture would be 80 per cent successful because the drilling would be in known oil fields.

Barry Van Der Meulen, executive vice president of ERC, said 7,200 jobs would be created in the drilling area of 5,600 acres located in five southeastern Illinois counties including White, Wayne, Edwards, Crawford and Jasper.

Van Der Meulen said drilling would be in what is known as the Illinois basin, where the company operates nine oil fields. The basin extends into parts of Indiana and Kentucky. Illinois ranks ninth in the nation in oil production.

Drilling is expected to go beyond 30,000 feet, but not more than 40,000, Pampe said. He said geological research of the areas where drilling will occur indicate as much as three billion barrels of oil remain to be found in the basin. (UPI)

A CLEANUP AND CANOE festival is slated for Saturday and Sunday on the lower Fox River by the Illinois Paddling Council. The nearby Des Plaines River, above, is another concern of the canoe group.

The environment

Canoe group to clean up the Fox River

by LEA TONKIN

Scenic rivers enthusiasts abound in Illinois, says Lynn Snarr of the Illinois Paddling Council. She's counting on this sentiment to bring out approximately 200 canoeists for the council's annual campout and canoe festival Saturday and Sunday. The get-together is planned as a social event and a cleanup effort on the lower Fox River.

The cleanup is slated for the stretch of the Fox River from Yorkville to Wedron, said Mrs. Snarr. Crews will leave at 9:30 a.m. Saturday from four starting points, hauling junked refrigerators and other debris to collecton areas. A Saturday evening program and a recreational cruise along the Fox River Sunday are planned by the council. For details call 869-4606.

"The cleanup program was started five years ago when we felt the need for scenic rivers legislation," said Mrs. Snarr. "What we canoeists are saying to local people is, we do care about your river." The paddling council has sponsored outings on the Des Plaines and other rivers in Illinois.

The cleanup campaign also is an effort to gain support for scenic rivers legislation, said Mrs. Snarr. Scenic rivers bills introduced in the Illinois General Assembly failed to get out of committee despite efforts of backers such as State Sen. Bradley Glass, R-Northfield, and State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights.

The Illinois Paddling Council along with the Natural Areas Coalition and other groups is a booster of the scenic rivers bills, which would protect a buffer zone along portions of the lower Fox, Vermillion and other rivers in the state. Downstate opposition from landowners and mining interests has hampered prevous efforts to pass the legislation.

Sen. Glass said a scenic rivers bill could be reintroduced in the General Assembly in 1975. Glass said the downstaters' opposition to the scenic rivers concept is based on the belief that they were not consulted by supporters of the measures. Enactment of the legislation will depend on an understanding that riverfront lands will be preserved for scenic beauty through zoning rather than confiscation, he said.

High ozone readings reported

High concentrations of ozone in many parts of the state, including suburban Cook County, were reported for the past week by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency. Gary Melvin, supervisor of the episode unit in the state agency in Springfield, said the readings of .1 to .15 parts per million of ozone in the atmosphere at several Illinois locations do not represent a danger to most residents. Asthmatics or persons with bronchial diseases are cautioned to restrict outdoor activities when high ozone readings occur, he said. The average person would be affected by readings in the range of .25 to .3 parts per million.

Ozone, an irritating gas, forms when hydrocarbons from auto emissions and other sources and nitrogen oxides react chemically in the presence of sunlight and little wind. High concentration of ozone can affect the respiratory system, leading to drowsiness, coughing and eye irritation.

Melvin said the state EPA can call for a reduction in auto traffic and emissions from industrial sources if dangerous concentrations of ozone and other contaminants are recorded.

Scott bowing out of '76 GOP gubernatorial race?

by BOB LAHEY

Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott came close to ruling himself out as a potential candidate for governor in 1976 in a television interview in Champaign Sunday.

Scott and House Speaker W. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest, have been widely regarded as contenders for the Republican nomination for governor.

Scott said he is happy in his role as attorney general and indicated reluctance to raise the "millions of dollars" required for a gubernatorial campaign.

Avoiding a pledge of support for Blair, Scott singled out State Comptroller George W. Lindberg as one of many "fine possibilities to be governor," and even volunteered that he thought Democraic Sec. of State Michael Howlett "would make a good governor."

Nimrod a 'tool'?

Patton Feichter, Des Plaines teacher who is running for the state Senate on the Democratic ticket in the 4th Legislative District, this week pictured Sen. John Nimrod, R-Skokie, his Republican opponent, as a "tool of Attorney General (William J.) Scott."

Nimrod was the sponsor of legislative amendments to several appropriations bills that would have given Scott the right to hire attorneys in departments under the jurisdiction of Gov. Daniel Walker.

The bills were a source of major controversy that resulted in prolonging the spring session of the Illinois General Assembly.

Said Feichter, "It's unfortunate that Scott is trying to use the entire state legislature to increase his political power, and even more unfortunate that he has a tool such as Nimrod to introduce his legislation."

Scott won approval of his amendments on bills providing money for the Environmental Protection Agency and the Illinois Liquor Control Commission, but bowed to opposition concerning other government agencies. The matter is expected to be contested by Walker in court.

All-star cast

For what office would you expect an alliance of such names as Sen. Charles Percy, Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott, Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey, and U.S. Representatives Philip M. Crane, R-12th and Edward Derwinski, R-4th, to band together as "co-chairmen" of a campaign?

According to a news release, these five luminaries will labor as directors of the election effort of Gerald Pals of South Holland, Republican candidate for the Cook County Board of (Tax) Appeals.

He'll back Adlai bid

Paul Shanyfelt of Elk Grove Village has been appointed as chairman of the citizens committee of Elk Grove Village for the reelection of Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill.

Shanyfelt is an assistant principal at the McClaren Occupational High School. He was a candidate for the Illinois Senate in 1970.

GOP triple threat

James R. Lancaster of Mount Prospect has been named campaign treasurer for Carl R. Hansen, Elk Grove Township Republican committeeman and candidate for president of the Cook County Board of Commissioners.

Lancaster is president of the Bank of Elk Grove.

Unionization could hurt teachers

Education today

by Wandalyn Rice

It may have been one of the most amazing scenes since the beginning of school board-teachers' union confrontations.

In fact, for a moment, the scene took on an almost "Alice in Wonderland" quality. For there was the president of a board telling the faculty that, if they wanted anything, they should form a union.

The scene took place last week at Harper College in Palatine during a meeting between the college board of trustees and the faculty grievance committee, which had asked that the board make some changes in the grievance procedure to make it more effective.

In the middle of the discussion, Board Pres. William Kelly told the faculty, in no uncertain terms, that if they did not want to go through the college administration to request changes in policy, they should save their discussions until they have full-scale negotiations with the board through a union.

THE SCENE WAS strange because in the past school boards of all kinds have resisted faculty unions. The position most boards take is that teachers have not needed unions because the boards would be responsive and listen to the faculty's reasonable requests without outside intervention.

Kelly's stand appears to have reversed that traditional position. It looks, in fact, like the Harper board is telling its faculty the only way it can get the board to listen to faculty proposals for change in the institution is to form a union and demand things. (And, of course, any such action would carry the implicit threat of a strike if the teachers didn't get their way.)

Faculty members were confused and outraged by Kelly's statement. Thomas McCabe, a faculty member who has been in on salary negotiations in the past, pointed out that in those talks the board consistently has refused to negotiate things such as the grievance procedure, class size or other issues that militant unions demand to negotiate.

McCabe did not say, but he could have said, that the faculty at Harper has several times taken votes to see whether they wanted to affiliate with a union. And they have always voted that proposition down.

McCabe then said it seemed as though the board was putting the faculty between a "rock and a hard place," by refusing to discuss with them outside of negotiations things that they have also refused to negotiate.

KELLY'S POSITION raises several questions — and they are questions that both the Harper board and the community should think about carefully.

First, is it in the ultimate best interest of the college to have the faculty form a union and thus to solidify an adversary relationship between faculty, administration and board?

Second, if it is not in Harper's interest, who will it help?

Third, does the Harper board really, seriously, have any idea what it may be getting into by inviting the faculty to form a union?

Let's look at these questions in order.

• To decide if a faculty union is in the college's best interest, let's look at places where there are unions. The Chicago City Colleges, for example, have been negotiating with the Cook County Teachers Union for years. Relations between all sorts of pressure groups at that school are strained: the colleges have been shut down by strikes frequently. The situation is bitter.

There are, of course, places where boards and teachers with unions get along more amicably than in Chicago. But in most of those places, even in our local elementary and high school districts, people on both sides admit that formal negotiations sometimes inhibit communication between the two sides.

• Who would benefit from a union? Faculty members at Harper have a bizarre theory about who would ultimately be helped. They contend that a faculty union would effectively result in absolute control of the college by the administration, particularly by Harper Pres. Robert Lahti. If the faculty is cut off absolutely from the board by a union, they reason, Lahti's already considerable power would be increased.

It is hard to see how this would happen, unless you realize that the position the Harper administration usually takes is that the board, even though they are elected by the voters, is generally incompetent to make any educational decisions. Harper board members frequently have told me with great conviction that they have to rely on the administration because they are only "laymen." If they were involved in bitter, divisive union negotiations, I'm sure this feeling would be increased.

• I will just flatly say that I don't think the Harper board knows what it would be getting into if it forced its faculty into a union. Maybe they do, but I doubt that very many of them have seriously thought about what they would do if they found the school shut down by faculty picket lines. Would they fire all the teachers? Or would they find themselves giving up more than they would have to give up if they solved the college's problems one by one without the benefit of union bargaining?

None of the discussion above addresses itself to the merits of the faculty's proposals on the grievance procedures, which included a request that binding arbitration be put in the procedure. I suspect that under no circumstances should the board allow binding arbitration, but I also suspect that they could have worked out something that would have addressed the faculty's concerns — if they had wanted to.

But instead, the Harper board seems to want a union. And now that is a question that everyone will have to examine carefully.

Three win Harper awards

The Harper College Educational Foundation has named winners of three $300 scholarship awards made possible by a grant from the Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc.

Two of the scholarships were designated for students who are ineligible for federal and state assistance. The winners are Gregory Savage, Wauconda, and Michael O'Grady, Park Ridge.

Janice Novak, Hoffman Estates, was named recipient of the third scholarship which was designated for a student over the age of 28 who is enrolled in a part-time course of study.

Another $300 from the grant was placed in the rotating short-term loan fund to assist students with emergency loans.

The grant was presented to the Harper Educational Foundation in appreciation of the assistance which Underwriters' Laboratories received in recruitment in their contacts with the college's placement and financial aids office.

Herald opinion

Go slow on RTA pick

The search should and must go on for the person best qualified to head the unit which can straighten out and expand mass transit in the Chicago metropolitan area.

In the past week there have been news reports that the four Chicago Democrats on the nine-person Regional Transportation Authority board were ready to offer Milton Pikarsky as RTA board chairman and director.

There have been other reports that the four suburban RTA board members have urged special care and deliberation in selecting the top man for the RTA post. This deliberate speed is necessary, we believe, if the best qualified person is to be found for this post.

Pikarsky may prove to be the best person to fill the position, but the only fair way in which that can be decided is to conduct a careful and methodical scrutiny of transportation experts across Illinois and across the nation for this post.

Consider the responsibilities of this position. The RTA head must not only begin to make order out of the perpetual chaos which dogs the Chicago Transit Authority, but he must also maintain and increase the quality and frequency of suburban mass transit. The task requires a thorough knowledge of both transportation and the politics which make mass transit work in the Chicago area.

Pikarsky, as a Daley loyalist, would obviously be a first-rate choice to the Chicago members of the RTA board. But the selection should not be based on political criteria, but rather on which man or woman can best serve the mass transit needs of the entire Chicago metropolitan area.

In other words, if the suburban members are stalling in order to select carefully a first-rate RTA boss, they are to be commended for stalling. The public will be better served by a careful, comprehensive selection process than by a quickly executed political maneuver.

Gene McCarthy still refreshing...

by BOB LAHEY
Political Editor

It is refreshing to meet a politician, especially one who has been in the national spotlight, who doesn't take himself too seriously.

Such is former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, 58-year-old veteran of 24 years in the U.S. Congress and the man who, probably more than anyone else, forced President Lyndon Johnson to forego a try for reelection and injected life into the movement for peace in Vietnam.

A soft-spoken and amiable man, McCarthy is accustomed, as any man who once made a serious bid for the nation's highest office, to addressing weighty topics.

But pushing at the surface of all his replies is a twinge of humor which says, "The universe will not collapse if I say the wrong thing." He speaks with a straight face; the smile shows only in his eyes.

Will he run again for president? It's hard to stop running, once you've started, he says. "There are always 11 people around to tell you the country needs you."

Should the U.S. establish formal diplomatic relations with Red China? "Well, we recognize them in New York (in the United Nations), but we don't recognize them in Washington. Maybe we could meet them halfway and recognize them in Baltimore."

Should President Nixon be impeached? The Constitution says a president may be impeached for high crimes and misdemeanors; Nixon seems to be guilty of something in between. "I suppose you could just call them felonies."

He is neither flip nor frivolous. Indeed, he demonstrates a genuine concern for the office which he sought in 1968, and may seek again.

It must be restored, says McCarthy, to the constitutional boundaries which he believes that Johnson and Nixon have bent out of shape.

McCarthy espouses a strong and assertive Congress and an executive who cannot — or, at the least, will not — employ the agencies of government for his own purposes.

What McCarthy says of political candidates — and the self-estimate that comes through in his conversation — is that the office is far more important than the man that occupies it.

"We should not just ask a candidate where he stands on the issues. We should ask him, 'What should be the role of the House? What is the role of the Senate in foreign policy?' "

It is the fault of the Congress, and the people too, that the presidency has been abused by men who consider it a personal power, says McCarthy.

Perhaps it is his lack of self-aggrandizement which accounts for McCarthy's inability to carry off the 1968 Democratic nomination for president after instigating Johnson's fall.

Perhaps it will also preclude his emergence at the head of a pack of White House seekers in 1976. McCarthy is referred to, sometimes affectionately, sometimes scornfully, as "the poet-laureate of the Democratic Party."

Poets are not noted for their successes in political infighting. Still, it would be refreshing to have someone in the White House who acknowledges that it is just a temporary residence.

Four readers criticize policeman's suspension

letters to the editor

We are writing in regard to the suspension of Mr. Floyd Merenkov of the Buffalo Grove Police Department. We feel his suspension is unjust and uncalled for. If Mr. Merenkov can put his reputation and career on the line for wrongdoings he has seen going on in the police department, then let's see Chief Harry Walsh open up the matter and investigate more thoroughly. We, as residents of Buffalo Grove, have the right to know what's going on in our police department if we are paying their salaries with our taxes.

To suspend Mr. Merenkov on the charges made by Chief Walsh is another way of saying he was making too many waves and stepping on too many toes. Looks like a lot of bad politics going on here, and a small Watergate in our own police department.

For Chief Walsh to place his office and the sergeants under his command above question, is an insult to our community. Let's shake loose the cobwebs and find out what's really going on behind the scene.

We hope those officers who have been intimidated, will come forward to speak the truth and do the job they are being paid for — that of upholding the law and seeing justice done "even if it hurts in their own backyard!"

In the pre-Watergate days it may have been difficult to conceive of a person's being suspended from his job for trying to do an honest job and illuminating wrong doing. It isn't hard to believe now.

Buffalo Grove Patrolman Floyd Merenkov's suspension by Chief Walsh is an excellent and outrageous example of how "people in high places" in all levels of government try to snuff out the truth.

Patrolman Merenkov has served his community as both a policeman and a volunteer fire fighter. Unlike the persons he's charged with misconduct, he has gone beyond, not fallen short, of the call of duty. He's given countless hours of his own time to the people of Buffalo Grove. Earlier this year the village board presented him with a commendation for his efforts in organizing the police cadet program. Last year in his capacity of juvenile officer he spent his own time, much of it during the middle of the night, with youthful law offenders whom he dealt with as individuals not numbers. Also on his own time he participated in the emergency medical technicians' program through Northwest Community Hospital to, again, better serve the needs of the community.

Patrolman Merenkov deserves the praise and support of the people of Buffalo Grove for his decision to accept suspension by which the truth may be known rather than accepting Walsh's fact-covering "quiet resignation."

It is our hope that concerned people will join us in demanding that Patrolman Merenkov's allegations become public knowledge and those accused of misconduct and fact-fogging be brought to a public hearing.

'No more traffic!'

This is in regards to the so-called Walnut Lane bridge and road. Well first of all, does Mr. Zgonina really know what Walnut Lane is all about? Doesn't he know this will only increase the speed limit and bring in more traffic? Then how safe will our children be on school days? What about our school buses?

He also states, convenient access for fire and police protection, great, I'll buy that, but he forgot one item, who will patrol this section, Schaumburg or Hanover Park? More taxes.

Nowhere in the article does it state what the feelings are of the people in Hanover Park. Well what do you say to all this Hanover Park? After all, it's your money, too.

I am sure a foot bridge could have been built here years ago, for people that is, what happened to this plan? But a bridge and road for more autos and traffic, this makes sense?

I am sure that Schaumburg officials could put this money to much better use, for the people of Schaumburg and our children. We all know this will solve nothing.

...'elevated' Mills challenged

by TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — In 36 years as a congressman, Wilbur Mills has grown accustomed to homage.

As chairman of the puissant House Ways and Means Committee, he expects and receives deference from colleagues and presidents; as a tireless and effective legislator, he is handled gingerly by the media. As an awesome political potentate in his home district (Arkansas' Second) he has not, in 18 terms, suffered opposition in a general election.

Now, maybe the times are changing. A 30-year-old Little Rock divorcee named Judy Petty has decided to aim her Republican hatpin at the Mills' balloon this November, and she is trying to pop all kinds of hell.

Charging Mills with everything from arrogance to abuse of power, Petty says the man is too old, too insulated, too possessive and perhaps even too powerful to be returned to office.

Says she rapidly, by telephone: "I am amazed at the power Wilbur Mills has over so many people in our democracy. Let me cite just one example. In 1972, when he made his embarrassing run for president and finished somewhere in the miscellany column, there were all sorts of rumors about the illegality of some of his campaign contributions. Since then, the illegalities have been proven.

"But to this day, Mills has not personally commented on the subject. He even refuses to divulge his campaign contributions prior to April 7 of that year (when a law was passed forcing contribution disclosure). How about that? We hound Nixon to death about his campaign problems, but Mills, who in my opinion is more powerful than Nixon, is let off without even a second look."

According to Arkansas veterans, the lady is not yet causing any explosions in the political hardrock. Mills himself, says a Democrat, "probably doesn't even know her name." But if votes are given for reflective pause, her autumn tally may surprise.

She has a point which, post-Watergate, should be clear: as James Otis said in 1762, "The more elevated the person who errs, the stronger is the obligation to refute him."

To be sure, Mills is highly elevated. As Ways and Means Committee chairman, he has the absolute last word on such matters as taxes, trade quotas, tariffs and welfare. Usually, it appears, he has carried the responsibility with honor. Sometimes, it's clear he has not.

In 1972 he was given (and kept) $6,000 by 10 breweries obviously interested in the fact the Mills committee has responsibility for determining the federal excise tax on beer. That same year he was given (but returned) $15,000 by Gulf Oil, a company ever cognizant of Mills' power over tax loopholes.

Truly, his 1972 campaign chest was filled with suspicious money (the milk industry reportedly paid for some of Mills' office space), but the congressman's only response has been a shrug. His top aide, Gene Goss, says today with a resentful sigh that "Mr. Mills never received one penny himself — the money was collected by various committees. I don't know why the committees don't divulge. You have to ask them."

Despite the audacity of the Mills' evasion, it has worked. The man and his methods are rarely questioned. "I think he has plenty to hide," says Judy Petty, "but no one stands up to him. He's like a lot of old-time congressional incumbents. He acts like the office is his, not the people's, and he spends his time accumulating the influence to make sure it is his and not the people's."

Again, though obviously grinding her own ax, the Little Rock lady makes sense. Congress too often has become bastion for the mighty. The founding fathers never intended such; indeed, they felt the House especially, with its two-year term, would turn over regularly with changing public opinion.

Yet, witness Mills, 38 years to now without opposition. It hasn't worked out that way. And regrettably, this says less about Mills than of the rest of us.

McHenry County

$1.5 million, 86-acre home for retarded adults sought

by KAREN BLECHA

A citizens' group is seeking financial backing to buy a $1.5 million 86-acre site in unincorporated McHenry County for a home for severely retarded adults from the Northwest suburbs.

The Citizens Committee to Serve Retarded Adults, an offshoot of the Suburban Township Assn. for the Retarded (STAR), wants to buy the 118-room St. Joseph Novitiate near Woodstock. The novitiate would be converted into a non-profit permanent home for retarded adults from Palatine, Wheeling, Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships.

According to a survey taken by the committee, 115 retarded adults at least 18 years old could move immediately into the facility. Forty would come to the facility from Lincoln and Dixon state schools in central Illinois. Another 120 would need the home sometime in the future.

"We want to house the retarded adults in a home near their families," said Nita Pearson, committee member.

THE COMMITTEE plans to apply for a state loan from the Illinois Health Facility Authority to pay for the purchase. Money to operate the home would come from State of Illinois mental health and public aid funds, she said. Hopefully, parents would not have to pay any money, Mrs. Pearson said.

First, said Mrs. Pearson, the committee must get financial pledges from a variety of sources before it can apply for the loan. The group plans to solicit organizations such as the Kiwanis Club and to ask for township monies.

If the authority accepts the committee's application, tax-exempt revenue bonds would be sold to raise money for the loan. The non-profit board of directors that would govern the home would pay rent to the authority each month until the bonds are paid back. At that time, the authority would sell the home to the group for $1, said George Hasapes, executive director of the authority.

"We have had a preliminary discussion with members of the committee and I think we might be favorable to their request," Hasapes said. "But we won't know until they make a formal application and a feasibility study is made."

THE NOVITIATE, which includes 55 single bedrooms, 7 double bedrooms, dining rooms, classrooms, recreation rooms, an infirmary, barber shop and library, has been on the market since April, 1974. According to the Congregation of the Resurrection, which owns the property, several groups are considering buying the property, but no sale has been made.

The citizens committee has already gone to the McHenry County Board's Building and Zoning Committee to "sound them out" on the zoning change that would be needed for the home. A formal request for the change has not yet been made.

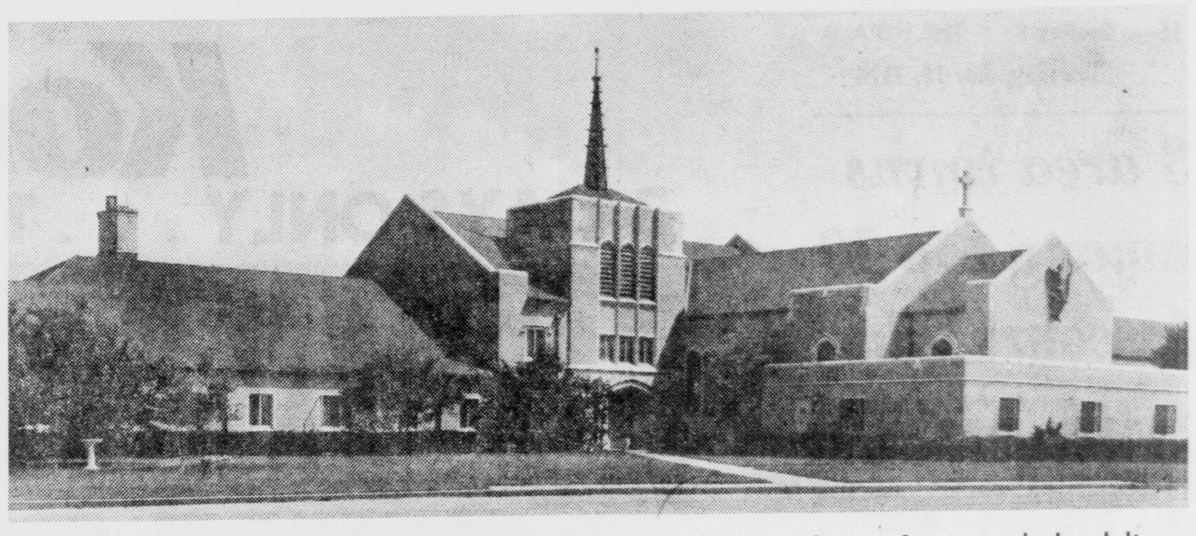
"I think they would be favorable to us," said Martin Pratt, member of the committee.

The committee, formed earlier this year, hoped to get money for the purchase from appropriations of the Illinois Department of Mental Health. But an amendment that would provide a new $3 million grant program for non-profit community residential centers like theirs was defeated in the Senate Appropriations Committee. The measure had passed the Illinois House of Representatives.

MRS. PEARSON said retarded adults could move in five months after the novitiate is bought. She said the building requires approximately $100,000 in renovations, but that it comes complete with items like linens and dishes.

Besides lifetime care, the facility would also provide for retarded adults in case of emergency or illness at home or if their parents want to take a vacation. The adults would be profoundly and severely retarded, unable to maneuver in the community without supervision, said Mrs. Pearson.

She said the center would provide vocational training and a nursing staff trained in residential care. Most of the resident would work in the facility, although it is possible some would work in the community. The facility would rely on volunteers to help with training, she said.



St. Joseph Novitiate in McHenry County may become home for retarded adults.

Wait until final tax bill

Senior citizens: don't file for cash grants yet

Cook County homeowners eligible for cash grants under the state's senior citizen's and disabled persons' property tax relief program cannot file claims until second-installment tax bills are received, the director of the Illinois Dept. of Revenue warned this week.

"We are concerned that homeowners will file for this tax break on the basis of an estimated property tax bill which they received in February," Robert Allphin said. "Because state law requires that a final property tax figure be used in computations, we cannot accept figures from an estimated bill."

County officials have said that tax bills will be late this year. Mailing of bills will begin about six weeks after the county receives county tax equalizer figures from the state's Department of Local Government Affairs.

A BILL limiting the equalizer was passed two weeks ago by the Illinois General Assembly and is under study by Gov. Daniel Walker.

Senior citizens and disabled persons who filed for property tax relief last year have been mailed claim forms for 1973.

Those who did not file a claim with the state last year may obtain forms at any Illinois Department of Revenue office. The "Circuit Breaker" act makes annual cash grants available to eligible citizens who rent homes or apartments, residents of nursing homes or pay property tax on homes.

Although there is no specific filing deadline for citizens to apply for 1972 or 1973 property tax relief, applicants are urged to file as soon as possible, Allphin said.

More than $25 million in grants have been dispersed by the state since the law became effective Jan. 1, 1973. More than 160,000 eligible citizens have received cash grants averaging $160 based on property tax paid.

3 area towns among top 10 in court take

Three Northwest suburban municipalities rank among the Cook County's top 10 in traffic court revenue for the first five months of 1974.

LaGrange led the list released Wednesday by Circuit Court Clerk Matthew Danaher with $60,263.

Elk Grove Village was third with $49,799, Arlington Heights was fourth with $46,724, and Des Plaines was seventh with $32,528.

Danaher said the Circuit Court has collected $1,499,650 from 126 suburban communities in five months of 1974, an increase of 7 per cent when compared with 1973.

"As suburban areas get more congested, they begin experiencing urban traffic problems and police need to issue more traffic tickets," Danaher said. "Similarly, the court has seen more and more ordinance violations and misdemeanors."

Other revenues on the list include:

- 2nd District: Buffalo Grove $8,480, Palatine $25,985, Rolling Meadows $4,323, and Wheeling $13,430.
- 3rd District: Barrington $6,929, Hoffman Estates $19,357, Schaumburg $21,493, and Mount Prospect $18,782.

'Miss Peanut' contest slated

The Kiwanis Club of Wheeling Township will sponsor a "Little Miss Peanut" contest today at the Old Orchard Country Club in Mount Prospect.

Judges will select one girl as "Little Miss Peanut" to represent all Kiwanis Clubs that will participate in the annual Kiwanis kids day peanut sale in September.

To enter, each girl must be accompanied by a legal guardian for the judging at 1 p.m. at the Old Orchard Country Club.

The girls must be between six and eight years old. They must be at least six years old at the time of the contest and must not attain their ninth birthday before the last Saturday in September.

Each contestant will be publicly interviewed by the Kiwanis master of ceremonies and three or more judges.

The girls will be judged for poise, personality and pertness. The contestant with highest total of points will be declared the winner.

The winner of the local contest will compete in a division contest for the title of "Little Miss Peanut." The winner will be awarded prizes and participate in press, radio and television interviews.

For further information, call John Helmer at 541-8600.

panic when they find the scale on their trees.

While the pest can be controlled by spraying Malathion on the leaves, both men advised against it unless the scale has been bad for several years and appears to be killing the tree.

"If it's a small tree, then possibly spray it," Towler said. "Otherwise, first do some fertilizing to increase the vigor of the tree. Most of the trees have been living with maple scale for years and are doing all right. Also dig around the tree to lessen the amount of grass competition."

FIZZELL SAID not to worry if a tree has been sprayed and the popcorn-like threads are still on the branches. "You can spray the tree and kill the scales and those threads will stay there for years," he said

Another way to control the scale, he said, is in late winter when the tree is dormant, apply an oil spray according to recommendations on the label.

Public works crews in Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Arlington Heights, Wheeling, Mount Prospect, Buffalo Grove and Rolling Meadows have sprayed or have plans to spray village trees with either Malathion or a similar substance called Diazinon. In Wheeling, the crews also spray trees of residents who request it.

In Palatine, where the public works department does not spray with Malathion, 500,000 ladybugs have been let loose in the village. Ladybugs are predators of the maple scale and officials hope they will control the pest. Lee Plate, of the Palatine Public Works Department, said it is too early to tell.

Fizzell, however, doubts if the ladybugs will help much. "The problem with the ladybugs is that they migrate," he said. "Also, they will eat up the rest of the population of natural predators as well as the scale."

Esposito's closing 69 captures Illinois Open by 1 stroke

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Emil Esposito, who lurked behind the leaders for two rounds, snuck by them with a final 69 to win the Illinois Open by a stroke yesterday at the Rolling Green Country Club in Arlington Heights.

Esposito trailed Hubby Habjan by three strokes after a first round card of 70. He was arrears of three golfers as the second day wound up after firing a 73.

But on the second and third holes of the final round Esposito began his move for the title with a birdie and an eagle.

The birdie came on a par-5, 452-yarder. The eagle was even more amazing, coming on a par-4 hole.

Pekin's Bob Moreland, who had fashioned back-to-back 70's to give him a share of the second round lead, had putting troubles on the potential birdie holes. After getting something to drink, he headed south with a 73 and $1100 in prize money for his second-place finish.

The surprise of the tournament, Bob Augustine of Lake Forest, returned to his first round form as he finished the final round at 74. Augustine had burst into a tie for the lead with a 65 Tuesday, a single stroke off the Rolling Green course record.

He finished a stroke behind Moreland at 214.

Esposito made the turn at two-under-par and then quickly fell into trouble. Needing to make up three strokes to tie the leaders, bogeys on 10 and 11 almost put the pro from Dominion Golf and Country Club out of the picture.

On the 10th, Esposito topped his approach shot and sent it into a bunker to set up the bogey.

In the second round a similar mistake had bothered Esposito so much it had ruined his concentration. Following the bogey at 11, however, Esposito started the run that won the championship.

On the 345-yard par-4 12th hole, Esposito's second shot bit solidly into the green and he holed the 15-footer for his bird.

Another strong second shot on 13 was followed by another 15-foot birdie putt that sent him two under for the day and three under for the tournament.

Esposito culminated his streak on the par 5, 531-yard 14th hole. His third shot rolled past the pin and onto the longer grass at the edge of the green. Esposito hunkered down and kicked in the 25-footer for his third consecutive birdie.

He parred out the rest of the way and stood talking with friends along the 18th green as Moreland and Augustine came up the last fairway with their chances of winning diminishing with each shot.

As Moreland fell for good, the popular Esposito turned and kissed his wife Theresa then began accepting congratulations from his friends.

"This is the best I've swung since I turned pro," Esposito said. "Playing a normal round I swing fine, but when I get in a tournament I just can't let it go.

"Going down 17 my caddy told me I was tied for the lead," he said. "I told him I didn't want to hear about it."

Moreland, who displayed more consistency throughout the tournament than any other player, was resigned to his defeat after an afternoon of putts staying out of the hole.

"I hit the ball as well today as the other days," Moreland said. "My problem was an inability to birdie the par-5 holes. I had six bogeys the entire tournament and five of them came after three putting."

Bill Ventresca, the head pro at Rolling Green, stopped to congratulate Esposito. Ventresca had moved briefly into contention with a second round 69 and finished at 217.

"I told Bill yesterday that one of us was going to win this tournament," Esposito said.

"And," Ventresca replied. "I said it would be you."

"This is a great golf course," Esposito said. "The best around. It's much better than Butler (site of the recent Western Open)."

Other area players who made the 60-man final field were Mike Harrigan of Arlington Heights (71-73-77-221), George Capoun of Palatine (76-74-75-225), Chris Marszalek from Arlington Heights (77-74-77-228), Tom Jacobsen of Schaumburg (75-76-75-226) Steve Jenne of Arlington and with Harrigan an assistant pro at Rolling Green (75-75-79-229) and Jim Urban from Buffalo Grove (79-72-74-225).

'Mugger' may be waiting for women at Open

Paul Logan

Butler National had observers marveling and the pros mumbling about it two week ago.

Its 7003 yards, playing to an unreal par 71, forced all who lasted the four days over par. As golf courses go, this new one in Oak Brook proved to be a killer.

Those who have read about La Grange Country Club's size might be expecting a few chuckles this week. I mean what's there to fear from a 6,266-yard, par 72 course that's one of the oldest playing pastures in Chicagoland? No way this 75-year-old layout can handle the talented women who attack it starting today in the 22nd United States Women's Open. Or can it?

"I read somewhere, I guess Golf Digest, where you can look for low scoring here," said Charlie Tawse, head pro the past seven years at this southwest suburban club. "It may look easy on the scorecard, but I think they'll find it tough."

If Butler is to be known as the murderer of the men's tour, La Grange seems destined to receive the label of "mugger" or "molester" from the women. At least Tawse is thinking along those lines. He considers his course will prove more difficult than last year's test — Rochester Country Club.

The winner was Susie Berning, the Open champion for two straight years. She finished at 290 or two over for 72 holes.

La Grange also plays to a 72 or 288 for four rounds, but Tawse doesn't think his course will be the loser come Sunday. He sees a 292 being the winning total.

Three factors enter in to Tawse's guesstimate — his greens, the weather and the way certain holes are set up.

"I'm not saying they're the fastest in the area," says Tawse, "but they're fast. The girls aren't used to putting on these types of greens, so they're going to have some trouble adjusting to them."

Besides being slick (barring a heavy downpour), the greens should be hard to hold. Because of this, the nearly 50 traps that guard them will come into play all the more.

The always changeable weather should prove to be just as much a factor as it did at the Western — especially the extreme heat. And then there's the wind.

"You know it's going to blow sometime around here," said Tawse. "And the prevailing wind will be working against them on a number of holes."

No less than half a dozen holes play into the prevailing southwesterly wind — No. 1 (369 yards, par 4), No. 2 (500, par 5), No. 6 (387, par 4), No. 10 (490, par 5), No. 11 (395, par 4) and No. 12 (295, par 4).

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	OUT
YDS	369	500	380	187	513	387	509	200	136	3,181
PAR	4	5	4	3	5	4	5	3	3	36
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16	17	18	IN	TOTAL
YDS	490	395	295	364	175	377	395	154	440	3,085	6,266
PAR	5	4	4	4	3	4	4	3	5	36	72

La Grange County Club — site of the United States Women's Open

"Barbara Romack has played the course," said Tawse. " . . . She thought it was tough. She said she was going to have to get a new set of woods. I think many of the women will be using a lot of woods."

Despites its length, the fairways are heavily watered, cutting down the distance the ball can travel. This forces golfers to hit high tee shots, but the wind on those six hiles will keep drives shorter than usual.

Also making some of these windy holes tougher will be the dreaded "O.B." An out-of-bounds fence comes into play starting on No. 10. It will haunt all those who hook the ball for four straight holes.

Another problem during this stretch comes on No. 11 and 12. Although only 395 yards, the 11th is considered one of the toughest on the course by Tawse. Besides the wind, it's played up a hill. This par four is heavily trapped with an undulated, small, elevated green. Many will be forced to use a 3-wood off the tee for good position, leaving the second shot to be propelled by a cannon!

"And then they'll come to the 12th," said one of the tournament directors. "It's the most controversial hole on the course. It looks like a birdie hole, a straightaway 295-yard par 4.

Route to Open on P. 2

"But it's the most severely contoured green on the course. And the members hate it. I think it'll surprise the pros, too."

If the women learn to hate the 12th, they'll at least find the 14th a therapy hole -- considered the easiest of the three-strokers. This par 3, 175-yarder is the pictur postcard of the course. Chris Schenkel & Co. will enjoy describing this spot.

The 14th will have the women firing from a highly elevated tee over a pond to a fairly large landing area. Only the poorest played shot will splash. The beauty of the hole is enhanced by the flagstones and red flowers that make up the pond's bank.

Of the remaining holes, the 16th's considered "a make or break hole" by some members, including Tawse. "The shot to the green is the most exacting on the course," says Tawse of the par 4, 395-yarder. "There are three traps tightly tucked around the contoured green and there is water behind it."

The 18th promises to be a good gambling hole. At only 440 yards, this par 5 should see the women going all out for birdies, making this an ideal finishing hole on the final day.

The Herald area will have a contestant in the United States Women's Open, beginning today.

Paula Smith Shearer of Mount Prospect is one of the lucky alternates who will be teeing off in the 22nd annual classic hosted at La Grange Country Club through Sunday.

She'll be going off this morning at 9:39 and on Friday at 1:26 p.m.

Arlington Heights beats Wheeling; tie for legion lead

Some people would like to see Paul Kastner on a basketball court this summer instead of on the mound for the Arlington Heights American Legion team. One of them is Kastner's basketball coach.

The Wheeling legion squad, too, would prefer that the tall lefthander keep his summertime activities confined to the hardcourt after he and his Arlington mates beat Wheeling, 8-3, Tuesday.

For the second time this season, Kastner throttled the big Wheeling bats with an assortment of fastballs and slow curves. In the last fourteen innings against Wheeling, Kastner has allowed just two earned runs.

And this victory was a big one. It moves Lloyd Meyer's Arlington Heights crew into a first place tie with Wheeling at the top of the Ninth District standings. Both squads have 11-4 marks. And Meyer's boys are on the rise, having come from four games back.

The Arlington hitters staked Kastner to a 5-0 lead after two innings and the lanky southpaw kept Wheeling off balance until the fifth, not allowing a hit until that frame.

"I threw to spots," said Kastner. "Control . . . and the fast ball was moving."

The Arlington hurler fanned eight and walked just two. The first hit he allowed was a bad-hop single past second baseman Rance Aguirre. Wheeling managed just three hits altogether.

Arlington Heights scored a run in the first off Mitch Gullett on a leadoff single by Jerry DeSimone, a stolen base, a sacrifice, and a fielder's choice off the bat of Joe Riplinger. Meyer's hitters came back for four in the second on six singles by Bruce Hanson, Steve Breitbeil, DeSimone, George Vukovich, Riplinger, and Tom Good.

Wheeling got its first run in the fourth on two errors and Bob Burke's aacrifice fly. In the fifth, following Ron Henrick's ground single past Aguirre and another roller through the infield by Jeff Brisson, George Kaage tagged a Kastner pitch on a line into right center for a two-run triple. The Arlington pitcher then got Paul Groot on a long fly ball to left to end the inning.

In the sixth, Hanson tripled home a run and scored himself a moment later when the Wheeling pitcher dropped the ball during a rundown.

NORWOOD BEATS LOGAN, 7-5

A three-run sixth inning off relief pitcher Paul Obuchowski enabled Norwood Park to beat Logan Square, 7-5, in a six-inning game ended early due to darkness.

Norwood first baseman Pete Mroz struck the key blow off Obuchowski, a two-run single. But he picked up just one RBI. The second run scored when Logan Square catcher Dave Mnichowicz couldn't handle the relay throw.

Then Mroz came in when catcher Paul McVicker singled.

Norwood opened with single runs the first two innings off Logan Square starter Steve Bobowski.

Logan Square tied the game at 2-all in the home third. Obuchowski's single scored Jim Dumke who had moved down to second after getting a base hit. Obuchowski swiped second and scored on Bobowski's hit.

Bobowski, who recorded five strikeouts and four walks during his five innings, held Norwood scoreless during the third and fourth. Logan Square moved out front, 4-2, by adding another two-run inning in the fourth.

Mnichowicz crashed a double for the runs, scoring Art Hoesterey (walk) and Mark Hartley (single).

In Bobowski's last inning, McVicker opened with a hit. Tom Weber drove a ball over the centerfield fence which tied the game at 4-all.

The three-run spurt off Obuchowski gave Norwood Park a 7-4 lead. Logan Square's final run crossed in the sixth when Dumke doubled and Mnichowicz singled.

Dumke and Mnichowicz had two hits each for Logan Square. Mroz and Weber accomplished the same trick for Norwood Park.

HOMER BEATS PROSPECT

A two-run home run in the bottom of the seventh inning by first baseman Dave Patterson gave Park Ridge a 5-3 victory over Mount Prospect in American Legion action Tuesday. The round-tripper came off losing pitcher Rich Haaning and broke up a tie ball game.

Mount Prospect, now 8-9 in the Ninth District with four straight losses, took a 3-0 lead in the third inning, but Park Ridge tied the score with three runs in the fifth. The key moment in the rally was a successful suicide squeeze bunt.

Park Ridge's record is now 9-5 in legion standings, just a game and a half off the league-leading pace set by Arlington Heights and Wheeling. Jerry Romes' Ridgers have won five of their last six decisions.

Mizerak's marks love to be hustled

by IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The man who admits to being the best pool player in the world was demonstrating some common, everyday miraculous trick shots to a few friendly acquaintances, including writer and pro tyro George Plimpton, at whose home these wonders occurred.

Steve Mizerak, U.S. Open pocket billiards champion for the last four years, lined up three balls at the front end of the table. He put one ball in front of one corner pocket, one ball in front of the other corner pocket, and one ball against the edge in the middle.

He said he would knock in one ball, have the cue ball spin around the middle ball and knock the far ball in the second pocket. He did.

Small potatoes, he had about 20 other tricks up his stick. He virtually had the balls hopping in one pocket and out into another. The balls became rotund automatons that scooted where told.

Now, Mizerak lined up four balls in a row directly in front of a side pocket. The cue ball was set up in front of the other side pocket. "I will knock in the ball closest to the pocket without the cue ball touching the front three balls," he announced.

"Impossible," muttered Plimpton. Pause. "But I won't bet on it."

A cloud of drama gathered momentum in the room. Mizerak, blondish, heftyish and mysteryish, tread scientifically around the table, casing the joint. Finally, he set, he hunched, he squinted, he aimed in pendulum fashion and stroked softly.

As the cue ball headed slowly on its mission, Mizerak swept aside balls one, two and three with his stick. The cue ball, like a halfback following perfect blocking, knocked in the front ball. The tricky trick shot had been performed just as Mizerak had said, but to the groans of his friends.

Mizerak is 29 years old, and has been amazing people with his billiard artistry ever since he began hanging out in a pool hall at age 4. The pool hall in Steve's case was the safest place for him since his father, who owned the smoke-embalmed emporium, could keep a fastened eye on the tot.

From such humble but netherworldly beginnings in Perth Amboy, N.J., Steve Mizerak went on to reap some fame, some fortune and some danger.

He recalls one tingly afternoon in Nashville, Tenn., while on a business tour through various billiards nests in the South. He had sallied forth from Athens College in Athens, Ala. His baggage included one cue stick and one fellow collegian, a mountainous wrestler.

Mizerak was beating the owner of the pool hall, when the owner's wife hollered from behind the counter, "Honey, if you cain't win from this feller, then we'll have to just shoot his tail off."

"I walked over to my muscleman," Mizerak recalls, "and said, 'If she pulls a gun, what'll you do?'

"He said, 'What should I do?' That's when I knew I was in trouble. Well, I won and we ran."

Perhaps this is why Mizerak has been so successful in the last four U.S. Opens (he defends his title again Aug. 5-10 in Chicago). He can relax.

"Sometimes that's hard to do, too," he said. "I mean, say a guy is running a hundred balls on you, and it's happened to me more than once. You want to jump up and bite the guy's hand. But all you are allowed to do is sit and stare. It's horrible."

What's almost as miserable, if you're one of the 100 or so "legitimate" professional billiards players in the United States (and it's here that the best billiards in the world is played), is that you earn starvation wages even if you are the best.

Last year, Mizerak was the number one money-winner with about $8,500 in prize money — $6,000 coming from the U.S. Open win alone. He had to supplement that income in order to feed and shelter his family — wife and 3-year-old boy — by teaching seventh-graders geography and spelling, owning his own pool parlor (all neat and socially acceptable), writing a book, "Inside Pocket Billiards" (Regnery), and as a paid adviser to the Brunswick staff.

Steve Mizerak shoots stick with the best

Luther Lassiter, whom Mizerak beat for the title, pumps gas in North Carolina when not behind the eight ball.

However, Mizerak says he never has to do any anonymous touring of pool joints anymore. "Funny," he said, "but if you go into a place and tell them who you are — they want to play you anyway. I imagine they're proud to go home and tell their wives, 'Hey, Sadie, guess what, I just lost 20 bucks to the national champ.' "

Reflecting on his checkered career in and out of the nation's pool halls, posh (like the grand ballroom of the Sheraton-Chicago Hotel where the U.S. Open championship is held) or otherwise, Mizerak said:

"There has always been the feeling in this country that kids should not go into pool halls because of the bad influence of the so-called bums that are hanging out. But I don't know, I learned a lot from talking to all those guys."

And what, he was asked, did he learn?

With a hint of a hustler's smile, he said after a short thought, "I guess I learned what not to do."

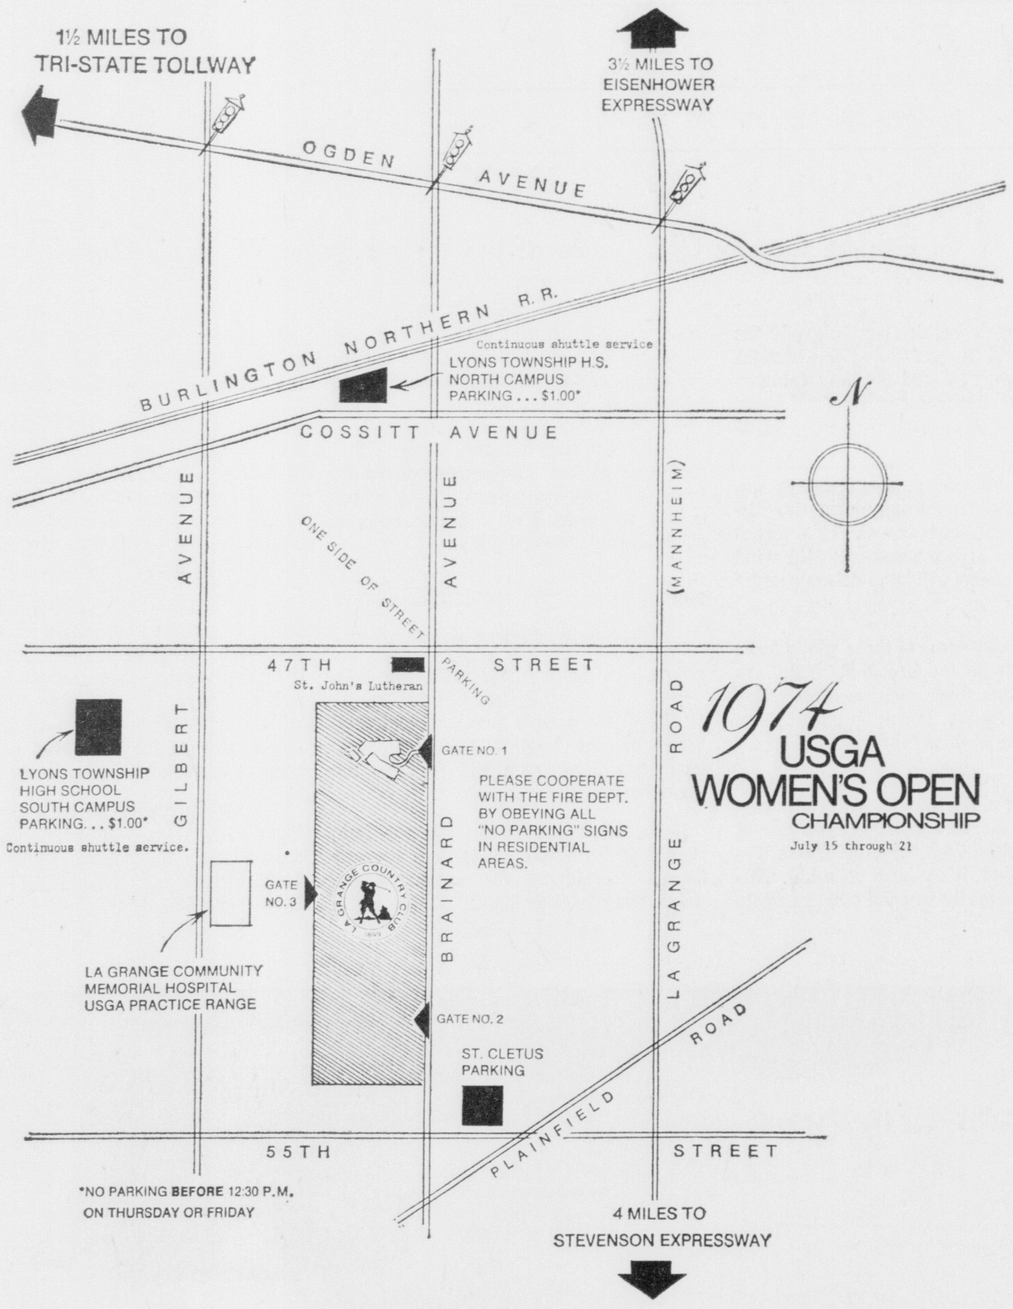
Route to U.S. Women's Open



All roads lead to the 22nd United States Women's Open Championship at LaGrange Country Club this week.

Golf fans from the Herald area are just 40 minutes away from the stately club which is celebrating its 75th anniversary this year with the first Women's Open ever staged in Chicagoland.

To watch the greats of the women's tour, all area fans need do is head south on the Tri-State Tollway, exiting on Ogden Avenue. Head east on Ogden, turning right on Brainard Avenue.

If you can't find on street parking, park at either of the two Lyons Township High Schools for only $1. Continuous shuttle service will be offered from both sites, but the parking won't be available until after 12:30 p.m. on Thursday and Friday at these school lots.

Practice rouunds are being held through Wednesday with daily ground tickets costing $3. Regular grounds tickets for the official tournament days — Thursday through Sunday — are $5.

Tickets are on sale at the gates of the LaGrange Country Club, one block south of 47th Street on Brainard Avenue in LaGrange.

Malecki scores 54

Connie Malecki carded a 54 for the first flight low gross score in the Arlington Associates Golf League action of July 11 at Old Orchard Country Club.

Arlene Runge used 16 putts to win the weekly event of low putts and also parred the seventh hole with a 20 yard pitch out of a trap on the right side.

Second flight play saw Lee Yelevich take low gross honors with a 62 and 16 putts for the putting event.

Dottie Hardy had a low gross of 67 in the third flight and along with Rose Marie Audet tied for low putts at 17.

First black champ

NEW YORK UPI — George Dixon was the first black man ever to win a world boxing championship when he beat Nunc Wallace, champion of England, at 113 pounds on June 17, 1890, in London.

Yanks rarely miss

No New York Yankee manager who has managed more than one year since 1921 has failed to win at least one pennant. Leading the list is Casey Stengel with 10 titles, Joe McCarthy with 8, and Miller Huggins 6.

Odd-Ball Tourney seeks softball teams

Area softball teams are invited to compete in the third annual Odd-Ball Tourney at Dugout Park in Trevor, one mile north of Antioch on Rt. 83.

The two-day affair slated for July 27-28, is unique in that a flip of a coin prior to each game determines whether the teams will play 16-inch or 12-inch softball. The team that wins the flip has its choice.

The tournament is a single-elimination affair with a full complement of 18 teams expected to vie for $400 in prize money. The tourney will get underway at 11 a.m. each day with the championship scheduled for 7 p.m. on Sunday.

For further information, call Tom Furlan at 414-862-9136 after 3 p.m.

Huber zips Hawks

Hersey's Bob Huber spun a nifty one-hitter and his Huskie teammates gave him plenty of hitting support in a 8-0 victory over Hoffman Estates Tuesday in summer league baseball action.

Huber allowed a scratch infield hit in the fourth while walking one and hitting another Hawk batter.

"We played a really good game," said Hersey coach Harv Foster. "We did everything right — we put everything together."

Huber was the beneficiary of a 17-hit Huskie attack, led by Roger Murbach's three-for-four, Dave Carey's two hits, and a two-run home run by Mark Knuttle.

Baird & Warner Realty opening up Scratch lead

Baird and Warner Realty increased its first place lead to 10 points over second place C. P. Floors last Friday night in Old Orchard Scratch League play.

The Bairds took six of seven from Miles and Miles Insurance even though Bill Miles carded a fine 39, his best of the year, good for the only win by his team.

The Bairds won four matches with even par by Bob Kronn, 36, and 38's by Bill Kleiner, Jim Kurtyka and Jim Douglas. With scores like that, it's little wonder that team is in first place.

Bob Burrows Chevrolet, lead by Shelby Stewart's 38, posted four matches won over C. P. Floors, good for six points. Jim Nolan was the only winner for the Floors group.

Jack Dyazba's 36 score inspired team No. 7 to four wins which was good for five points from Sauganash Corporation. Lone winner for Sauganash was Bill Hugo whose 35 was the lowest score of the evening.

Marty Kolar and Bob Lee carded 38's to lead Team No. 8 to 4½ points over Hussissian and Associates. George Johnson posted a 37 and the only win for Hussissian.

Winners of Titlist balls for closest-to-the-pin on par 3 holes were Ed Jackson on three, Shelby Stewart on seven, Frank Matyas on 11 and Tom Wallace on 14. A rather unusual night — not a deuce in the crowd!

Buffalo Grove to hold signup for boy gridders in August

The Buffalo Grove Boys Football Association invite all boys between the ages of 10 thru 14 to sign up for the 1974 tackle football season. The Bills, last year's Invitational Football League champs and also champs of the Widget area football programs, will have two registrations for the '74 season.

Boys can sign up at the Emmerich Park fieldhouse on two Saturaays — August 3 and 10 from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. Emmerich Park is located at 150 Raupp Blvd. in Buffalo Grove. Registration for the Bills' traveling teams and park district teams will be held at this time. No registration fee will be required at the initial registration.

For those boys who will be on vacation or out of town at the time of registration, you can sign up with Coach Jim O'Heir at 535 Chatham Circle during the day. If you have further questions regarding registration, you can call O'Heir at 537-3844.

The Buffalo Grove Boys Football Association provides all equipment each palyer will need to compete in the tackle football program. The Bills will compete in the Invitational Football League and will also join the area Pop Warner Widget Football League.

Last year under the leadership of coaches Jim O'Heir, Roger Miller, Dick Porter, Ray Truelson and John Truelson, the Bills compiled a sparkling 9-2 season record. This year the Bills have expanded their program so that more boys can participate in the program.

Des Plaines Tennis Club defeats Elmhurst in West Suburban meet

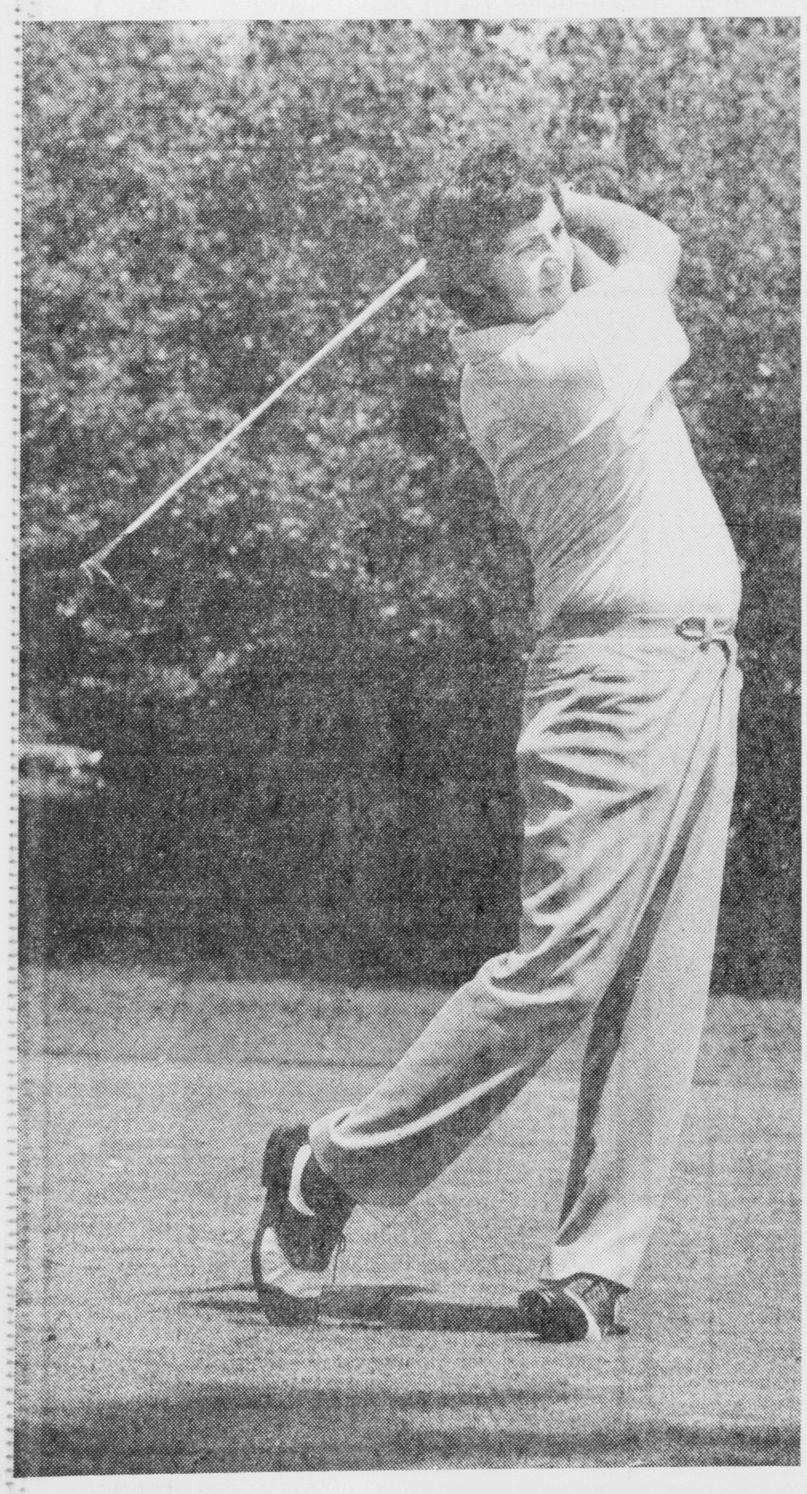
The Des Plaines Tennis Club won three out of their four team matches with Elmhurst on their home courts Saturday in the Northwest and West Suburban League. The Men's A team won 3-2 behind the fine playing of Laddie Birge, Dave Littel and Lindy Frakes. The Men's B team is now sporting a 4-1 record for the season and is tied with Arlington for the league lead.

Under a broiling sun, Dave Stege of Des Plaines battled Hal Grote of Elmhurst for two hours and fifty minutes before losing 2-6, 6-4, 7-5. Dan Wilson also had a tough match but was more fortunate in pulling it out of the fire 6-4, 5-7, 6-4. Roger King, tennis coach at Maine West, won his match 6-3, 7-5 as did Howard Pohl 6-2, 6-1. When it became obvious that Des Plains had won the match, the doubles team defaulted and the final score was 4-1.

The Junior boys continued to play excellent tennis by downing Elmhurst, 5-0. Mike Kopach had a big win by defeating Tom Benezra in a long, hard-fought match.

The Women's team ran out of steam and was trounced 5-0.

A major shakeup of the Des Plaines tennis ladder took place last week when Lindy Frakes moved to the top and Michael Mozdren took over No. 5 spot from Bill Gordon. Forty of the top tennis players vie each week for position while another 15 players attempt to get on the ladder.



MARIO VITALE, from Rob Roy, found the Rolling Green course tougher than most as he fired a pair of 82's to miss the cut in the Illinois Open.

Douglas Savings captures berth in Paddock Tourney

Although league leading Douglas Savings & Loan were held to a 12-12 tie with Kehe, Foy and Snelten Insurance, they clinched a berth in the Annual Paddock Tournament and will represent the Arlington V.F.W.

Second-place Hanlon Decorators held their position although they were beaten 14-10 by third place Kehe Motors.

Ideal weather did not seem to help the golfers Monday night as only five birdies were recorded. Three of them came on the par 5 sixth hole by Ralph Becker, Joe Plodzien and Pete Bodor. Bob Rokos birdied number 9 and Mel Erickson birdied 10.

Ralph Becker captured low gross honors with a 2 over par 38 while Bob Rokos and Wally Aronson shared low net with 31's.

Tom Burleson of the Seattle Supersonics, who stands 7 feet, 4 inches, will be the tallest player in the National Basketball Association next season.

8th Olympiad's 1st day's action at Palatine track

The Eighth Paddock Olympiad will begin next Tuesday with the first day's events, softball and tennis, being held at Lions Park Recreation Center, 411 South Maple, in Mount Prospect.

Eight park districts are scheduled to send their outstanding athletes in the 8-to-13 age group to the two-day event. It was learned recently that one park district, Hoffman Estates, will not compete this year.

The track and field portion of the Olympics will be held on Wednesday at the Palatine High School track. An earlier Olympics story published in the Herald incorrectly supplied the address of the Palatine track.

The correct address is 150 East Wood Street, Palatine.

Palatine and Mount Prospect will co-host the Olympics with Steve Whittier, the director of the Palatine park district, acting as official host.

Rain dates for the Olympics will be July 25-26.

The World Football League people tried.

They came up with an offer they felt O.J. Simpson would have to listen to, but he didn't, and in a way that explains why he was perfectly ready to do his hitch on the picket line the other day even though nobody in the NFL has any better rapport with management than he does.

The WFL made its pitch for O.J. Simpson in early February, right about the same time it went after the Miami Three — Larry Csonka, Jim Klick and Paul Warfield.

This all took place in the Newport Beach, Calif., area. O.J. didn't happen to be there at the time, but that didn't matter because his representative, Chuck

O. J. Simpson

Barnes, was, and Barnes is an exceedingly able young man.

As President of Sports Headliners, Inc., he handles the business affairs of such people as Mario Andretti, Bobby Unser, Calvin Hill and Gail Goodrich as well as Simpson.

"We would like to duplicate the type of arrangement for O.J. Simpson that Bobby Hull was given by the World Hockey Association," the WFL people said to Barnes. "If he's interested, he can have it."

Bobby Hull is being paid $2 million by the Winnipeg Jets. A substantial amount of the money was put up front, and there were some other nice inducements along with the cash also.

O.J. Simpson signed a new contract with the Buffalo Bills last year, one presumably for the rest of his football "life," but this $2 million the WFL was offering now would easily double his salary with the Bills.

There would be a few other "fringe benefits," too. O.J. pretty much would be allowed to choose the team with which he wanted to play.

Chuck Barnes felt he knew what O.J. Simpson's answer would be. He felt it would be no, and he was right.

"We still got the job to do in Buffalo," said Simpson, when Barnes relayed the WFL's offer. "I don't think I can leave the players."

It is a commonly accepted fact that those athletes who make their living in professional sports are in them basically for the money and not the pleasure, but when it came right down to the crunch, and the WFL professed its willingness to put the money on the table, that wasn't O.J. Simpson's first consideration at all.

Two million bucks is a lot of money, even to the NFL's Player of the Year, but sometimes there are overriding factors, and one of them is the genuinely intense feeling Simpson has for his fellow teammates.

It goes deep, and if you know O.J. Simpson, you know he isn't paying mere lip service. He means what he says and does.

He does not belong to the NFL Players Association although he has said he is supporting it during the current strike.

He also has said he thinks the Bills' rookies should have the opportunity of reporting because if they don't now, they may lose whatever chance they have to make the club.

When some of the Bills' players asked O.J. to come up to training camp last week at Niagara Falls, N.Y., and help them, he said he'd be more than happy to do so.

He was ready to walk the picket line with the rest of them but he was beseiged for his autograph so much by fans who had made a special trip over from Buffalo just to see him, that it was nearly impossible for him to picket.

Strike or no strike, if I were the Buffalo Bills' management I wouldn't feel too upset with O.J. Simpson. He has proven himself — on the field as well as off.

The strike will be over sooner or later and O.J. once again will be the club's No. 1 meal ticket, the one man who eventually can lead them to the Super Bowl.

I've got a hunch Ralph Wilson, owner of the Bills, feels the same way.

Cooney 'roast' slated for Aug. 7

A "roast" of Neil Cooney will be a featured part of the dinner program at the Neil Cooney Open golf tournament scheduled for August 7 at the Nordic Hills Country Club.

Tee-off times have been slated between 7 a.m. and 12 noon. Cocktails are set for 7 p.m. with dinner following at 8 p.m. The Cooney Cup will be presented to the winner of the tournament during the evening festivities.

The emergency room facilities at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, will benefit from the third annual golf outing. In 1973, the hospital's building fund received a $1300 contribution from the proceeds of the event.

Cooney, an Elk Grove community leader, is the former president of the Bank of Elk Grove. He is now president of the Plum Grove Bank in Rolling Meadows. Presently Vice Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the medical center, Cooney previously served on the Lay Advisory Board for five years prior to being elected a trustee.

Reservations for golf, $15 per person, and dinner, $17.50 per person, may be made with the fund raising office at the hospital, 437-5500, extension 453.

Social Security and you

Reports, contributions for domestics due by July 31

Quarterly wage reports and Social Security contributions for household workers are due by July 31.

People who pay a household worker $50 or more in cash wages in any three-month quarter must send a report of the wages, along with the Social Security contribution, to the Internal Revenue Service within one month after the end of the quarter.

Quarters are January-February-March, April-May-June, July-August-September, and October-November-December. Wage reports and Social Security contributions for the second quarter of 1974 are due by July 31.

People who employ household workers may file the wage report on a form available at any Internal Revenue Service Office — "Employer's Quarterly Tax Return for Household Employees (for Social Security)."

The Social Security contribution for a household employe is 5.85 per cent of covered wages, and the employer pays a matching amount. It's acceptable if the employer pays the full 11.7 per cent contribution.

Social Security contributions help build retirement, disability, survivors, and Medicare protection for workers and their families. People who employ household workers can get a free copy of the leaflet, "Social Security and Your Household Employe," from their local Social Security office.

The Arlington Heights office, which opened just two years ago, is located at 120 W. Eastman. Phone 255-7512, toll free, for more information.

My claim for disability benefits was turned down in spite of the fact that my doctor won't let me go back to work. Do I have to hire a lawyer in order to get what I've got coming?

When a claim for disability benefits is denied, the dissatisfied applicant is urged to get a complete understanding of the basis for the denial. Sometimes it is because he did not work long enough to be insured by Social Security; sometimes it is because we expect the applicant's condition to improve before the required one year is up; sometimes it is because we believe from the medical evidence in the file that the condition is not so severe that it prevents "substantial gainful activity." Any applicant has the right to have his case reconsidered. That involves a re-examination (by people not involved in the original decision) of the original claim, original evidence and any new evidence you care to submit. You may employ an attorney to represent you but there is no requirement that you do so.

I'll be married this summer and I don't know what to do about changing the name on my social security card.

After your marriage you should call, write or visit the Arlington Heights Social Security office and ask for a change of name card. Fill it out and turn it in along with your old Social Security card. A new card with your old number and your new name will be issued to you.

Backgammon

3 kinds of moves set basis for game

by OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

(Fourth of a Series)

There are three kinds of moves at backgammon. The first is moving the men around the board corresponding to the numbers on the dice. In doing this White and Black move in opposite directions, each striving to bring all of their men into their home or inner table so that they may begin bearing them off.

Entering men from the bar is the second type of move. When your opponent hits a blot by landing on a point where you have only a single man, that man comes off the board and is placed on the vertical bar in the middle of the board. On your next roll of the dice, the first thing you must do is bring that man in on a point in your opponent's home table that is not occupied by two or more of his men. At the start of the game you can do this by rolling a 1, 2, 3, 4 or 5 on the dice, since the opposing 6-point is the only made point.

As the game progresses, strategy dictates that both White and Black will make points in their home tables, thus making it more difficult for a man on the bar to come in. Suppose White has a man on the bar. If the numbers on the dice he rolls correspond only to points made by Black in his home table (6, 5, 4), White simply losses his entire roll. Of course, if either number lets him come in, White may choose to come in on either point.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

West blind to bid and play

There are none so blind as they who will not see. Today's West appears to have been outstanding in that respect.

His blindness started with the bidding. He didn't have even one jack in his hand, but he wasn't vulnerable and he did hold 11 cards in two suits and a void in spades.

Probably he should have bid right away over South's four-spade bid. Certainly he should have acted after East doubled four spades. A four-notrump call at that spot would clearly have asked East to bid a suit. It could not be Blackwood. East would have obliged with five diamonds and made either five or six depending on the opening lead.

Anyway, West passed and opened a club, East won and promptly led the nine of diamonds.

At this point West's blindness really showed up. He did not see that East had made a very unusual play and that he had a chance to win the trick with his 10 spot and lead a club to give East a ruff and set the contract. He just let East hold the trick.

After this there was no defense. South lost a trick to the ace of trumps, but that was all.

Canadian issue will mark 100th birthday of phone

The Canadian Post Office on July 26 will mark the centenary of the invention of the telephone by Alexander Graham Bell with the release of an 8-cent commemorative stamp.

Designed by Ray Webber of Toronto from a photograph taken by him, the new issue depicts three telephone models — the Gallows Frame, conceived in Brantford, Ontario in 1874 while Bell was visiting his parents, which was the world's first telephone and was introduced as an experimental model in Boston in 1875; the Pedestal or Daffodil, introduced in 1900 and regarded by many people as symbolic of all telephones; and the Contempra Phone, the first telephone whose conception, design and manufacture is entirely Canadian.

A total of 26 million stamps are being printed in four-color lithography by Ashton-Potter, Ltd. of Toronto. Marginal inscriptions, including the designer's name, appear on the four corners of each pane of 50 stamps. The total production will bear general tagging.

The Canadian Post Office has declared Brantford the site of official first-day cancellations but collectors should send their requests to The Philatelic Service, Canada Post Office, Ottawa, Ont., Canada K1A OB5. Stamps will be affixed at this point and the orders processed and shipped in bulk for canceling and return to the customer from Brantford.

Make your remittance by international bank draft, payable to The Receiver General for Canada, in Canadian funds in the amount of the stamps to be affixed plus a 15-cent service fee for each cover to be affixed with less than 50 cents postage.

SPEAKING OF cruise ships, if you'd like to be on one but are stuck here at home like the rest of us, why not give your spirits a lift by beginning a topical collection? Try collecting stamps depicting your special interest — ships, flowers, animals (or one animal — dogs, cats, horses, etc.), seashells, architecture, medicine, maps, airplanes, space, Scouting.

Topical collecting is a refreshing change from collecting stamps by country and challenges your creativity in mounting them on album pages or in picture frames.

Ten thousand topical collectors from 90 countries belong to The American Topical Assn. Information on membership and services the association provides is available from Karl L. Keldenich, Box 1062, Milwaukee, Wis., 53201. Include a self-addressed, stamped envelope with inquiries.

Employers not required to give lunch, breaks

Law for today...

Does state law require an employer to provide his employe with a lunch and/or coffee break?

Generally not. However, state law makes provision for lunch periods for minors and teachers.

A friend of mine told me to ask my attorney to discuss his fee for a certain case before hiring him. Is this good advice?

Yes. The Illinois Bar Assn. urges clients to discuss the question of fees at the outset. Although an attorney might not be able to give you a specific answer, he will be able to give you an approximation of his fee. The fee may vary according to the analysis and research which is needed, but is unforeseeable at the outset.

I'm curious. What is the order of succession to the Office of President?

The order of succession is as follows: Vice President, Speaker of the House, President pro tempore of the Senate, the Secretaries of State, the Treasury, Defense, Attorney General, the Interior, Agriculture, Commerce, Labor, Health, Education and Welfare, Housing and Urban Development, and Transportation.

Are child support payments deductible on state and/or federal income tax payments?

Child support payments are not deductible on Illinois State or Federal Income Tax Returns by the parent paying child support. However, the supportive parent may be allowed to claim an exemption.

Festival stamps available for collectors

This year will see many more festival stamps issued to commemorate everything from historical society celebrations to industrial fairs. All in limited editions for the benefit of philatelists and document collectors.

Among the early comers are communities that experienced a successful issue in 1973. The Holmes county, Ohio, Antique Festival; the Week of the Young Child; National Pig Day; Lexington and Concord 1776, and Pioneer Days. A wooden nickel is included with each order for the Holmes County Antique Festival stamps.

All are 50-stamp sheets printed on a dry-gum stock to protect against damage in storage. Each sheet is provided with serial numbers from 1 to 5,000 for the philatelist or numbered plate block collector.

Priced at $1 per sheet plus 25c postage and handling, all stamps are sold on a first-come — first-served basis.

Holmes County Antique Festival: Stamps P.O. Box 1974, Millersburg, Ohio 44654.

Pig Day Stamps: Pike County Historical Society, P.O. Box 501, Pittsfield, Illinois 62363.

Lexington and Concord 1776: Bicentennial Stamps, 300 West National Road, Vandalia, Ohio 45377.

Pioneer Days: Stamps, P.O. Boxes 229 and 242, Berlin, Ohio, 44610.

No date has been set for the release of the stamp issued to commemorate the Week of the Young Child.

BUREAU OF THE MINT

Mrs. Mary Brooks, director of the Mint, is extending Penny Redemption Month in response to numerous requests from children.

Children and others turning in $5 or more in pennies through the summer will be eligible to receive the Treasury Department's special citation. Names to be cited for the award should be sent to Mrs. Mary Brooks, Director of the Mint, 55 Mint Street, San Francisco, Calif. 94175.

Response to the Mint's drive to return the penny to circulation has been overwhelming. Banks and retail establishments throughout the nation are actively supporting the campaign and encouraging their customers to bring in pennies for deposit or exchange for other currency or merchandise.

There is no shortage of a supply of pennies and the price of copper has retreated, closing at 99 cents a pound on June 18, 1974. During the past 15 years, the Mint has poured out 70 billion pennies and 30 billion of these are estimated to be in the "hidden" category. These are pennies the Mint is asking citizens to put back to work in the market place.

ONE BILLION pennies returned to circulation will save the taxpayers $10 million.

Lindsay—from politician to guest commentator

NEW YORK — Former Mayor John V. Lindsay, one of the great celebrities of television politics, ironically will become a TV commentator this winter when he makes his debut on ABC's new morning show, "A.M. America."

The dashing Lindsay, 56, who has long resembled a matinee idol from Hollywood's golden age, will be perfect for the role of special guest commentator when the two-hour show premieres Jan. 6. He will chat and interview subjects ranging from sports and politics to the arts and society.

A B C's announcement Tuesday comes one day after Lindsay agreed to play a bit role in an upcoming Otto Preminger film, "Rosebud." Lindsay will play the part of a U.S. senator.

What seems ironic about ABC's choice of Lindsay is that the TV politician finally has given into the medium that help create him. NBC might just as well sign Sen. Edward Kennedy to be the next cohost of the "Today" show. Both have "TV star" quality.

John V. Lindsay

Television in review
by Frank S. Swertlow

Lindsay is to politics and broadcasting what athletes are to football and sportscasting.

But the choice of Lindsay raises some interesting questions about television and politics in America.

- In this day and age how much of politics is really show business?
- To what extent will Lindsay exploit his performance for his political career?
- And why should the American public be exposed to an ambitious politician like Lindsay, who can easily use the daily or weekly exposure to further his own career in a way that cannot be examined by his opponents?

The TV journalist — of which Lindsay will be called — has long achieved the status of stardom. Walter Cronkite has often been suggested as a possible candidate for the U.S. Senate. He has declined.

But would Lindsay, who tried for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination and failed? ABC may well be promoting Lindsay for president or the Senate in a way they never expected.

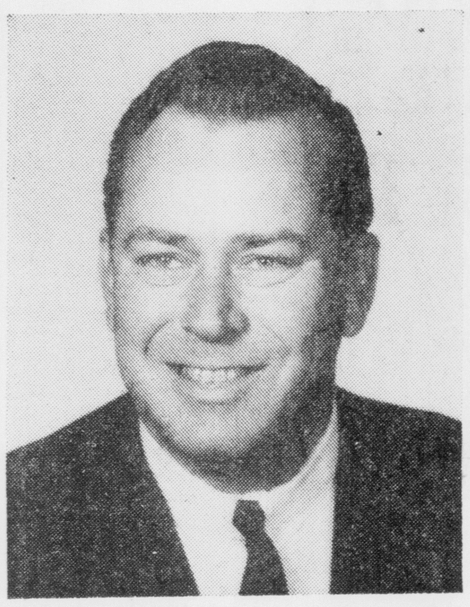
The REAL ESTATE Professionals

OF THE NORTHWEST SUBURBS

Featuring this week:

Robert L. Nelson Real Estate

The new 18,600 square feet ultra-modern Robert L. Nelson Real Estate office and building at 120 W. Golf Rd. in Schaumburg, due for completion in late fall of this year. The building will include 16,000 square feet of leasable office space.



Robert L. Nelson
President

"Since 1958, we have attempted to develop a reputation of solid integrity and professionalism in real estate," said President Robert L. Nelson. "We have always, and will always, be dedicated to the concept of individualized customer service which we feel is so important during the emotional and economic transaction of a home sale and listing.

"We are proud to be serving the great northwest suburban Chicago area, a market that has established itself as one of America's most desirable living and working areas.

"Since beginning business, we have sold over 7,500 homes in the northwest suburban area including exclusive Nelson sales plus sales in cooperation with MAP and Barrington Multiple Listing Service. Since introducing our new sales training program we have increased our sales staff by adding 15 new sales representatives in the last 6 months.

"Our new Schaumburg sales office will be completed in 1974. We are looking forward to a concentrated sales effort in the Schaumburg area with a professional sales staff of people who can answer the growing real estate requirements of that rapidly expanding area.

"We have become a member of the All Points Relocation Service, a nationally famous organization that specializes in locating and selling homes to people relocating anywhere in the United States.

"We're proud of our business record and we're optimistic about the future of real estate in the northwest Chicago suburbs, a great area for wholesome family living and working enjoyment."

Getting out of a lease early costs money, says expert

Mobility is the bright trophy that renters and people who choose to remain unmarried, like to keep on display for their homeowning friends.

Then if a promotion or better job opportunity comes along or if the "right" girl or fellow comes into their lives and they decide to move on, they can make a nice clean break.

But, in reality, seeking the way out of an apartment lease — especially before the expiration date — without paying out the balance of the lease isn't that easy.

Changing apartment residents in midstream is usually a cumbersome and costly proposition, advises property management experts in the Chicago area.

"Letting somebody out of a lease requires a lot of administrative paperwork. Quite frankly, sub-leasing or re-leasing costs money," explained William D. Sally, vice president of Baird & Warner, Inc. and general manager of the real estate company's property management division.

The disruption of people moving in and out and the accompanying damage to halls, elevators and apartments are other reasons that building owners and managers don't encourage subleasing and re-leasing, he said.

However, if the situation is such that trying to get out of the lease ahead of time seems necessary, the first step should be to check with the building's agent or owner. They will advise you of what steps must be taken.

"A number of the units we manage change tenants each year through re-leasing, so we are quite familiar with what's involved and what apartment dwellers should know about," Sally said.

To begin with, there's a significant difference between subleasing and re-leasing. Under a sublease assignment, a new tenant agrees to take over the unexpired portion of your lease. But you still remain legally responsible for the rent, any damages and following the building rules. If the new tenant defaults in any way, the building owner can collect from you.

"Most owners will refuse to give permission to sublease for short periods, because of the damage caused by two move-ins and move-outs and because they don't want a transient tenant who may stay only a few months," Sally said. "We think subleasing assignment is a poor method for both tenant and owner, which is why Baird & Warner will consider only re-leasing."

In re-leasing the building manager writes an entirely new lease for a full term for the new tenant. Only after this new lease is negotiated and signed does the building manager cancel the unexpired portion of your lease and you are then freed from all further responsibility, your security deposit is returned and the new resident has the obligation to meet the lease terms; i.e., pay the rent, abide by building rules and pay the security deposit.

"This is a much cleaner, neater way of handling things, and it fully protects both the owner and the new and former tenant," Sally noted.

However, whether the apartment is subleased or re-leased, three elements are involved.

1. The management agent or owner must agree in writing with the tenant to the transaction; this is clearly stated in the original lease.

2. The present tenant is responsible for finding the new tenant, while the manager or owner has the privilege of accepting or rejecting him. Obviously, the prospective new tenant has to meet the same requirements as any other tenant of the building in terms of credit, family size, job stability and so on.

3. Because of the administrative processing involved, the present tenant has to pay the management agent a fee, usually $50, against the security deposit or charge for handling the procedure, plus any penalty charges.

"Many tenants misunderstand this part of releasing," Sally said. "They think that written permission is all that's needed, and then they're surprised when they learn money is involved. But someone has to pay for the extra work involved in terminating a contract ahead of time and installing a new tenant on all records. Since the present tenant is asking for the change, he has to pay the bill."

This charge varies from building to building, any may be a flat charge of $50 or a percentage of the unexpired rent.

Another item that may vary is the rent asked under the re-lease. Assuming that normal market conditions prevail, apartment demand is high, and that rents aren't frozen, the manager or owner may ask a higher rent on a re-lease after the initial lease term has expired.

Or, if market conditions are soft and the vacancy rate is higher than normal, the agent may be accommodating and write the re-lease at the rent level of the former lease. If he estimates that demand for this type of apartment will increase in the future, he can write the re-lease so that the old rent applies for a part of the lease, and then a higher rent comes into effect for the rest of the term. This is known as an "escalator."

The actual terms of re-leasing are often subject to negotiation between the present tenant, the new tenant and the management agent or owner. The point is, Sally emphasized, that the present tenant remains liable under the old lease until a new contract is signed.

"Tenants who are extremely anxious to terminate their present lease may use incentives to attract prospects to take over the apartment, particularly if they are competing with the owner who may be trying to rent vacant units," the Baird & Warner executive said. For example:

- Some tenants will agree to leave something in the apartment to increase its liveability, such as curtains or draperies, a shower curtain, or some carpeting. One tenant scaled a deal by leaving the bar stools.
- Others will assign their security deposit to the new tenant. This may amount to several hundred dollars and in effect gives the new tenant a lower monthly rent.
- A third incentive is cash to the prospective new tenant. Depending on the amount, this may be cheaper than paying the balance of the rent on the unexpired lease.

"However, before he pays or gives anything to the prospect, the present tenant should make sure his candidate is acceptable to the manager and the deal is signed," Sally said.

There's one other situation where subleasing or re-leasing may be involved, and that's in the case of death. Unless a death clause has been inserted in the lease, the estate of the deceased is liable for the rest of the rent. The executors may then seek to negotiate a sublease or re-lease with the building manager.

In concluding, Sally noted that getting out of a lease isn't difficult or even unpleasant, but it always costs money.

McALLISTER EQUIPMENT CO., Alsip, has announced the opening of their second full-service equipment distributor facility in Des Plaines at 2700 S. Mount Prospect Rd. The building was opened with 15 major lines of construction, road building and yard equipment. With nearly 30,000 square feet of space under one roof and a three-acre yard, the facility is one of the largest sales, service, parts and rental distributorships in the Midwest.

New McAllister facility now open in Des Plaines

L. J. Dougherty, president, has announced the opening of a second full service McAllister Equipment Co. location in Des Plaines at 2700 S. Mount Prospect Rd.

The firm, based in Alsip, is a distributor for 15 major lines of road building, construction and plant equipment. The new facility is located three minutes from either the Lee Street or Elmhurst Road exits of the Northwest Tollway adjacent to O'Hare Airport.

With nearly 30,000 square feet, the distributor center is one of the largest sales, service, parts and rental facilities in the northwest suburban area. The building includes five service bays, each of which is capable of servicing the largest road building and other equipment; a paint and a steam cleaning room, and a large parts department.

The service department takes up two-thirds of the building. With 26' ceilings, enough overhead space is provided to work on any equipment sold by the company. Use of large capacity overhead cranes also helps mechanics handle the largest and heaviest machine components with a minimum of difficulty. In addition, a modern machine shop can fabricate or repair parts that would otherwise have to be replaced or require long delays to rebuild.

McAllister-Des Plaines parts department carries parts for all 15 lines of equipment they sell. On the outside, the nearly two-acre yard provides inventory space for many pieces of equipment for immediate delivery.

The company sells equipment from Michigan, Link-Belt, Euclid, Dynahoe and 11 other manufacturers.

House siding loans rank top in home improvement

Aluminum siding, trim and gutters slipped from 34 per cent of all modernization loans in 1973 to 22 per cent. So far this year, they double any other home improvement category.

This is revealed in an analysis of Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan Association lending activity reported by executive vice president Thomas A. Kinst.

He noted that 1974 runner-ups in loans were kitchens, 11.1; heating, 10.4; air conditioning, 9.6; recreation rooms, 8.88; and bathrooms, 8.14 per cent. Falling into a miscellaneous grouping were landscaping, fencing, side drives and patios. These represented 12.5 per cent of the sampling.

Most significant gains in Kinst's figures were recorded by recreation rooms. The 8.88 for 1974 is more than four times greater than all of 1973, and six times better than January through April a year ago.

Kinst is inclined to think it is because people are beginning to stay home more. This may be due partially to the rising costs and questionable supply of gasoline, he declared, adding:

"It used to be that people planning extensive trips leaned toward bigger and more expensive cars, thus making more pleasant the hours they expected to spend in them. Now, with stay-at-home becoming more popular, better recreation facilities in the house makes sense.

"Probably, the upsurge in garage lending reflects the gasoline situation as well. Families who look toward keeping their cars longer may be inclined to "stable" them better. Through April, five times as many garage loans were issued as during the comparable 1973 span."

All home improvement loans under FHA File One, Kinst said, require no money down. A seven-year repayment plan applies on borrowing up to $5,000. No mortgage documents need to be signed, nor are title search or recordings necessary.

Need to drill a water well? Here are some suggestions

Whether you need a water well for your new home or need to replace an existing well, the National Water Well Association (NWWA) has some "well shopping" suggestions for you.

First, determine your home's water supply needs. A rule of thumb might be 70-80 gallons per day per person for suburban living; 100-120 gallons per day for farm living. Your county agent, municipal engineer, well drilling contractor or pump dealer can help you determine your precise needs.

Finding a competent drilling contractor is the next step. Besides the yellow pages and newspaper ads, an excellent place to get information is from NWWA headquarters, 88 East Broad St., Columbus, Ohio 43215. NWWA will be happy to give you the name of one or more reputable contractors in your area; one who enjoys a good reputation, uses good equipment, high quality materials and modern techniques.

A good local contractor belongs to his state and national associations and learns through them the most modern methods. He understands and appreciates the need for better and safer wells, and has a technical knowledge of the efficient and proper use of ground water.

Regardless of how you pick your contractor, here are a few basic guidelines which will help insure that you receive the best possible water supply for your money:

- Check in advance on best possible water sources.
- Insist on a written contract. Read the contract carefully, and if it is not clear, consult your attorney before you sign.
- Insist on full coverage insurance.
- Compare all itemized costs and materials rather than the "per foot" charge.
- Determine what, if any, local, city or state permits for drilling a well are required and who secures the permits.
- Locate the well properly from the standpoint of sanitation and convenience.
- Insist on both a certified log of the well and a staement of work performance and materials used.

For additional information on how to shop for a water well, write to NWWA headquarters and ask for their free pamphlet "When You Need A Water Well."

REALCO cites June's tradesman

Rick Biggerstaff of Wauconda has been selected June "Tradesman of the Month" by Realty Co. of America, Inc. (REALCOA). This award is given each month to an employe of one of REALCOA's suppliers/subcontractors. Efficiency and productivity are the determining factors.

Rick Biggerstaff specializes in the installation of floor tile and is employed by Vinci Flooring, Niles.

Biggerstaff will receive a multi-band, duo-power radio. Vinci Flooring will receive a plaque commemorating the citation.

REALCOA initiated the "Tradesman of the Month" Award five years ago as a means of promoting and honoring craftsmanship, efficiency and cooperation among the tradesmen working on its projects. Each month a new "Tradesman" is selected, and the twelve monthly winners become eligible for a major annual award given at a banquet attended by representatives of unions, municipal officials, members of the press and REALCOA officials.

NIREB sponsors three-day course in Kansas City July 30-August 1

"How to Manage a Real Estate Office Successfully," Course 1, will be presented by the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers (NIREB) in Kansas City, July 30-August 1. Co-sponsored by the Real Estate Board of Kansas City, the course will be held at the Alameda Plaza Hotel.

Course 1 is an intensive three-day session exploring the techniques of leadership, the transition from sales associate to sales manager, development of office procedure and motivation of sales personnel and implementation of cost control accounting systems.

"How to Manage a Real Estate Office Successfully" is one of many educational opportunities offered by the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers. With 30,000 members, NIREB is the largest professional organization affiliated with the National Association of Realtors and acts as its educational arm for Realtors and Realtor-associates. In addition to courses, NIREB sponsors an on-going program of periodicals, texts, sales aids and audio-visual programs for Realtor-members and the public interested in real estate brokerage.

Registration for "How to Manage a Real Estate Office Successfully" may be made through the NIREB Registration Coordinator, 155 E. Superior St., Chicago, Illinois 60611 or further information may be obtained from Ralph W. Scott, Real Estate Board of Kansas City, 1009 Baltimore, Kansas City, Missouri 64105.

Dixon land development offers unique club concept

A country club for the workingman and his family?

That's the newest wrinkle in recreational land development, according to Richard Neumann, president, Neuland Development Inc., whose company has four recreational projects underway across America.

"We gear our projects for the workingman — the family making around $15,000 to $18,000 a year and who wants and is entitled to as much recreation for his family as money can buy," Neumann points out.

Prior to 1960, country clubs were exclusively for the very rich. In fact they were designed to keep out the middle income and lower income groups. High initiation fees, high annual dues and high prices for services, such as food and drinks, meant only the well-to-do could afford membership in a country club.

Executives in the $50,000 to $100,000 income brackets invested in their own club to assure themselves a place to play golf, swim in a private pool and dine in their own clubhouse.

Neumann borrowed all of these ingredients but brought the price down by tying it all into the land development movement which was taking place in America in the early 1960's. Today he has refined the technique and is pleased with the response he is getting to his "country clubs for working people."

Neumann locates his communities approximately 100 miles from a major metropolitan center. In Dixon, about 100 miles from Chicago, a family can buy a piece of property — around one third of an acre — or as much as one and a half acres, with monthly payments just like you buy a car. The project is called New Landing for the Delta Queen — named after the famous river boat.

At the end of four or five years the family owns the piece of real estate. But — and this is the important but — in the meantime his family enjoys all of the amenities including boating and swimming and fishing on private lakes. Private tennis courts are planned. There is an adjacent 18-hole golf course.

Soon there will be a million dollar four-story clubhouse — a replica of the original Delta Queen river boat.

It's all part of the recreation package available when buying a piece of land.

Says Neumann, a veteran of ten years in the recreation land industry: "We find a small percentage of families have enough capital to build themselves a second home right away. The majority, however, have to wait a few years before they can accumulate the money to build. But in either case, no one is penalized from using the country club facilities immediately."

Neumann points out that in the last two or three years there has been still another refinement in the concept. "So many workingmen and their families are into camping these days," Neumann points out, "that we have set aside camping areas at New Landing for the Delta Queen and hundreds of families come out each weekend — and sometimes for several weeks at a time — and camp out while enjoying all of the other facilities."

Neumann says people cooped up all week in crowded factories or apartment houses or in crowded suburban communities are the ones who most want to enjoy the outdoors when the weekend rolls around. But now even the campers can enjoy the luxury of private lakes and a private clubhouse and swimming pool.

"I feel the whole phenomenon can be traced to our pioneer ancestors," Neumann says. "There are two factors inherent here. Everyone has a great desire to own a piece of land — to own his own property in America, and in America almost everyone has that opportunity — not just the rich."

And although families are not as free to roam and live off the land as many of our ancestors did, they do like to be at least part-time explorers and adventurers and get out into the country and away from urban congestion as often as they can.

Who are these Americans who are giving their families country club living on a modest income?

Neuland's computers sorted through all the thousands of families who have already bought property or indicated they will shortly.

This profile emerges:

The typical buyer is 42 years of age. His wife is 40. They have two children — usually teenagers. Very few have been to college. Most have a high school degree. In many instances the wife works to help supplement the family income. The husband generally is a skilled worker or a junior executive.

There are, of course, many exceptions. Well-to-do automobile dealers, doctors, dentists, engineers and insurance company executives, all can be found at one of Neuland's projects. And there are older couples, retired, living off fixed incomes and savings, who buy not for the activities at these projects but rather the serenity to be found in living in the country.

In addition to the project in Illinois, Neuland has one outside of San Francisco and another in the Sioux Falls-Omaha marketing area, and another in central Michigan, serving the greater Detroit area.

"It's a new day, a new way of living for the working man in America," says Neumann, himself the son of an immigrant who settled his family on the Illinois prairies, saved his money and bought his family a piece of land.

Now Neumann feels every working man in America can do the same.

Truly fine living in a home designed and built for you.

Lincoln Engineering buys in Elk Grove

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates has announced that Lincoln Engineering Co., a wholly owned subsidiary of McNeil Corp., has recently purchased a new one-story, 12,500-square-foot building located at 939 Lee St. in Elk Grove Village.

The purchaser will use the facility to house their Midwest District Sales and Distributions operation.

George T. Pappas of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates was the sole broker in the $195,000 sale transaction. Attorney representing the buyer was John Chandler of Walsh, Case and Coale and Howard Harris of Ash, Anos, Harris and Freedman represented the seller.

THE ENTIRE first floor of Le Ronde, the new three-story office building now open in Des Plaines, is devoted to lobby and landscaping with offices on the second and third floors. Offices face the atrium and are enclosed by glass for an uninterrupted view of the courtyard. Leasing and management agent is the Commercial Investment Division of Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors.

Le ronde office building has circular courtyard

A three-story office building featuring a 45-foot high open circular courtyard has opened at 950 Lee St. in Des Plaines.

Designed by Architects Erickson & Stevens, the new Le ronde office building is approximately 30,000 sq. ft. and incorporates open ground floor parking for 80 cars. The steel, wood and concrete building is finished in buff, decorative fluted blocks. It features a free standing glass elevator surrounded by a 60 foot circular courtyard. In addition to flowers, the courtyard includes an atrium of hanging live plants and hanging seats suspended by chains.

The building's entire first floor is devoted to lobby and landscaping with offices on the second and third floors. Offices facing the atrium are enclosed by glass providing an uninterrupted view of the landscaped courtyard.

Ideal for use as company regional sales offices or professional suites, they will be furnished with vertical louvered drapes, wall-to-wall carpeting, acoustical drop ceilings and are fully air conditioned. Daily maintenance service is also provided.

The new Le ronde building is located close to the business center of Des Plaines and the commuter railroad station as well as offering quick access to the Tri-State tollway, Kennedy Expressway and other major highways.

For information on leasing, contact the leasing and management agents: the Commercial Investment Division of Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors, 734 Lee St. in Des Plaines or call 298-5055.

Homefinders' Streamwood office sold over one million during May

The Streamwood office of Homefinders Realtors sold more than one million dollars worth of homes in May, announces Jerry Ladner, manager of the office.

The Streamwood office is located at 12 W. Streamwood Blvd. The office was recently expanded to twice its original size.

Ladner, who was recently elected president of the Streamwood Junior Chamber of Commerce, also announces that the male sales associates defeated the women in the month-long "battle of the sexes" to see which group would obtain the most listings containing the Buyer Protection Plan. The Buyer Protection Plan, an exclusive feature with Homefinders, provides for the repair or replacement of essential home components for one full year from the date of the closing of the sale.

Ladner, at the age of 29, is the youngest member of the Homefinders managerial team. He attended the University of Illinois and received his Bachelor of Science degree in electrical engineering from Chicago Technical College.

Jerry is a member of the Elgin Board of Realtors. Before joining Homefinders, he was an electrical engineer for Hallicrafter, Inc. in Rolling Meadows. Jerry and his wife, Joanna, reside at 7 Big Oaks Road in Streamwood with their two children, Deborah Jo, and Stephen. Ladner is now treasurer of the Hanover-Countryside PTA. He is also a former financial director of the Streamwood Republican party.

Automated mortgage info made possible by ABA

Residential mortgage money may be more readily available to financial institutions beginning this month with the initiation of the Automated Mortgage Market Information Network Inc. (AMMINET), it was announced here today by the American Bankers Association (ABA).

AMMINET is a computerized central information system that is now in nationwide operation. Taking nearly two years to develop, the network gives investors the opportunity to communicate offers to buy and sell residential mortgage investments.

The ABA is a co-sponsor of the AMMINET project along with the U.S. League of Savings Associations, the National League of Insured Savings Associations, the mortgage Bankers Association of America, the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. and the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"Banks are now being urged to join with other secondary mortgage market participants," said Paul J. O'Brien, chairman of the ABA's Housing and Real Estate Division and senior vice president of the Security Pacific National Bank, Los Angeles. "For the first time, there is a central data bank of information on secondary mortgage markets that should help to free-up residential mortgage money available to prospective home buyers."

Cost for a subscriber to join the program is $400 a month. Desk top computer terminals are used for communication between subscribers and the central computer.

"AMMINET is not an exchange," O'Brien observed. "The actual buying and selling transactions are conducted privately, usually by phone, outside of the system."

The scope of this project may ultimately be measured in the billions of dollars to potential homeowners. Statistics of the Federal Reserve Board statistics show that loans secured by real estate comprise the largest private debt pool in the nation.

The latest Fed figures show total mortgage debt at approximately $620 billion. Of that amount, banks carry approximately 18 per cent of the total or about $114 billion.

Homefinders' managers attend two-day ERA seminar at Sheraton

Managers of Homefinders Realtors attended a two-day seminar sponsored by ERA, the national electronic network of real estate brokers.

The seminar was held at the Sheraton-O'Hare, according to Robert L. Zaun, president of Homefinders.

ERA, or Electronic Realty Associates, facilitates the purchase of homes for persons moving from one section of the country to another. Homefinders is the exclusive ERA broker in the northwest suburbs, making it easier for persons in this area to sell their homes to transferees moving here from any part of the United States. All of this is performed through electric photo-scanner and facsimile equipment, providing "living room shopping" for persons seeking a new home in another state.

The managers of the 10 Homefinders sales offices are Russ Landt, Antioch; Kay Napolitano, Arlington Heights; John Kerwin, Buffalo Grove; Joan Ingve, Lake Zurich; High McGarvey, McHenry; Ruth Walker, Mount Prospect; Charles Oswald, Palatine; Ann Bartlett, Roselle; Gina Seick, Schaumburg; and Jerry Ladner, Streamwood.

Now celebrating its seventh anniversary, Homefinders maintains its executive offices at 235 N. Northwest Highway in Palatine.

Bolger manager attends seminars

James Dustan of T. A. Bolger, Realtors recently attended a seminar in Chicago on "How to Manage a Real Estate Office Successfully" and in Denver, one on "Leadership and Communications in Management."

James Dustan

These courses emphasize management, motivation, productivity, communication, leadership and are accredited towards the designation of C.R.B. (Certified Residential Broker).

Jim Dustan is vice president and manager of T. A. Bolger, Realtors Rolling Meadows office, located at Kirchoff Road and Meadow Drive in Rolling Meadows.

Three more industrial parks added

Among the industrial parks which have been developed in the Northwest Suburbs are the following projects, which were not included in the Herald's July 25 industrial section map: Centex Schaumburg Industrial Park in Schaumburg; Barrington Road Northwest Tollway Industrial Park in Hoffman Estates; and 4B Farm and 4B Industrial Park, both in Streamwood.

Expandable homes provide opportunity for future growth

In planning ahead for your family's future shelter needs, the increasingly popular "expandable" home deserves your serious attention.

An expandable home is basically a completed first level and an unfinished second level designed for finishing at a later date, when family requirements demand more living space and the family budget permits the additional expense.

In many cases, the expansion is completed by the handyman homeowner over a period of years, room by room. This is made possible because the builder roughs-in the important elements at the time of original construction. Such a home is the Model 1400 at The Greenfields of Cary, by Standard Pacific-Illinois Corp.

The Greenfields' Model 1400 is a one-and-one-half story, basic two-bedroom home with an attached garage. Priced from $44,500, the Model 1400 features a 15'8"x14'11" living room, kitchen, 10'5"x13'5" master bedroom, 10'5"x11'0' second bedroom, full bath, and separate dining room which may be enlarged to contain a full pantry and a convenient storage closet, when the basement option is chosen.

The second level, or expandable portion of the home, has been semi-finished with subfloor, insulation, heat and plumbing drain lines fully installed, and water lines roughed-in to the subfloor and the electrical supply brought into a second level junction box.

The Model 1400 at Greenfields also has an optional family room located on the first level and an attached two-car garage.

Other homes at The Greenfields of Cary are the Model 1100 ranch, Model 1200 bi-level, and Model 1300 tri-level. All are available with fireplace, basement, central air-conditioning, and include a two-car garage. All have aluminum exterior siding, and fully-improved sites, with sidewalk and driveway.

Construction nearly complete on Castle Woodworking plant

Centex Homes Corp. will soon complete construction of a 30,000 square-foot component fabrication plant on Rt. 64 adjacent to St. Charles. The facility will be operated by Castle Woodworking, a company subsidiary.

The plant will manufacture roof trusses, interior and exterior wall panels, stairs and deck porches among other items. It is expected to open late next month.

Two other buildings are also under construction on the 57-acre site. They include a 20,000 square-foot storage warehouse for home appliances and a 3,000 square-foot garage for the maintenance of trucks, cars and tractors.

Will Liebow, regional vice president for Centex Homes, said the move brings all the company's manufacturing capabilities under one roof and provides the company with greater quality control and an improved ability to maintain balanced inventories.

Until now, a small percentage of these components and materials were produced at mini-shops located on-site at five of Centex Homes' eight developments in the Chicago area and at a 10,000 square-foot plant in Elgin.

The plant will manufacture a combined total of 100,000 interior and exterior wall panels and roof trusses annually. (There are 23 different sizes of walls, measuring anywhere from two to 20 feet in length, on the average single family home.) The plant will employ 15 people.

Castle Woodworking will be managed by Albert J. Maki of Centex Homes Engineering Department in Palatine. Prior to joining the company late last year, he was vice president of the Systems Division for Avco Community Developers.

NOW!..... Exclusive NHIS Guaranteed Home Protection Plan... Helps Buyers and Sellers!
GUARANTEED NHIS HOME

How the NHIS Guaranteed Home Protects You!

An NHIS Guaranteed Home is a resale home which has been inspected and warranteed by National Home Inspection Service, Inc. Since its founding in 1968 NHIS has inspected over 10,000 homes and is acknowledged to be the country's foremost independent home inspection service.

The NHIS Inspection Warranty includes: 1. The CENTRAL HEATING SYSTEM and its components. 2. The CENTRAL COOLING SYSTEM and its components. 3. The PLUMBING SYSTEM and its components. 4. The ELECTRICAL SYSTEM and its components. 4. The ELECTRICAL SYSTEM and its components. 5. The structural soundness and absence of water penetration of the ROOF. 6. The structural soundness of the EXTERIOR and INTERIOR WALLS, CEILINGS and FLOORS. 7. The structural soundness of the FOUNDATION. 8. The structural soundness and the absence of chronic water penetration of the BASEMENT.

Should NHIS fail to detect any defect in these major structural mechanical and electrical elements of the house, NHIS will be liable to the home owner for payments up to $25,000.00. Undetected defects, which cost in excess of $100.00 to repair or replace, discovered within either eighteen months of the inspection date or twelve months of the closing of the sale of the home will be covered by the NHIS Inspection Warranty.

Who Makes NHIS Inspections?

Extreme care is exercised by NHIS to secure highly qualified professional inspectors. All NHIS inspectors are carefully screened and selected on the basis of their educational and professional experience. Each inspector is fully trained by NHIS to perform inspections employing proven detection and evaluation techniques pioneered and perfected by NHIS. Inspectors are continually updated on the latest developments in the home construction maintenance field by the NHIS technical training staff.

What is included in the NHIS Report?

Each customer is presented with the copyrighted NHIS CONFIDENTIAL INSPECTION REPORT which includes: ● The NHIS Inspection Warranty. ● A Thorough Evaluation of the major elements of the home. ● A Certificate of Termite Inspection. ● Exclusive NHIS Homeowner's Information Guide which contains invaluable information on preventive maintenance, cutting heating and cooling costs, fire prevention, home security and other related items.

Benefits to the Home Seller

The NHIS inspected and warranteed home is more attractive to the prospective buyer. In addition, the NHIS Guaranteed Home Protection Plan provides important protection for the seller against any law suit brought by a disgruntled buyer since the prospective buyer is apprised of the true condition of the property before the sale. Since the Warranty is effective as of the inspection date, it also protects the home seller against major repair expenses during the interim between the inspection date and the actual date of closing.

Benefits to the Home Buyer

The NHIS Guaranteed Home Protection Plan provides peace of mind for the home buyer by revealing the exact condition of the home to be purchased and by assuring that the home buyer will not incur any major unforeseen expenses for repairs for a period of one year after title is assumed from the previous owners.

Old paint can be removed with tools or chemicals

There are many articles written telling you how to put new paint on. The National Paint and Coatings Association thought you might want to know how to take old paint off! Here are various types of paint removing methods with a short description of each:

Propane torches are relatively inexpensive and simple to operate. The fuel used is propane gas and is available in replacement tanks. Coatings are removed rapidly with the propane torch, but care must be exercised not to scorch or burn the surface. If the surface is scorched, remove scorched area by sanding.

Electric paint removers are much safer to use for paint removal than the propane torch. The tool is placed on the coated surface, then pulled over the coating slowly, followed with a scraper to remove the softened paint. The heating element is the same as in an electric appliance. This tool is excellent for removing paint from small surfaces such as window sashes and frames, and outdoor furniture.

Paint and varnish scrapers are often called wood scrapers. These are popular tools used to remove old paint and smooth the surface. They have a wood, metal or plastic handle with a sharp cutting blade mounted on the end. This allows it to scrape old paint and varnish from floors, furniture, window frames, and sills.

Putty knives range in size from 1¼" to 2" in width. The blades are either flexible or stiff models. Razor blade scrapers are tools which hold either single edge or double edge razor blades. They are excellent for light scraping work.

Generally, "wet-type" chemical solutions, called paint and varnish removers, easily and efficiently accomplish the job of paint removal. They are applied by brush, allowed to soften the film, and then the old coating is removed with a scraper. There are two basic types of chemical paint removers.

Solvent based paint removers are relatively inexpensive to use and fast acting, but tend to be toxic and flammable. When in liquid form, they are used for flat surfaces only. Liquid solvent paint removers evaporate from the surfaces quickly. The semi-paste version is used on vertical and flat surfaces, and evaporates more slowly than the liquid solvent remover.

Methylene chloride remover comes in a semi-paste form and is usually nonflammable. It is relatively lower in toxicity than the solvent-based paint removers. Some contain detergents and other chemicals which make them water rinsable.

Thinning often changes the color of the paint slightly. Therefore, thinning should all be done at one time. Most popular types of thinners include mineral spirits, turpentine, linseed oil, alcohol and lacquer. They are not only used to thin, but to clean equipment after the job is completed.

Robert W. Fish named head of firms Illinois Division

Robert W. Fish, corporate vice president of Kaufman and Broad, Inc., Los Angeles, has assumed responsibility for the company's Illinois Housing Division, it was announced by E. S. Rosenfeld, K&B president.

Fish moves to Chicago from Boston, where he organized and directed the company's New England Division during the past two years. Prior to spearheading the company's entry into the New England market, Fish took over the Northern California Division in 1968 and built it into the company's largest U.S. housing operation.

A native of Midlothian, Fish attended college in California and come up through the production side of the housing business, holding positions with major housing firms in southern California for eight years prior to joining K&B in 1967.

The Illinois Division has been concentrating its efforts on consumer relations for the past two years under the leadership of David M. Brown, a former city manager and consumer relations expert, who has accepted an executive position with the Robert H. Grant Co. in California.

K&B currently has eight communities under way in the Greater Chicago area: Meadowbrook, Stone Mill, Quail Run and Pine Meadow in Bolingbrook; Greens of Woodgate in Matteson; Carefree Condominiums and Barrington Square Villas in Hoffman Estates; and Provincetown in Country Club Hills.

Listed on the New York Stock Exchange, Kaufman and Broad is America's largest multinational housing producer. It currently has 78 communities under way in 59 cities in northern California, southern California, Illinois, Michigan, New England, New York, New Jersey in the United States; Toronto and Montreal, Canada; Paris and Marseilles, France; and Frankfort, West Germany.

Two additional U.S. divisions produce homes which meet the needs of people outside the conventional suburban market: the pre-cut housing division sells custom designed homes factory direct to owners of individual lots, and the high-rise condominium division produces quality urban housing. The Financial Services Group includes Sun Life Insurance Co. of America, Kaufman and Broad Asset Management, Inc. and International Mortgage Co.

NEWLY RE-ELECTED MAP Multiple Listing Real Estate Service President Ken Ruud (right) accepts the president's gavel from Vice President Stan Lieberman. Both were officially installed to office at the MAP installation banquet. Additional officers installed were Robert Proctor, secretary; Jack Holding, treasurer, and Directors Jack Keller, Margaret Christian, Marv Kamps and Wallace Busse.

U of I releases booklet on home heating, cooling

A new consumer-information non-technical publication, "Home Heating and Cooling With Electricity," has been prepared at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

The 12-page illustrated circular was issued by the UIUC Small Homes Council-Building Research Council and the Cooperative Extension Service of the UIUC College of Agriculture.

Topics include both central and room heating and cooling units, resistance heating, heat pumps for heating and cooling, design and operation, supplementary heating, controls and insulation.

"The real cost includes the cost of the original equipment, the cost of fuel to operate the system and the cost of maintenance and replacement of the equipment.

"A 'bargain' heating system will usually cost much more over the life of the house than one which is properly designed and installed."

Five factors should be considered in choosing a system: initial cost and estimated life, maintenance cost, convenience, design of the house and adaptability to summer cooling.

Heat pumps can both pump heat into the house in winter and out in summer. They operate much like a refrigerator, reversible to fit the season. But their efficiency goes down as outdoor air gets colder, and then supplemental heat — resistance heaters — are switched into the system.

Electrical resistance heating systems include furnaces or boilers where a resistance element replaces the conventional fuel-burning chamber, baseboards with resistance elements in them and heating cables built into the ceiling.

Cooling systems may involve a central plant with ducts to the rooms, or room coolers.

"A satisfactory and efficient electric heating system depends upon the proper design and installation of insulation," the circular emphasizes, pointing to saving both in initial cost because less capacity is needed and to lower operating costs.

Insulation of walls, ceilings, floors and basements is important, and windows and doors should have insulating glass or storm panels. Along with insulation comes need for moisture control by installing vapor barriers, use of humidifiers and ventilation.

All are detailed in the circular. Copies are 25 cents each from Small Homes Council-Building Research Council, or Cooperative Extension Service, University of Illinois, Urbana 61801.

Co-authors of the circular are Profs. Donald E. Brotherson and Henry R. Spies of the Small Homes Council-Building Research Council and Harvey J. Hirning and Elwood F. Olver of the UIUC department of agricultural engineering.

Approved real estate classes available at two locations

Prospective real estate salesmen on Chicago's north side and in northern suburbs have a choice of two locations to take courses in basic real estate transactions during August.

The 30-hour state-approved courses are among 10 being sponsored throughout Illinois in August by the Illinois Association of Realtors and Real Estate Education Co. of Chicago. Class sessions are part of a continuing program to enable prospective real estate salesmen to meet educational requirements at convenient locations for state licensing examinations, according to Richard Herb, vice president of Real Estate Education Co.

Ten three-hour evening classes will begin at the Winnetka Community House, 620 Lincoln, at 7 p.m. Monday, August 5. A five-day 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. course will be conducted at the O'Hare Concord Inn, 6565 N. Mannheim Rd., Rosemont, starting Monday, August 19.

Herb pointed out that the course in basic real estate transactions has been approved by the state superintendent of public instruction and by the Department of Registration and Education and also qualifies under the veterans' educational benefits programs.

Under new Illinois licensing requirements that went into effect last October, candidates for real estate salesmen's licenses must have completed a state-approved 30-hour course in basic real estate transactions prior to registering to take the state exam. Completion of the course in either Winnetka or Rosemont will enable students to register by the state's September 13 deadline to take the license exam in October, Herb said.

Tuition of $100 includes textbooks and other classroom materials.

Encom selects Homefinders to serve as marketing agent

Environmental Communities Corp. (Encom) has selected Homefinders Realtors as the marketing agent for its new single family home development, "The Gardens," in Prairie View, announces Allen J. Davis, president.

Encom thus becomes one of the first developments to retain the recently formed New Homes Division of Homefinders. This new division of the Palatine-based real estate firm is designed to provide marketing and experienced sales personnel to builders and developers in the northwest suburbs.

Richard Griggs, general sales manager of the New Homes Division, has been assigned to supervise the marketing of "The Gardens."

THE BRENTWOOD, a tri-level, is one of the six models of homes offered at The Gardens in Prairie View, a development of Environmental Communities Corp. The marketing agent for the development is the recently formed New Homes Division of Homefinders, a Palatine-based real estate firm. Richard Griggs, general sales manager of the New Homes Division, has been assigned to supervise the marketing of The Gardens.

According to Davis, the company has been accumulating property for several years in the Prairie View area, which is contiguous to Buffalo Grove. Davis is a former marketing executive in the home building industry.

Davis and his construction vice president, Earl Bowers, bring many years of construction and marketing experience to Encom. Encom will build 175 homes at The Gardens, located on Celia and Pauline streets at Wieland Road in Prairie View. The new homes include award winning bi-levels, tri-levels, and four bedroom colonial homes.

Six different homes are offered on three basic floor plans.

The Asbury, the bi-level, is priced at $44,990. The Brentwood, tri-level, begins at $43,500, and the Canterbury, colonial, $49,500. The fully improved lots vary from 60 foot to 90 foot frontages by 125 feet, and the homes have city sewers and water.

Buyers have their choice of carpeting colors as well as choice of floor and wall tile for baths and kitchen, all included in the price.

A sales force, experienced only with new homes, is being assigned by Homefinders to its New Homes Division. Homefinders will also assign all of its other departments, as well as its administrative staff personnel to help builders market their developments.

Homefinders has ten sales offices in Streamwood, Schaumburg, Roselle, Palatine, Mount Prospect, McHenry, Lake Zurich, Buffalo Grove, Arlington Heights and Antioch.

Robert L. Zaun is the president of Homefinders which maintains its executive office at 235 N. Northwest Highway in Palatine.

Cahill to head new Zurich-American unit

A new head office administrative and processing services department has been established by Zurich-American Insurance Cos. to determine standards and coordinate activities for field administrative and processing operations.

Donald R. Cahill of Mount Prospect, secretary, was named director of the new unit, which is designed to improve services to Z-A producers and policyholders.

Cahill joined Z-A in 1967 as director of methods. Prior to this, he was director of administrative services for CNA/insurance for eight years and had been associated with New York Life Insurance Co. and Firemen's Fund Insurance Co.

He attended St. Mary's College, Winona, Minn.

To construct building for Seagram Corp.

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates announces the sale of a 5½ acre site on the south side of Algonquin Rd., just east of Mount Prospect Rd. in Des Plaines to The Algonquin Group for $430,000. The purchaser will construct a two-story, 70,000-square-foot regional office and warehouse building for Seagram Corp. of New York on a long term lease basis.

Brokers were Donald W. Schaumberger and Robert A. Stone of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates representing the seller, Universal Oil Products and The Algonquin Group was represented by Edwin Tweedie of Strobeck, Reiss. Universal Oil Products was represented by house counsel and John F. Salmon of Ettelson, O'Hagan, Ehrlich & Frankel was attorney for The Algonquin Group.

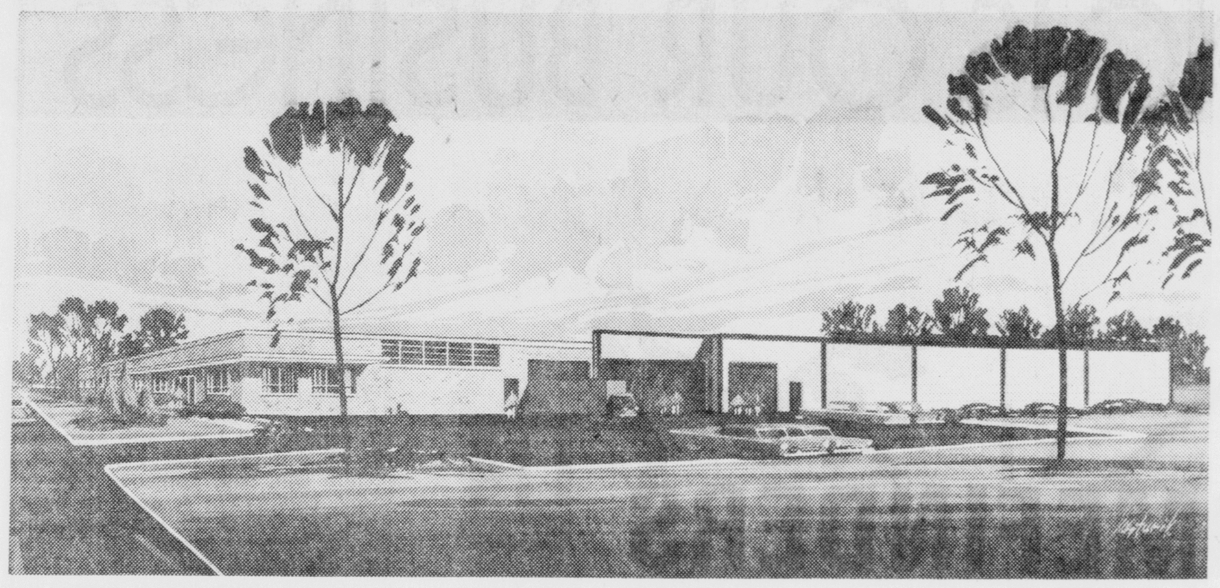
Centsable Inc. gets more space in new facility

Centsable Products, Inc., manufacturer of toys and Halloween costumes, masks and novelties, has moved from its present headquarters at 305 N. Eric Dr., Palatine, to a plant three times as large at 560 S. Hicks Rd., Palatine.

With 60,000 square feet of space for production, warehousing and offices, the new home of Centsable is a seven-year-old structure which has been trebled in size to satisfy the company's needs, according to Thomas A. Mayfield, President.

Pawlan Real Estate, Glencoe, negotiated the lease contract.

The company manufactures its Halloween products at a 20,000 square foot plant in Omaha, which was purchased last year. Centsable employs over 100 of its Palatine and Omaha facilities.



THE NEW PALATINE headquarters for Centsable Products, Inc., manufacturer of toys, Halloween costumes, masks and novelties, gives the company three times its square footage of the old plant at 305 N. Eric Dr. The new facility is located at 560 S. Hicks Rd.

Feed Flavors now fully occupies material warehouse in Wheeling Occupation by Feed Flavors, Inc. of Wheeling in its new 155,000 cubic foot raw material warehouse is now complete.

Included in the addition are rail facilities and complete bulk handling capabilities for 80,000 lbs. of dry carrier. The building program includes the addition of equipment for odor and dust control, as well as new packaging machinery to increase Pre-Pak capacity to 8,000 units per eight hours of operation. Additional storage space and production capacity makes it possible to warehouse greater amounts of raw materials and maintain larger inventories of finished products to expedite shipments.

Late in 1971 the company moved from Chicago to the new 13,000 square foot plant in Wheeling. Growth of domestic and foreign sales of 55 per cent in 1971, 37 per cent in 1972, and 50 per cent in 1973 necessitated the completion of the new addition several years ahead of schedule, explains Philip J. Ruedig, president of Feed Flavors, Inc.

8½ ACRE RANCH

Plenty of room for horses, dogs, cats and children in this 2000 sq. ft. ranch with asphalt shake roof, rough cedar siding and split fieldstone exterior. New and family-right, there are three bathrooms, cathedral ceiling in both living room and family room, a generous country kitchen and mud room, plus a knockout California driftstone fireplace, and a huge basement rec room with brick fireplace. This all adds up to a lot of luxurious country living for a modest $77,500.

CLASSIC COLONIAL

1 acre—a graciously carved wooden mantel over the living room fireplace, a large formal dining room, a generous family room open to a country kitchen with eating area, four very large bedrooms, a basement and an all-plaster, extra well constructed house make this a must for your home-seeking. It's air conditioned, too. In the $70's.

OUR NEWEST CONTEMPORARY ON ACREAGE

No photograph can convey the distinctive character of this glass walled, cedar sided, tri-level. Designed by Architect Guy Paradiso, it features fine carpentry, special woods and door hardware, a dumb waiter, cathedral ceilinged kitchen, and hot water heat, as well as air conditioning. There are two old brick fireplaces and about 2800 exciting sq. ft. of finished living space' with hundreds more on the deck and lawns of this unique home. $94,500.

'Second career' talks Aug. 19, 21

"Stop the world, I want to get back on" is the theme of "second career" conferences to be held Aug. 19 in Chicago and Aug. 21 in Schaumburg. The free-of-charge symposiums are sponsored by the Chicago Assn. of Commerce and Industry and Kelly Services. The Schaumburg session will be conducted in Room A at the Woodfield Shopping Center, and the Chicago meeting will be conducted at 72 E. Adams St. CACI offices. Both sessions will be held from 2 to 5 p.m.

Mary Manning, regional director of the women's bureau of the U.S. Dept. of Labor, heads the seven-member panel, which will consider opportunities for women planning to seek a second career outside the home. Jack Seelye, vice president of Kelly Services, will serve as moderator. Among the topics to be considered are where to look for a job; preparation for interviews; managing a household and career, and temporary work opportunities. Each participant will be given a free copy of the Second Career Guide. For additional information contact Kelly Services in Chicago, 786-1250 or Lloyd Norris of CACI at 786-0111.

Record set-aside pact

A record small business set-aside contract awarded by the U.S. Army's Harry Diamond Laboratories was recently made to E. Walters and Co. Inc., Elk Grove Village. Set-aside contracts are those traditionally awarded to small businesses by government agencies. The $1,644,370 contract calls for production of 695,000 metal sleeves, to be supplied to Raytheon Inc. said Ed Walters, president of the local firm.

NCR to be 'saluted'

Salute to Industry at the Sheraton Inn Walden, Schaumburg this week honors NCR Corp. A display in the Sheraton Inn lobby depicts the 90-year history of NCR and its transition from a manufacturer of mechanical cash registers to a manufacturer of computers and electronic business machines. The corporation, based in Dayton, Ohio, has 11 Chicago-area facilities, including an NCR education center in Rolling Meadows.

Middle execs in demand

Proven performers in middle and upper-level jobs — $15,000 to $20,000 salary range — are the most sought-after employes, indicates a survey recently conducted by members of National Personnel Consultants Inc. That's particularly true in the Chicago area, according to Bea Harris, president of Harris Services Inc., in Arlington Heights and a participant in the national survey. Employers are interviewing a wider range of management candidates than in the past, she said. She noted that the greatest shrinkage in the job placements and openings is for management trainees. Job opportunities are also weak in sales, marketing, advertising and public relations. Engineers are in great demand, as well as manufacturing and accounting fields.

A. O. Smith Corp. dividend

The board of directors of A. O. Smith Corp. declared a regular quarterly dividend of 19.4 cents a share of common stock. It is payable Aug. 15 to shareholders of record July 31. The company's A. O. Smith Harvestore operations are based in Arlington Heights.

No-fault bill would hke auto insurance rates: agents

Bodily injury auto insurance rates for many motorists in Illinois and nine other states would increase approximately 20 per cent if the Hart-Magnuson no-fault insurance bill pending in the U.S. House of Representatives is enacted, warns a local trade association. The measure is one of several auto insurance proposals considered in subcommittee hearings which began July 11 in Washington, D.C. and continued through Wednesday.

According to the Des Plaines based National Assn. of Independent Insurers, S. 354 (Hart-Magnuson Bill) would impose additional premiums on motorists. Arthur Mertz, executive vice president of the association said in testimony before the House Finance and Commerce Subcommittee last week, that he based the conclusion on an actuarial study by experts in the Allstate Insurance Co.

TEN STATES were studied and drivers divided into two categories: (a) those carrying average limits of bodily injury coverage, plus uninsured motorist coverage; and (B) those carrying the same coverage as A, plus an average amount of medical payments coverage or the no-fault coverages available if the state had a no-fault law.

The increases for motorists were as follows:

	Category A	Category B
California	±31%	±12%
Georgia	±51%	±26%
Illinois	±24%	± 2%
Kentucky	±16%	± 2%
Nebraska	±85%	±53%
New Jersey	±18%	±18%
North Carolina	±43%	±20%
Ohio	±38%	±20%
Pennsylvania	±33%	±15%
Texas	±87%	±24%

An earlier acturial study of the Hart-Magnuson bill by the firm of Milliman and Robertson, Inc. claimed that enactment of the measure would cut premiums in all states from 3 to 28 per cent. The study was relied on by proponents to promote the passage of the bill in the Senate on May 1. Mertz said the Milliman and Robertson report contained several major errors, which results in its overstatement of anticipated rate reductions.

SEC wants corporate data

by LEONARD CURRY

WASHINGTON — Although the stock market has been in a general decline for the past 18 months, the Securities and Exchange Commission has been prodding public corporations to provide more information that could be important to investors when they return.

New disclosure items range from the impact of the energy crisis to the ravages of inflation that have provided many companies with one-shot inventory profits. The SEC also has required more information on foreign taxes, reserves and leasing commitments.

In addition, the SEC is considering a rule that would attempt to make certain that stockholders actually receive a corporation's annual report. Under this proposal, voting at annual meetings would be held up if an unusually high number of proxies were in the hands of brokers, dealers, bankers and other institutions that hold securities for individuals.

THE EFFORTS of the SEC are not providing any stimulus to investors, who are concerned about Latin American style inflation, soaring interest rates, institutional domination of the market and general uncertain economic conditions.

One widespread practice the SEC is trying to uncover for the benefit of investors is the length of leasing contracts. Many corporations are leasing equipment such as railroad cars, computers, generators and heavy manufacturing machinery instead of buying it.

Some companies have been reporting their cash balances substantially higher than they actually are because of leasing. Since a leasing contract usually commits a company for years, the cash on hand may not be as liquid as it may seem.

The issue of liquidity has been especially important in recent months. Because of the bear market, few companies have been able to raise capital in the equity market and have been forced to turn more frequently to borrowing from banks, floating bonds and debentures at high interest rates for plant and equipment.

INVENTORY profits also have been troublesome for the SEC, which questions the "quality" of such earnings. Because inflation has raised the dollar value of raw materials and inventories in the plant, the eventual selling price was quite attractive. But when new raw materials were purchased, the price was substantially higher, thus reducing the effect of the previous "profit."

The SEC also has directed companies to disclose to investors how fast goods can be sold. If a company can sell products for higher prices at the same time that it is paying higher prices for raw materials, then its income benefits from inflation. To the contrary, slow-moving, big ticket items would be hurt by inflation.

The SEC also has been goading corporations to provide more interpretation of the company's position instead of disgorging columns of numbers for the investor to digest.

"Corporate officers and accounts often forget the investor is the owner and is paying management for its opinions," an SEC spokesman said.

IN THIS VEIN of expert opinion, the SEC also has directed companies to interpret the impact on profits and operating costs of higher energy bills and whether alternative energy sources that meet environmental restrictions are available.

Much of this information is turning up now in financial reports, prospectuses and 10-Ks — the unique disclosure statement that public companies must file with the SEC — and should surface to the bulk of the nation's securities investors in fiscal 1974 annual reports.

Thinking inflation endless 'can be danger'

The Illinois Business Review recently warned its readers against regarding inflation as endless.

"When the cliches of a boom come to be universally accepted, watch out. That is the situation now reached in discussions of inflation," economist V. Lewis Bassie said.

In an editorial in the current issue of the Review, Bassie cited "some frequent assertions: 'Inflation will be a persistent problem for years to come . . . It is so built into people's expectations that even strong countermeasures are ineffective . . . It will moderate somewhat from double-digit rates but cannot end in the foreseeable future.'

"The economy is operating outside the range of past experience," Bassie said, "in a situation that has a number of unique features." Bassie is a professor of economics and the director of the Bureau of Economic and Business Research in the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, which publishes the Review.

"The financial community itself is a major source of inflationary expectations," he said. "It broadcasts the philosophy of buy now because it will cost more later and borrow to do so because loans can be repaid in cheaper dollars . . .

"Although the talk is anti-inflation, what the banks are actually selling is credit. The more credit they sell, the greater the spur to inflation.

Bassie said business loans advanced about three times as fast as money in the past six months. "Some speculative borrowing was still going on, but there has been a major shift to distress borrowing," he said. "Emergency needs hit many illiquid concerns at tax time; they had to borrow at record high rates no matter how reluctant they were to do so. . .

"It is wishful thinking to look for permanence in a borrowing splurge aggravated by adversity . . . The situation is ripe for a fast reversal, though lags and cost-push will keep the over-all price trend upward for a while."

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Infection can cause weaknesses

My father is 79 and has been in the hospital for prostate trouble. He had a catheter tube put in place to drain his bladder. When the catheter was removed he developed a bacterial inflection.

After six weeks in the hospital he was brought home to recuperate so he would be strong enough for prostate surgery. However, he has no appetite and his weight has gone from 135 to 90 pounds. He has gotten so weak that he can no longer walk without the support of two people.

He is on antibiotics, vitamin pills and an appetite stimulant of iron and vitamin B-12. What do you recommend that would build up his body and strength to normal?

Any infectious illness can take away a person's appetite. The first step in his recovery is elimination of the infection, which, incidentally, occurs all too often with catheterization. You have to do the catheterization to drain the bladder, but you often have to pay a price for it.

The infection and the lack of eating combined are sufficient to cause weakness. Starvation from any cause will do this even in a healthy person. Of course, I have no way of knowing what other problems might be present in a man of your father's age and history. The problem of loss of appetite in older people is fairly common. Sometimes this is related to loss of taste, which can be helped part of the time with zinc. Other times it is related to the general health and age condition. It is important to pay attention to it if you want to keep these people healthy.

WHEN THIS problem arises it is wise to consider just what the person really likes to eat. Many older people get so they don't like meat or vegetables and have a sweet tooth. If you are not careful they won't be getting enough protein. But you can satisfy their sweet tooth and slip good protein to them at the same time. A good milk shake is fine. The milk provides excellent protein. You can prepare desserts fortified with added amounts of skim milk powder for additional protein and calcium.

Then you can get protein powder and add it to foods as a supplement. These can be included in a milk shake type of mixture. Add the protein powder to milk, add an egg if you like, flavor it with whatever appeals to the patient and sweeten it to taste. Desserts are not all bad. You can construct them to provide all the protein and calcium a person needs. This, combined with needed vitamins, will go a long way toward restoring the nutrition for older people who don't like to eat anything but sweets.

OF COURSE, if the kidneys are not working properly then you might have to go easy on the protein. But, your doctor could easily tell you about this.

With good nutrition, regular light physical activity is wise if the health will permit it. That may be walking short distances, even with help, to restore normal body function.

It is important that your father have adequate drainage from the bladder. If he has advanced obstruction from the prostate I'm curious about how this is being managed without a catheter. Without adequate drainage his health will not improve.

Holy Family names new nursing head

Ann J. Seday, formerly associate director of nursing of the 605-bed University of Illinois Hospital, has been appointed director of nursing for Holy Family Hospital, said Sister M. Amata, executive vice president.

As director of nursing service, Miss Seday will be responsible for all nursing service and patient-care departments at the Des Plaines hospital.

On the staff of the University of Illinois hospital for 13½ years, Miss Seday most recently was chairman of the hospital's administrative nurses committee, hospital planning and building committee. Previously, as assistant director nursing, she was responsible for developing and managing the department of nursing staff development and in charge of the center's orthopedic hospital. She also taught rehabilitation nursing to all nursing personnel.

A graduate of the University of Illinois Medical Center, Chicago, Miss Seday received a master of science degree in nursing, majoring in clinical psychiatric nursing with a minor in nursing service administration.

Miss Seday lives in McHenry and is a native of Waukegan.

There is no admission charge to the carnival to be sponsored by the 27 members of the Downtown Palatine Merchants Assn. Activities, including carnival and outdoor sale booths, will go on from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. each day. There will be a nominal charge for rides.

Bob Meyer, owner of Metal Unlimited, is chairman of the Sidewalk Days committee.

Publication studies pain killer

by AL ROSSITER JR.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 100 varieties of aspirin are offered for sale in the United States and the consumer is faced with confusing claims for their effectiveness, safety and cost.

The Medical Letter, a non-profit publication for doctors, evaluated drugs containing aspirin and concluded in its July 5 issue that all aspirin is not alike. But it said no important difference in painkilling effect between various formulations of aspirin has ever been established.

Aspirin tablets disintegrate in the stomach and dissolve primarily in the small intestine. The report said it is the rate the tablet dissolves that determines the rate the drug gets into the bloodstream.

"Improperly manufactured tablets may either be so tightly packed that they do not readily dissolve, or they may crumble before use," the Medical Letter said. "Crumbled tablets and powder may contain considerable amounts of degraded drugs. Although these pharmaceutical differences between tablets could have clinical consequences, it has never been proven in controlled trials of analgesic effect that one brand of plain aspirin is superior to another."

THE REPORT said aspirin has been implicated as a possible cause of stomach or intestinal bleeding and a few other disorders. To minimize such irritation, The Medical Letter said any aspirin tablet should be taken with a full glass of water.

Buffers are added to some aspirin tablets to decrease gastric acidity. But the Medical Letter said in the amounts present in most buffered formulations, buffers do not produce a meaningful decrease in acidity. It said food or a glass of water probably works just as well.

Nevertheless, the report said some scientists have found less gastrointestinal bleeding with buffered tablets, presumably because buffers tend to shorten the time it takes for the tablets to dissolve and there are fewer undissolved particles to irritate the stomach and intestines.

"It has never been established in patients with painful conditions, however, that there is a difference between buffered and non-buffered aspirin in time of onset of analgesic, duration or degree of relief of pain or incidence of gastrointestinal distress," the report said.

THE MEDICAL LETTER said Alka-Seltzer has a much higher content of buffering agents than other buffered aspirin tablets, and since Alka-Seltzer is dissolved before taken, the report said it is an effective way of taking single doses of aspirin.

But the report said the buffering capacity of Alka-Seltzer is obtained at the expense of a high sodium content. The sodium and bicarbonate, along with its cost, makes Alka-Seltzer "less useful than other formulations of aspirin for long-term administration as, for example, in patients with arthritis."

The Medical Letter said combinations of aspirin with other pain killers have never been proven more effective than aspirin alone and may cause a higher incidence of adverse effects.

PATHS lead parents of the handicapped

by KATHERINE BOYCE

The doctor entered the hospital room and pulled the curtains around the new mother's bed. The baby has a few "peculiarities," he said.

It was Diane Hartwig's first child and she had been in labor for two days. But after the doctor described the physical abnormalities of her new daughter she was numb with shock. She hasn't had a good night's sleep since.

The doctor was too busy to take time to console her. Her neighbors, not knowing what to say, said nothing. She had no one to turn to.

IN DESPERATION Mrs. Hartwig placed a want ad in the newspaper looking for other mothers of handicapped children. A few mothers called but most of the calls came from teachers of handicapped students at Kirk Center in Palatine. They gave her the strength and guidance to make it through the long, exhausting years of raising a handicapped child, and they told her about PATHS.

PATHS (Parents and Teachers of Handicapped Students) is a group that gives help and support to families with handicapped children. Many people, Mrs. Hartwig explained, don't really understand what life is like with a handicapped child. The parents, she said, need someone to talk to when they're at the end of their rope because their child has been crying for two days straight.

The suffering of parents of handicapped children seems to go on and on. At least it has for the Hartwigs. Looking back, Mrs. Hartwig is glad she found PATHS and as she puts it, "a shoulder to cry on." She is now president of the organization.

Doctors told the Hartwigs their chances of having another handicapped child were small. Their second child, a boy, was nine months old when the doctors discovered he has the same handicap as his older sister. They learned that the children's brain damage is genetic in origin and advised the parents against having any more children.

THE LITTLE girl, now five, spent months in classes at Kirk Center but her convulsions became more frequent and more severe. The Hartwigs recently placed their daughter in a residential home for handicapped children. Their house is quiet now and conversation between the parents, which had been infrequent, is now uncomfortably common. The eerie silence won't last. The little boy, now three, had his first seizure a few weeks ago.

Most people, by nature, shy away from the unpleasant realities of life. But parents like the Hartwigs don't want their friends and neighbors to shy away from them. They want them to understand and to accept.

"My neighbors don't ask me about my daughter. They think it would hurt me. I want them to ask me. When they don't it hurts me more," said Mrs. Hartwig.

"You can talk to your neighbors and their big deal is braces for their kids," said Mrs. Hartwig. She's angered by "outsiders" who think of mental illness as something evil and she particularly doesn't like the word "retarded," a word she has heard from other children on the block when her little boy gets on the school bus in the morning.

HANDICAPPED CHILDREN are often more loving than other children, said Mrs. Hartwig. "These children are not someone to be afraid of," she said. "They're still babies. They're just big babies, that's all."

"People in the world are not concerned enough about other people," said Mrs. Hartwig, and that's why it's so important for parents of handicapped children to stick together.

In PATHS, which is now four years old, "Parents found a need to talk to each other about their mutual interests which is handicapped children," she said. Parents of 165 students at Kirk are members.

When Mrs. Hartwig begins to feel sorry for herself, she thinks about some of the problems other parents in the group face. "I'm thankful that if I had to have handicapped children, they can still walk and maneuver. Some can't," she said.

PATHS performs many functions for its members. They're done quietly without being asked. Each year PATHS helps register new students for classes at Kirk. Parents come in with tears in their eyes, said Mrs. Hartwig. Some are in their 40s with grown families. The parents "made a mistake," she said, and now they have a 3-year-old mongoloid child to raise.

A MEMBER of PATHS shows the new parents around the school and tries to comfort them. They may exchange phone numbers and plan to get together. Sometimes members of PATHS make an agreement for guardianships, promising to take care of the handicapped children should his own parents die.

Handicapped children need all the things that other children need, said Mrs. Hartwig, and sometimes PATHS gives them a hand. For instance, PATHS invited clergymen to Kirk Center recently for a discussion on whether a handicapped child should be confirmed. Can a brain damaged child really understand God?, asked Mrs. Hartwig.

PATHS also has invited local dentists to Kirk to meet the children and talk to parents. "We want to know what dentists in the area are not afraid of our children," she said.

PATHS is there to comfort parents when children go into the hospital. Mrs. Hartwig remembers many nights when she rushed her daughter to the hospital when she had convulsions. "To tell you the truth if a parent doesn't have a child in the hospital once or twice a year it is quite unusual," she said.

Mrs. Hartwig would like to see PATHS set up a "hotline" service between hospitals and Kirk Center so someone could be in contact with the new parents of a handicapped child during those first critical weeks of adjustment. She'd also like to see bills passed for more money for special education and he hopes the state will approve a residential home for handicapped students located here in the suburbs.

BUT MOST of all Mrs. Hartwig would like to see more community awareness of the problems of the handicapped. She wants people to stop turning their backs.

There are an unbelievable number of handicapped children in the world, said Mrs. Hartwig, and it is important for everyone to remember that it could easily happen to them. "I wouldn't be surprised if there's one handicapped child on every block in Arlington Heights," she said.

Parents interested in the services of PATHS may call Mrs. Hartwig at 537-2410 or Margery Whitcomb, social worker at Kirk Center, 359-3100.

DIANE HARTWIG and her son, Paul. Handicapped children are often more loving than other children, says Mrs. Hartwig. "These children are not someone to be afraid of. They're still babies."

They bring families together

Renewed popularity in games hits

by FREDERICK M. WINSHIP

The games people play can score heavily in the effort to hold the American family together.

That's the message from a man who should know — James J. Shea Jr., a master gamesman who truly believes that the family who plays together stays together. The Milton Bradley Co., a leading games and toys firm which Shea heads, racked up gross sales of $146.5 million last year, nearly a 17 per cent increase over 1972, and a $180 million gross is expected this year.

"The increased sale of games has come about for several reasons," Shea, the father of five, said in an interview at the New York showroom of his Springfield, Mass. company. "Part of it is the fear of parents that the family is drifting apart, and the scare of the drug scene.

"FAMILY TYPE GAMES provide communication between children and parents, and parents feel they need this kind of involvement. This can mean board games, cards, physical games, puzzles or outdoor sports games — they've all had a tremendous growth in popularity in the past five years.

"Then there's inflation. Real income for the consumer is diminished and activities are being confined to the home more than previously, meaning more games and puzzles, which were a craze during the Depression. In England, where inflation is even more rampant, game sales have doubled within the year."

The popularity of games is in exact ratio to the amount of leisure available to society. Long working hours and religious prejudice against "frivolities" kept the United States generally ignorant of the pleasures of the gaming board until the Civil War. What board games could be bought were imported from Europe.

Milton Bradley, a Yankee printer worried by financial difficulties, played one of these imported games with a friend in 1860 and felt positively cheered. He decided to publish a game about life in the moralistic Puritan tradition, with "happy old age" rather than "ruin" as the goal. With this "Checkered Game of Life," the first American game manufacturing business was born.

"WE ISSUED A new three-dimensional 'Game of Life' to mark our centennial in 1960, but it reflected changes in American values," Shea said. "It is more about the material aspects of life — the chance to go to college, marriage, family, getting insurance, borrowing money, the chance to win a million dollars."

The materialistic trend was noticeable in games as early as 1901 when Parker Brothers, another leading game firm, introduced "Wall Street," and a few years later Americans were playing "I'm a Millionaire." Just as popular as strike it rich games are topical game subjects.

As early as 1911 there was a game titled "Sky, the Aviator's Game." Games about contemporary activities on the current market involve drilling for oil, land development and ecology, conservation of wildlife and roller derbies.

"But we stay away from games that capitalize on temporary political situations, such as Watergate," Shea said. "When they cease being news, sales stop."

SHEA SAID there was a time when people said television would kill family games. But tying board games into popular television shows has had just the opposite effect.

There are a slew of TV-inspired games including "Match Game," "The Waltons," "The Price is Right," "Password," "Beat the Clock" and "Concentration," a best seller for many years.

Most of the 20 major game companies have their own staff which develops new games and tests them for popularity. Some companies buy ideas from firms which are "think tanks" for new toys and games. The public submits thousands of ideas to the industry each year and a few are a success, bringing royalties to their inventors.

The most famous example of this was "Monopoly," devised by the late Clarence Darrow, who had been thrown out of a job by the Depression. The game was turned down by Parker Brothers when he first submitted it, but after he had sold a few thousand on his own, Parker bought it in 1935. Royalties made Darrow a millionaire.

"BUT WE STAY AWAY from unsolicited game ideas now," a Parker spokesman said. "We used to get 3,000 a year and maybe only five were worth publishing. It was expensive to screen these, so now all submissions are returned unopened."

The old standbys — chess, poker, cribbage, bingo, dominoes and checkers — are holding their own. Backgammon is enjoying a new popularity in both the United States and Europe. The fact that backgammon began as an Egyptian game 3,000 years before Christ proves that any game with a good balance of luck and skill has a future.

Arlington Juniors give $1200 in scholarships

Arlington Heights Junior Women's Club has recently awarded $1200 in scholarships to area residents.

Two of the scholarships are to be used by students to further their college educations. Celine Scully of Arlington Heights has received a $500 renewable scholarship to attend the College of St. Teresa in Winona, Minn. A $100 non-renewable scholarship was awarded to Janet Hall, who attended Forest View High School.

Four tuition scholarships were given to high school youths to attend workshops this summer in various fields.

Tom West received $60 to attend a Western Illinois University workshop in the field of ecology. Tom is from Prospect High School. Julie Sorgatz, from Arlington High School, received $125 to attend a music workshop at Ball State Teachers College.

Cheryl Zeken, from Buffalo Grove High School, received $125 to attend a speech workshop at Eastern Illinois University and Sylvia Vallejo, from Buffalo Grove High School, received $55 to attend a music workshop at Eastern Illinois University.

THE FINAL scholarsip of $200 to Harper College for a mother with dependent children, was awarded to Lynn Brayton, who is in the nursing program at Harper.

Funds for the scholarship program were raised by members of the Arlington club from such activities as the fall Mr. Ned's Circus Show and the spring Downtown Strutters Ball.

The women of Arlington Juniors invite area women under the age of forty to two coffees planned for July 31 and Aug. 15. These will be held in the Dunton Room of the Arlington Heights Public Library at 7:30 p.m. Anyone wishing to attend or to gain more information may contact Mrs. James Kendell, at 253-5738.

A family wedding party

Four sisters and three brothers made a complete wedding party when Mary Jo Dougherty and Jeffrey S. Smith of Arlington Heights exchanged vows and rings June 8 in Our Lady of the Wayside Catholic Church.

Mary Jo's sister Patricia was her maid of honor, with Nancy and Maureen Dougherty and Laurie Smith, the couple's other sisters, as bridesmaids. The groom's three brothers served him, Craig as best man and Dane Michael and Daryl as groomsmen.

Parents of the newlyweds are the Thomas L. Doughertys of 709 S. Kennicott Ave. and the Dane E. Smiths, 214 S. Kaspar Ave.

THE TWO O'CLOCK ceremony was followed by a reception at the Navarone Restaurant, Elk Grove Village. The couple then left for a week's honeymoon in Missouri.

They are living in the Brandenberry Apartments in Arlington Heights and working in town. Mary Jo is employed by Transamerica Insurance Group, Jeffrey with Northwestern Mutual life Insurance.

Both are graduates of Arlington High School. The groom also attended Northeast Missouri State College, Kirksville.

V-neck good buy

A good item to buy on sale this year and feel confident that it will still be in style next fall is a classic V-neck cardigan sweater that can be worn over turtlenecks and shirts. Consider a bright red color which more versatile than you may think. It goes with blue, gray, brown and black or a combination of these colors.

Bare is beautiful

If you have oily skin on your upper back or across your chest, try using a facial astringent on those areas. If you plan to wear something bare, use a peel-off facial mask on your chest for extra smoothness and to remove blemishes.

Mascara too heavy?

If mascara seems too thick after application, wash the applicator brush, shake it dry and "comb" out lashes. Be sure to wash brush after each use.

Here's how to announce an engagement in Herald

Paddock Suburban Living department is often called by those seeking information on submitting announcements for publication. We print the following for the reader's information and help.

The announcement of an engagement is always made by the parents of the engaged girl, who may either fill out an engagement form at our office or submit their own information along with a wallet sized picture of the bride-to-be.

If a wallet sized photograph is not available, a larger one can be used.

Bring or mail picture and copy to the Herald office in Arlington Heights or mail to Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill., 60006.

Parents not using one of our forms may either write or type the information.

If the announcement is submitted in hand-writing we ask that all names be printed to avoid errors. We also request that a phone number accompany the signature at the bottom of the announcement.

A glossy picture is preferable although a dull finish is acceptable. Color photos are used at the discretion of the editors depending on contrast and depth of color.

There is no charge for engagement pictures and announcements. Usually they will be printed within a week after reaching our office.

All announcements must be in our office at least a month before the wedding date.

Some mail-order 'adoptions' called shady

by Monica Wilch Perin

Big, sad eyes framed by an adorable child's face gaze up from the brochure, and below, a printed message announces the child's name and the fact that he or she needs your help.

All you have to do is send X amount of money each month which will be used for clothing, food and other necessities for this underprivileged youngster, who may then write to you as "adoptive" parents. You may even visit the child if you ever get to the Indian reservation, or Korea, or wherever it is that the child lives.

Fall for this appeal at your own risk — but don't feel guilty if you pass it up.

THERE ARE good charities and there are bad charities. Unfortunately, it is often extremely difficult to determine which is which. But the unknowns, the ones who come to you in the mail dripping with emotional appeal, they definitely should be checked out before youf-send money.

Such literature from an organization in Tulsa, Okla., purporting to help Indian children, has found its way into some homes in this area.

The Herald learned that the organization is registered with the Internal Revenue Service for tax exemption but nevertheless has a rather shady reputation.

According to a source in the Tulsa Chamber of Commerce, "what the organization really does is a mystery" because "they don't like to talk to newspaper reporters and they don't cooperate with the Chamber."

SUCH RETICENCE is not, of course, unlawful, but one must wonder why a charitable organization which spends a lot of money on mailed advertising and which pleads that more sponsors are urgently needed to support children, would be so reluctant for local newspaper publicity or Chamber representation.

It would also seem that any organization asking for handouts is not in a position to refuse to disclose what it does with the money. And anyone donating to any charity ought to demand not only a description, but proof of where the money goes.

The Chamber of Commerce spokesman said his office has received requests for information about this organization from people who had received literature, some of whom sent copies of the letters they got. In many of these letters, the spokesman said, the same child's picture was used but with a different name — in each letter a name identical or similar to that of the recipient.

IT WAS precisely such a ruse that hooked one local couple into sending money — "the child's name was the same as ours, so we decided to sponsor him."

According to the Chamber source, the organization uses the services of a large, well-known mailing list peddler in Tulsa.

The source emphasized that the organization has not been pinned with any charges of illegality in 10 years, despite probes by local newspapers. "They (the papers) can't get enough on the outfit to prove what they do."

But, he added, "personally, I wouldn't send money to them. They probably have extracted quite a lot of money from people, but how much gets to Indian children, I don't know."

CORRECTION: In an article published June 10, entitled "Hearing aid manufacturers come under FTC scrutiny," I recounted an incident in which a Rolling Meadows couple said they were sold a $400 hearing aid by a Dahlberg dealer. According to the dealer, Morrie Tychman of Precision Hearing Aid Center, Des Plaines, the aid was actually sold to them at a discount for $275.

The article dealt with charges of anti-competitive practices brought against hearing aid manufacturers in recent months by the Federal Trade Commission. The FTC found that the average retail price of hearing aids is $350, while dealers pay only around $100 to obtain the aids.

How do you tell when the watermelon's ripe?

The homeline

by Dorothy Ritz

It's watermelon time, and a reminder sent me into the file for a letter from Ethan Grant last September in which he suggested I hope the tip until "next season." Mr. Grant grew up in the hills of east Tennessee with his grandparents, where they "grew everything the land was willing to give in abundance." One of the crops was watermelon, "big, little, round elongated, plain and striped."

Mr. Grant went on: "So now — how to pick a ripe one. Grandpa picked only those with dead stems. Now, our melons are shipped in, which means they must be harvested when rather green. I always look for the brownest stems. And it seems never to have failed." All the other advice calls for assessing color, smoothness, sound and so forth, and so I hope all of us will be able to thank Mr. Grant for the best and simplest tip yet.

Dear Dorothy: I have such a time getting the outside of our large picture window clean, I am wondering if you have a trick up your sleeve you'd be glad to share. —Mrs. Hazel Federer

All of us have tried various methods, but I've concluded that the best of all was the one Elizabeth French concocted. She puts about half a cup of kerosene into a pail of tepid water, washes the window with a sponge and then dries it with crumpled-up newspaper.

Dear Dorothy: How can I get rubber cement out of blue jeans which I laundered? The stains are still there. —Janie Franko

Fresh rubber cement should be scraped off and then any residue can be removed by using a grease solvent like trichloroethylene or perchloroethylene. You have nothing to lose to try this treatment, even if laundering may have changed the stain somewhat.

Bridge entries due Aug. 1

For fun and fund raising, Northwest Community Hospital Women's Auxiliary is planning a Round Robin Bridge Tournament for fall. Play will start in September and continue monthly through April.

Prizes will be awarded in May with first prize being $50; second prize, $25; and third prize, a refund of the $10 entry fee.

There will be an afternoon group for members (who may have non-member partners) and two groups in the evening for couples and singles. All groups will have two tables per home, and refreshments will be limited to snacks and beverages. The afternoon group will meet the third Monday of each month and the evening groups the third weekend of each month.

ENTRY FEE IS $10 per person and all proceeds will benefit the hospital. Those interested in joining may contact Mrs. Clover Hardison at 593-0849. Deadline for entry is Aug. 1.

Tickets are also on sale now for the annual fall luncheon-fashion show benefit to be held Sept. 19 at Henrici's O'Hare Inn. Mrs. Mitzi Vavra, 253-3566 may be called for more information.

Mrs. Marcus heads NCJW

Mr. and Mrs. James Schneerman

Old country church setting for Cook-Schneerman rites

A 125-year-old church in a clearing 18 miles out of Bloomington, Ill., was the setting for the recent wedding of Martha June Cook of Arlington Heights and James Spencer Schneerman of Bloomington.

The Funk's Grove Church, near McLean, was chosen by the bride and groom because it is out in the countryside but near the twin cities where the bride and groom became acquainted.

Martha, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Cook, 234 S. Mitchell Ave., graduated from Illinois State University at Normal, and her husband is co-owner of Midstate Truck Plaza, also at Normal. His mother is Mrs. John F. Schneerman of Winfield, Ill.

The couple exchanged vows and rings by candlelight at three in the afternoon June 29. The ceremony was performed by the bride's uncle, George K. Cooper of Charleston, Ill., and a cousin, 14-year-old Lula Cooper, played a violin solo during the rites.

THE BRIDE CAME down the aisle in an ivory polyanza gown trimmed in Venise lace on the triple-tiered capelet neckline and a chapel train appliqued in the lace motif. She wore an ivory picture hat accented with rosebuds and carried Elegance carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath tied with ivory lace streamers.

Her sister, Mary Ann Cook, was maid of honor, wearing a halter styled gown of yellow, orange and green floral nylon over yellow taffeta. A shawl of the szme print covered her shoulders, and with the ensemble she wore a yellow picture hat. Her flowers were yellow daisies and starflowers carried in a green wicker basket.

Two bridesmaids, Connie Couri of East Peoria and Kandi Ramme of Pekin, were dressed identically to Mary Ann.

DOUG RAMME of Pekin served as the best man, while groomsmen were the bride's brother, Tim, and Pete Tansill of Mount Prospect.

A reception at Crestwicke Country Club, Bloomington, followed the wedding. Later the newlyweds drove to Chicago to stay overnight at the Regency Hyatt House and then left for a week in Wisconsin.

They are making their home in Bloomington.

Martha is a graduate of Arlington High School and has been teaching grade school in South Pekin. Her husband attended Iowa State University at Ames before going into business.

Lake Park teachers wed in a June 22 ceremony

Janis Ellen Lemein and Robert Joseph Goetz met at Lake Park High School in Roselle where both are teachers, Janis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lemein, Arlington Heights, and Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Goetz, Chippewa Falls, Wis., were married June 22 in Our Saviour Lutheran Church in Arlington Heights.

Their 5 p.m. wedding was both candlelight and double ring with Janis wearing a polyester jersey gown trimmed in beading. A headpiece of the same material held her fingertip veil, and she carried a cascade of white orchids and stephanotis.

Mrs. Dolly Watts, Wheeling, was matron of honor, and bridesmaids were the bride's sisters, Trudy and Sharon, and the groom's sister, Nancy. Their gowns were in blue polyester jersey and they carried bouquets of white, pink and purple flowers.

WILLIAM SCHUMACHER, Chippewa Falls, was best man, and Edward Kinsella, Elgin, Herbert Watts, Wheeling, and the bride's brother, Gregg, were ushers.

A buffet supper reception for 120 guests was held in the Arlington Heights Elks Club after which the newlyweds honeymooned three days at Lake Lawn Lodge, Delavan, Wis. They now reside in Addison.

The new Mrs. Goetz is a graduate of Arlington High School and Illinois State University, Normal. The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin-Stout.

July worst month for garden pests

Potting shed
by Mary B. Good

What's buggin you? As this is the worst month of the year for garden pest problems, I hope you're watching for outbreaks of vegetable spoilers before they become obnoxious.

I was patrolling the plot the other day, smug in the idea that it was totally invulnerable to much of anything because the soil is in top shape and the whole thing is methodically companion-planted. Then I saw the leaf hoppers disfiguring a sunflower, and bean aphids making that plant look like it was ironed on the "linen" setting.

"I'll fix you," I cursed and returned with a sprinkling can full of one and a half teaspoons of Basic H (detergent from Shaklee dealers) in five gallons of water — a drink for the aphids that Socrates would have appreciated. I applied tobacco dust after wetting the foliage on the sunflower for the hopper problem. In cases of leaf disfigurement, it is necessary to remove affected leaves and destroy them.

UP IN Minnesota the last few days for a Garden Writers Association conference, hosted by Northrup King — the seed people —, I had a chance to visit eight Twin Cities area community gardening projects, including those maintained by employes, park land users, apartment dwellers, a commercial group, and one that was university extension related. Leaf-hoppers were plentiful there, too, and in the process I picked up a few colorful bug specimens of various kinds for my collection.

And this reminds me that — if you want to send insects for identification (I'm accepting donations), please mail them in a discarded pill bottle. There's nothing worse than opening the mail and having to confront a squashed beetle, totally unrecognizable, over morning coffee.

Mrs. Betty Ade of Arlington Heights, writes: "We are having an awful time this summer with those small crawly things that curl up into a "stone" when touched. I am wondering how to get rid of them? We seem to have thousands in our backyard. We have four small boys and a dog who plays in the yard all the time and don't want to use harmful pesticides."

SOUNDS LIKE YOU have pillbugs, Mrs. Ade, or some call them sowbugs. Dark-gray, oval, flattened bodies, segmented, seven pair of legs up to an inch long, they roll up — familiar? You can discourage sowbugs by looking for and eliminating their hiding places, making certain that the garden area is cleaned of boards, logs, decaying matter, etc. because sowbugs like to settle in such places.

Import a toad or a turtle from the local stream to gobble up the ones you do have. Painted turtles are completing their spawning migrations now, so it is relatively easily to pass one on the road. If you go Sunday driving in the country, bring it home. Encourage a toad to stay in the yard by providing an inverted flower pot as a home, with a spot knocked out for a door. Set it under a dense bush for protection.

"I'M DESPERATE for your booklet on how to control insects," writes Susan Spengler, "and frantic to get the rabbits from eating my broccoli, beans, peas, tomato plants and even marigolds and petunias."

You've got some hungry bunnies there! Mrs. Spengler, try repelling them with dried blood (available at most nurseries in a five-pound bag). Wet foliage of the plants and sprinkle on the blood. Or try three ounces of epsom salts in a gallon of water and apply to your plants as a spray. Another idea is to spook them with pinwheels (the kind the kid's use as toys), or sprinkle plants under attack with cayenne pepper. After one sneeze, the rabbits get a snoutful and leave.

JEANNE SMITH of Buffalo Grove writes: "I am quite anxious to see the organic alternatives to chemicals in your new booklet, as we have praying mantis insects we wouldn't want to hurt."

Mary Ellen Zander: Thank you for requesting a copy of my bug booklet, "The Housewife's Guide to Fighting Insect Pests," but please send your address so I can get it to you.

Any readers who are interested in receiving a copy of the bug booklet, an 8-page guide for controlling over 90 garden pests with specific non-chemical weapons, may do so by sending me 35 cents and addressing your requests to "Bug Booklet," c/o Paddock Publications, 217 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60005. Please don't forget to include a stamped self-addressed envelope.

DAR regent at grave rites

The 140-year-old Harkness Grove Cemetery in Peoria County was the site July 6 of a dual grave marking ceremony sponsored by four chapters of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mrs. Charles B. Robison, 1639 Campbell Ave., Des Plaines, regent of Twenty-first Star Chapter, officiated, dedicating a plaque on the tombstone of her great-great-grandfather, James Harkness, a Revolutionary War soldier. Harkness, who died in 1836 at the age of 77, was the second burial in the cemetery. Also honored at the dual rites was the daughter of Harkness who died in 1837.

Mrs. Robison, through her great-great-grandmother, Elizabeth Edson Harkness, traces her ancestry to Francis Cooke, who came over on the Mayflower in 1620 and was the 17th signer of the Mayflower Compact of the Plymouth Colony in Massachusetts.

A reminder to brides

If wedding bells will soon be ringing in your family, we want to hear them, too.

Therefore, the Herald reminds brides-to-be of the deadlines in effect for reporting wedding news. Full information is printed on forms available in all the Herald offices.

The Herald reminds brides-to-be of the deadlines in effect for reporting wedding news. Full information is printed on forms available in all the Herald offices.

For detailed wedding story (including gown descriptions) information is due within three weeks following wedding date. Information received in Herald office after three weeks and up to five weeks following wedding date will be used for a brief story or caption.

Accompanying picture should be a black and white glossy close-up photo (bouquet and up) of bridal pair or bride alone. At the discretion of the editors and the Herald photo department, color photos may or may not be used, depending on color tones, contrast and clarity. Small snapshots are not acceptable.

We suggest the bride or some member of the family select a photo for the newspaper immediately upon receiving photographer's proof. Better yet — have the photographer make a selection and send it immediately to the Herald office. Any delay may mean missing the deadline.

If your photographer cannot comply with deadlines, write-up will be published without a photo providing information is in the Herald office before the deadline.

The bride who wishes her photo returned may pick it up at the Herald office at 217 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights, or send along a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

There is no charge for publishing this news.

Steal me. Burn me. Throw me away. I'm still yours.

Once you bring me home, I'm yours forever.
Even if I'm burned. Or lost. Or stolen.
If you look for me and can't find me, just report it. And you'll get me back, as good as new.
And remember: I'll never break your heart. Or leave you stranded in the tight spots.
I'll always be there when you need me.
And that ought to make you feel pretty secure.

How to avoid future shock.

Tomorrow won't take care of itself. And, deep down, you know that. So you'd better do something about your future money needs today.

There's a painless way. Simply start building your nest egg a little at a time. It's easy when you buy U.S. Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

You can save as little or as much as you want. Just specify the amount. And it'll be set aside from your paycheck and used to buy Bonds.

Then, when the future arrives, you'll be better fixed to face it. Because Bonds are the best shock absorber around.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4½% the first year). Bonds are replaced if lost, stolen or destroyed. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

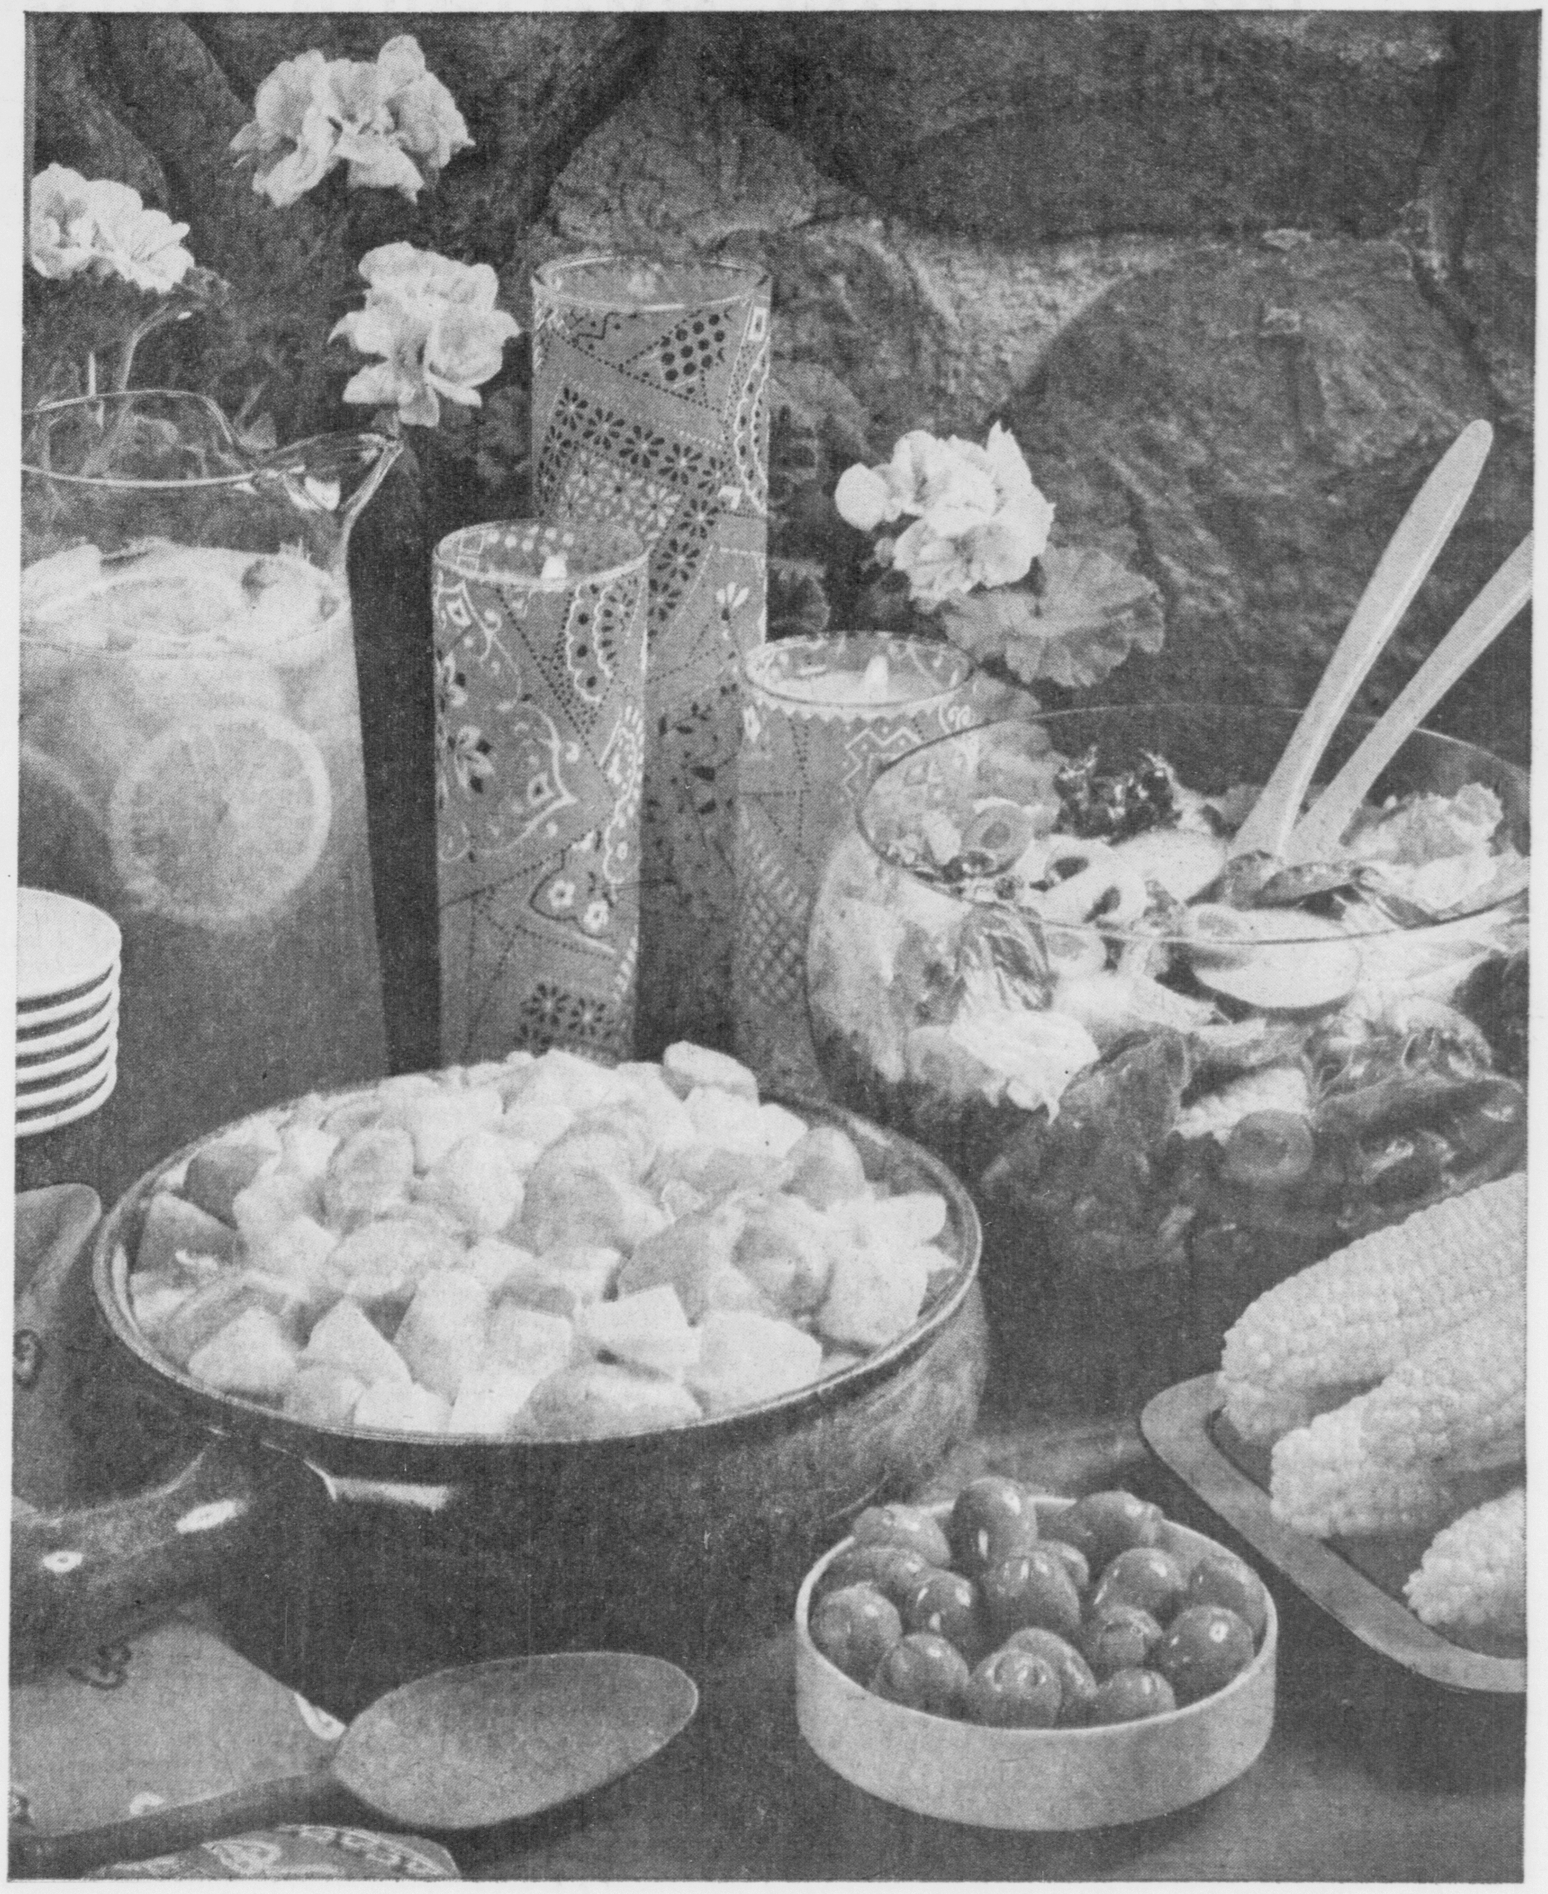
Easy Summer Living



The joys of summer are many . . . brilliant sunshine, towering trees offering their cooling shade, the relaxation of beach and pool parties, and the fun of porch or patio gatherings. This year, capture these joys often by planning savory meals that can be served outdoors. And if it's really true that "summertime and the livin' is easy . . . ," keep patio or picnic menus deliciously simple, yet simply delicious.

For openers, invite friends to a relaxing brunch on your patio. Start the occasion with "V-8" Spritzers, a refreshing combination of vegetable juice, club soda and Port. Then impress your guests with Calico Brunch Stack-Ups . . . toasted English muffins stacked with Canadian bacon, tomato slices and hard-cooked eggs, all topped with a sauce of stuffed olives, watercress and cream of chicken soup.

Serve plenty of summer's bountiful fresh fruit and tall glasses of milk or iced coffee as go-alongs.

If brunches don't fit your entertaining schedule, plan a sundown Saturday supper in your backyard. And, what says summer more that hot dogs, tossed salad, and roasted corn-on-the-cob . . . all-American favorites! Give the familiar hot dog a new twist — just brown along with cubed potatoes, chopped onion, and green pepper. Stir in a double-cheese sauce made with cheese soup, cream cheese, and ketchup for "Souper" Potato Dogs.

The accompanying Spanish Tossed Salad gets its lively flavor from sliced pimiento-stuffed olives, cucumbers and fresh mushrooms. And a zesty oil and vinegar combination makes the perfect dressing for this crunchy green salad.

Bring on the corn and iced tea for a real sundown showdown." For the grand finale, serve chocolate cake topped with vanilla ice cream.

Patio-perfect Brunch MENU

"V-8" Spritzer
Calico Brunch Stack-Ups
Fresh Fruit
Milk or Iced Coffee

"SOUPER" POTATO DOGS

- 6 cups cubed raw potatoes
- 1 cup diced green pepper
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1½ pounds frankfurters, diagonally sliced
- 1 can (11 ounces) condensed cheddar cheese soup
- 1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese, softened
- ½ cup water
- ¼ cup ketchup

In covered large heavy pan, cook potatoes, green pepper, and onion in 3 tablespoons butter until potatoes are just tender (about 20 minutes). Stir occasionally. Season with salt and pepper. Push potatoes to the side, add frankfurters and remaining 1 tablespoon butter, brown. In bowl, gradually blend soup into cream cheese until smooth; add water and ketchup. Stir into potato-frankfurter mixture. Heat; stir occasionally. Makes about 9 cups.

SPANISH TOSSED SALAD

- ½ cup olive oil
- 3 tablespoons wine vinegar
- 1 large clove garlic, minced
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 4 cups romaine torn in bite-size pieces
- 4 cups spinach torn in bite-size pieces
- 1 cup sliced cucumbers
- 1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
- 1 cup sliced pimiento-stuffed olives

Combine oil, vinegar, garlic, and pepper; toss with remaining ingredients. Makes about 11 cups.

"V-8" SPRITZERS

- 1 can (24 fl. oz.) "V-8" cocktail vegetable juice, chilled
- 1 bottle (10 fl. oz.) club soda, chilled
- 1 cup ruby Port, chilled
- Lime slices

Combine V-8 juice, soda, and Port. Serve over ice cubes if desired. Garnish with lime. Makes about 5 cups.

CALICO BRUNCH STACK-UPS

- 6 English muffins, split and toasted
- 12 slices (about 12 ounces) Canadian bacon, heated
- 12 slices tomato
- ¼ cup chopped watercress
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed cream of chicken soup
- ½ cup water
- ⅓ cup sliced pimiento-stuffed olives
- 6 hard-cooked eggs, sliced

Top muffins with bacon and tomatoes (keep warm in oven). Meanwhile, in saucepan, cook watercress in butter; add soup, water, and olives. Heat; stir occasionally. Arrange eggs on sandwiches; serve with sauce. Makes 6 servings; 12 open-face sandwiches.

Mrs. Jack Kurtz

by LOIS SEILER

A fresh vegetable and hearty salad are musts on the dinner menu at the Jack Kurtz household in Arlington Heights every night. Dixie Kurtz stresses nutritional foods but prepares them with finesse.

From the time she was married, Dixie has belonged to gourmet groups. Artistic by nature, she has a flair for flavor and likes interesting recipes as well as ethnic food.

During the summer months Dixie buys summar squash in quantity and prepares it in an appealing manner. She acquired the recipe for Indian Squash from a friend in her hometown of Nashville, but rather than Southern, the dish is East Indian in character. The squash is cooked and combined with onions, almonds, whipping cream and several spices including curry. Baked in a casserole, grated cheese is sprinkled over the top.

"Everyone loves it, yet no one can tell that it is squash," Dixie remarked. It is such a family favorite that her children, Kelle, 14, David, 12, and Walter, 9, helped her clean and cup up 30 pounds of this vegetable last summer. Dixie made dozens of containers of the Indian Squash for the freezer, then baked it on special occasions throughout the year.

Because this dish is rich, she suggests serving it with a plain meat such as flank steak, meat loaf or ham. Flank steak marinated in Teriyaki sauce is another of her summer specialties. To tenderize the steak, Dixie marinates it for 24 hours, and the meat acquires a savory flavor which she says is the best she ever tasted. Her husband Jack cooks the steak over gray coals five minutes on each side for medium, then slices it thin on the diagonal. Dixie boils the marinade for a few minutes and lets guests spoon it over their servings, if desired.

As an accompaniment for the steak and squash, she makes baked potatoes by splitting them in half, putting a dab of butter on each potato and sprinkling them heavily with seasoned salt and a little pepper. The cooking time is shorter, and the potatoes are so crispy and tasty that no additional butter or sour cream is necessary.

Another of this cook's favorites is a casserole which combines shrimp, rice, green pepper, onion, cream, sherry, tomato soup and several seasonings. It is baked in a casserole dish or individual sea shells with a sprinkling of almonds and paprika on top.

The recipe can easily be doubled or quadrupled, and Dixie has served it to a group of 35 for dinner. As an accompaniment she likes a fresh spinach salad, adding whatever she finds in the refrigerator, and a crispy French or sour dough bread.

Preferring simple desserts, Dixie says they often eat the centerpiece, an arrangement of fresh fruits. Or she serves frosted grapes with cheeses.

A Southern girl, Dixie made biscuits from scratch until a friend from Atlanta sent her an easy, yet effective recipe for what Dixie terms the lightest biscuits imaginable. She simply makes them according to the directions on a package of Bisquick, substituting beer for water. Rolled out ond cut with a glass or cookie cutter, they are dotted with butter before baking. The yeast in the beer makes the rolls rise quite high, but there is no beer flavor, she said.

"You can make them in minutes for breakfast," Dixie said, "and serve them with a ham and cheese or sausage and cheese souffle."

INDIAN SQUASH

6 to 8 yellow summer squash
1 large onion, chopped
½ stick margarine
½ cup whipping cream
½ cup almonds, blanched and slivered
Salt and pepper to taste
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon coriander
½ teaspoon curry
½ teaspoon turmeric
½ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon marjoram
½ teaspoon paprika
½ cup grated Velveeta cheese

Wash squash and cut off each end. Do not peel. Chop into cubes. Boil in a small amount of salted water until tender. Drain.

Saute onion in margarine. Add to squash along with whipping cream, almonds, seasonings and all spices except paprika. Turn into a greased casserole. Sprinkle paprika and a few almonds over the top. Bake, uncovered, for 25 minutes. The last ten minutes of baking time, sprinkle grated cheese over the top. Serves 6.

MARINATED FLANK STEAK

1 flank steak
1 cup salad oil
½ cup soy sauce
4 tablespoons white vinegar
6 tablespoons honey
3 teaspoons ground ginger
3 teaspoons garlic salt

Combine oil, soy sauce, vinegar, honey, ginger and garlic salt and mix in blender for five minutes. Pour over flank steak and marinate for 24 hours, turning occasionally. Cook on grill over gray coals five minutes on each side for medium. Slice thin on the diagonal. Serves 4 adults.

The marinade can be boiled for a few minutes and served as a sauce at the table.

SHRIMP CASSEROLE

2 pounds shirmp, cleaned and cooked
1 tablespoon lemon juice
3 tablespoons salad oil
¾ cup rice, cooked
2 tablespoons butter
¼ cup minced green pepper
¼ cup minced onion
1 cup whipping cream
1 cup undiluted tomato soup
3 tablespoons cream sherry
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1/8 teaspoon mace
Dash of cayenne
Dash of paprika
½ cup slivered almonds

Sprinkle lemon juice and salad oil over cooked shrimp and refrigerate. Refrigerate cooked rice separately.

Saute green pepper and onion in butter. Then combine all ingredients except half of the almonds and paprika and turn into a greased casserole. Sprinkle with remaining almonds and paprika.

Bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees for 30 minutes until bubbly. (Individual sea shells may be used, if desired.) Serves 4.

MRS. JACK KURTZ prepares summer squash in such an appealing way that few people even recognize it. The squash is cooked then combined with onions, almonds, whipping cream and several spices including curry.

Frank and Cheese Rollups

Breads take a grilling, bake with barbecue meal

A cook doesn't need to be "home on the range" for summertime meals when Dad can prepare his charcoal-grilled specialties on the patio instead. Those summer specialties can even include fresh homebaked bread, if you have a large kettle type barbecue grill with a lid. Or, for a weekend supper, try Frank and Cheese Rollups, frankfurters stuffed with cheese and enveloped in a thin layer of bread.

Both the bread and Frank and Cheese Rollups are easy to make on an outdoor grill if you use the new frozen bread doughs available at your supermarket. The frozen bread dough requires no mixing or kneading. Just thaw, let rise, and bake.

Here are instructions for baking bread over charcoal in a Weber-type kettle grill:

Place 2 loaves of frozen bread dough, lightly greased, into lightly greased 1-pound bread pans. Let the bread thaw and rise at room temperature until the dough has risen an inch or more above the top of the pan. Rising will take from 4 to 5 hours.

Prepare the kettle grill for cooking by the indirect method, following the instructions included with grills of this kind. When the coals are covered with gray ash, you are ready to bake.

Center the bread pans on the cooking grill. Cover the kettle and bake the bread for 35-40 minutes or until well browned. Remove the loaves from the pan and cool on wire racks.

FRANK AND CHEESE ROLLUPS

1 loaf enriched white frozen bread dough
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
¼ cup softened butter
1 pound frankfurters (10 franks)
10 thin strips cheddar cheese
1 tablespoon milk

Thaw bread dough and roll it out into a sheet about ¼ inch thick. Spread with softened butter. Cut the dough into strips about 4 inches by 7 inches.

Split the frankfurters almost through lengthwise and spread cut surfaces with mustard. Insert a strip of cheddar cheese in each. Overlap strips of buttered dough around franks and pinch ends together. Place in a lightly greased foil baking pan and let rise until dough has doubled in size. Brush with milk and prick with a fork.

Bake on a kettle grill by the indirect method 15-20 minutes, or until lightly browned. Makes 10 servings.

Oriental entree for extra savings

Oriental-style dishes are popular and provide acceptable ways to feed family and friends well without spending exorbitant amounts for the tasty ingredients. With beef more plentiful and, hopefully, at a lower price these summer months it is time to "wok-up" some new recipes. A California sweet 'n' sour beef is one that should please many people. Serve with rice or over noodles.

SWEET 'N' SOUR BEEF

2 pounds beef top round steak, cut 1½ inches thick
½ teaspoon monosodium glutamate
½ teaspoon garlic salt
1½ tablespoons oil
1½ cups water
1 tablespoon soy sauce
½ large green pepper
1 medium onion, quartered
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup catsup
1 (13½-ounce) can pineapple chunks
3 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch

Cut beef into 1¼-inch cubes. Sprinkle with monosodium glutamate and garlic salt. Brown in 1 tablespoon oil. Add water and soy sauce. Cover and simmer about 1½ hours, until tender. Cut green pepper into squares or strips. Stir fry onion and green pepper in remaining ½ tablespoon oil about 5 minutes. Add vinegar, catsup and undrained pineapple chunks. Stir in sugar mixed with cornstarch. Cook and stir until sauce boils and thickens. Add to undrained beef and heat together a minute. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings.

Doctor calls fatties irrational

by JEANNE LESEM

Weight-conscious people are irrational. They'll skip cream in their coffee but eat a whole pound of steak at one meal.

That's a bad trade-off, says Dr. Sami A. Hashim, head of nutrition and metabolic research at St. Luke's Hospital in New York.

"I'd rather see a man eat only half a pound of steak and have all the cream he wants in his coffee. Two tablespoons of light cream contain only 54 calories, but a pound of steak has about 1,000," Dr. Hashim said in an interview.

Hashim said in an interview.

His work focuses on atherosclerosis and obesity. He said he's not looking specifically for links betwen the two.

He is a strong believer in behavior modification that changes obese patients' eating patterns.

For starters, each fatty is asked to answer about 600 questions. He's asked not just what he ate and when, but what else was on the table.

The idea is to turn off appetites by keeping extra food out of sight.

The doctor said tests show an overweight person generally will not push to get food when he is deprived of it by an under-stocked refrigerator or pantry.

"To stop overeating and to exercise in our society is a hell of a problem," Dr. Hashim said.

"THERE'S HARDLY A magazine, a television commercial, or supermarket with 50,000 different varieties of food, that doesn't pressure us to eat.

"The overweight individual is influenced by these external pressures. The non-obese responds more to internal cues, to hunger."

Dr. Hashim's tips for homemakers who have to cope with a family overweight problem are based to some extent on personal experience. He took off 15 pounds by systematically monitoring his own intake, and keeping away from temptations. He said he eats beef only once a week or less, and fish at least six days a week.

He's given up lamb altogether, although it is the staple meat in the typical Lebanese household. He was born in Lebanon but brought to the United States in infancy.

He also stays away from Lebanese restaurants, but has retained his liking for humus and baba gannouj. The first is a protein-rich dip made with chick peas. The second is a dip made with low-calorie eggplant.

His advice for other people with weight problems includes:

If your spouse brings in food he or she shouldn't eat, start shopping together. This sometimes helps.

CLEAR FOOD FROM the table as soon as a meal is over.

Never put a whole loaf of bread on the table.

Don't leave snacks around. Studies show an obese person continues to feed himself when there is an abundance of food either in sight or in the refrigerator.

Serve drinks in opaque containers. Research shows most fatties drink much more from a clear glass than from one that hies the liquid.

Sweeten your coffee or tea with sugar (18 calories a teaspoon) if you like, but don't eat cake, a sweet roll or ice cream with it. Even two or three teaspoonfuls of sugar contain far fewer calories than the desserts.

Dr. Hashim also recommends gardening, especially if you plant low-calorie vegetables such as celery, zucchini squash and tomatoes. It's impossible to overeat vegetables, he said.

Cook on rainy days

When the weather's warm and skies are blue, nobody wants to spend all day in the kitchen. With a little planning, the homemaker can cook ahead on rainy days to save her time when the sun comes out.

Homemade pizzo makes a good summer supper, and it lends itself to cooking ahead. You bake the crusts in advance, freeze them, and add a filling when you want to serve pizza. If you use frozen bread dough to make the crusts, you don't spend any time at all on mixing and kneading.

Regardless of some reports food is no longer a bargain

by Fran Heckart

Food prices continue to be a source of irritation among American homemakers. At best, government reports indicate that supplies will be adequate. But when it comes to pinpointing retail price expectations those reports are of little value.

The same government reports, which come in assorted dozens, generally tell us that food prices are stabilizing. Still, the stabilization is at a 1.5 per cent increase above a year ago — a time when prices hit record highs.

The feeling of the food industry is that consumers are getting a bargain. Food in America is cheap, they maintain. Compared to food costs in Japan they have a point.

An editorial written by Fred Bailey Jr., "Successful Farmings" Washington correspondent, suggests that it's high time someone in agriculture, namely the farmers, begin leveling with consumers.

Food prices are too high, states the editorial. But more than that Bailey takes a closer look at who's responsible.

"Labor unions whose feather bedding and excessive wage demands have been a major factor in higher-cost food; a rail system that is often just slightly more efficient than a mule train; a maze of ridiculous laws and regulations by state and local governments; an almost total lack of uniformity in grades and standards; and a long list of other obstacles which stand in the way of consumers getting more for their food dollars," he writes.

Farmers, he says, continue to be a party to the big lie that everything's just dandy at the checkout counter. An Arlington Heights homemaker paying $1.50 for five pounds of sugar, realizes that things aren't so rosy either.

Bailey cites facts obtained from a National Commission on Productivity and other sources:

"Of the roughly $750 the average American will spend for food at and away from home this year, farmers will get only about $300. Fully half of the remainder — about $225 — will go to pay the tab for labor. During the past 10 years, labor costs in the food industry have soared a staggering 80 per cent, four times faster than productivity."

Substantial money could be saved by butchering meat into retail cuts at a packing plant but local butchers' unions won't allow it, writes Bailey. Costs could be cut if bread and milk could be stacked on grocery shelves by store clerks instead of by highly paid delivery truck drivers. Fish would be cheaper if they didn't have to be caught in boats built in union boatyards. And supermarket expenses could be reduced if retail clerks weren't so obstinately opposed to automated checkout counters, continues the editorial.

A simple item like an orange is handled 17 separate times from tree to table, Bailey contends.

"Federal, state and local regulations add unnecessary millions of dollars to the cost of food. A single change by a single state in the ingredients required to be listed on sausage labels added $75,000 a year to consumers costs. Absurdly confusing packaging and inspection requirements further boost grocery prices," states the editorial.

Bailey calls his list incomplete, but a start. Consumers should be aware of the facts before they start blaming the farmers, he surmises.

Meat prices reflected measurable increases this week, according to a price survey on Monday. Ground beef and bacon each increased 15 cents from a week ago, accounting for the greatest jumps. Pork chops and ocean perch fillets were up three cents in the same period. Whole broiler fryers, down three cents, accounted for the only decrease in the meat, fish, and poultry group.

With the exception of American processed cheese, down three cents, dairy products also showed increases. Butter, eggs and margarine rose one, two and three cents, respectively.

Fruits and vegetables remained close to stable with variations of no more than a two-cent increase in canned pears.

White bread declined three cents while grape jelly and salad oil rose one and two cents, respectively.

by Charles Flynn

In my last column I suggested that a way to beat the high cost of beef was to use recipes such as the Cantonese Moo Kow steak. Pork also is in the high priced category and today we'll give you an excellent Chinese dish which makes 1½ pounds of boneless pork go a long way.

Purchase that amount of pork, boned loin, fresh ham, or shoulder, and have it cut one-inch thick. Heat a wok or frying pan, add 1 tablespoon of oil and ½ teaspoon of salt. Brown pork slices on both sides until done. Before removing from pan sprinkle with 2 teaspoons cooking sherry.

Let pork cool, then cut into one-inch squares. While meat cools, cut a large fresh tomato into 8 wedges, slice 2 stalks celery, ½ cup onion, and 1 cup lettuce (head lettuce will be more crisp).

Mix ¼ cup catsup, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon sugar, ½ teaspoon monosodium glutamate. Separately mix 2 teaspoons cornstarch with 2 teaspoons water. Also have ready ½ cup chicken stock or bouillon.

Reheat wok or pan and add 2 tablespoons oil and 1 teaspoon salt. When pan is hot add celery, onion, and stock. Cover and cook 2 minutes. Add pork, then lettuce and tomato wedges and stir for 1 minute. Add cornstarch mixture and cook until thickened. Serve immediately to 4.

This is a colorful and flavorful dish. Accompany with bowls of rice alongside if you like.

DESSERTS SELDOM are served with Chinese dishes, but should you desire an authentic recipe for one which is popular as a sweet, try Almond Cookies.

Sift 3 cups flour with 1 teaspoon baking powder and ¼ teaspoon salt. Cream 1 cup shortening with 1½ cups sugar. Beat 1 egg, then add egg, ½ teaspoon vanilla extract and 1 teaspoon almond extract to creamed shortening.

Mix in the dry ingredients and knead dough until firm. Roll out on floured board until about ½ inch thick. Cut dough in round shapes with cookie cutter and decorate with whole blanched almonds. Place on greased cookie sheet and bake 25 minutes at 350 degrees. Makes 60 cookies.

Be sure to enjoy fresh sweet corn

Don't let the fresh vegetable season slip by this summer without getting your fill of sweet corn-on-the-cob. Since the days of the Pilgrims, corn-on-the-cob (boiled, steamed or roasted) has been a popular American favorite.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture says that fresh sweet corn is available practically every month of the year, but mid-September.

Look for ears that are well covered with bright, plump kernels. Husks should be fresh and green. Silk-ends should be free of decay or worm injury and stems should not be discolored or dried.

Avoid ears with under-developed kernels as well as very large over-mature kernels. Also avoid kernels with depressed areas on the outer surface. Avoid yellowed, wilted or dried husks and stems.

Modern commercial practice calls for prompt cooling of fresh corn after it's harvested, so today's corn-on-the-cob is better than ever. When you bring it home from the store, place it in the refrigerator without delay. Then cook and eat it as soon as possible — the sooner the better. If corn is held too long, or at too high a temperature, the sugar in the kernels begins to turn to starch.

This nutritious tuna pie teams flavor, imagination

A couple of cans of tuna go a long way and add lots of pleasure when you use them imaginatively with other wholesome foods — especially whole grain "stretchables" and vegetables.

Here's an example of a healthful dish, attractive and interesting enough for gourmets and gluttons alike. It's called Tuna Pie. It has a crisp, nut-like crust of brown rice, whole wheat flour, wheat germ and sunflower seeds and a filling of tuna, broccoli, carrots, celery, Swiss cheese, eggs and milk. You bake the crust first and while it's cooling, you put together the filling, beat the eggs and milk together and mix in all the other ingredients. Then the pie goes into the oven for about 1 hour, and when it emerges, you have a dish to be proud of!

TUNA PIE

Crust:

1 cup cooked brown rice
1 cup whole wheat flour
1/3 cup sunflower seeds
2 tablespoons wheat germ
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1/3 cup salad oil
1/3 cup milk

Mix cooked rice, flour, sunflower seeds, wheat germ, salt and pepper in a bowl. Stir in oil and milk. Roll out dough between two pieces of waxed paper to a 10-inch round. Remove top piece of waxed paper and turn pastry into a 9-inch pie plate. Remove second piece of waxed paper. Make rim on edge of crust. Bake in a 400 degree oven for 20 to 25 minutes, until lightly browned. Cool.

Filling:

1½ cups milk
2 cans (6½ or 7 ounces each) tuna
1 cup thawed frozen chopped broccoli
½ cup shredded Swiss cheese
½ cup chopped celery
1/3 cup chopped pared carrot
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper

Beat eggs with milk. Add tuna, broccoli, cheese, celery, carrot, salt and pepper; mix well. Turn into baked pie shell. Bake in 350 degree oven for 1 hour or until tip of knife inserted in center comes out clean. Let stand 10 minutes before serving. Yield: 6 servings.

Stewing beef in supply

The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) estimates that 25 per cent of a carcass of beef is processed into ground beef and stewing meat. USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) says now is a good time to buy stewing beef, and all other types too. AMS says beef output is expected to be up from last year while retail prices have been dropping since February, and more reductions are likely to continue.

Beef stew is a convenient one-dish dinner, containing meat, vegetables, and potatoes.

BEEF STEW

1½ teaspoons salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1½ lbs. boneless beef, cut into 1 inch cubes
2 tablespoons fat or oil
3¼ cups water
3 medium sliced onions
4 medium potatoes, cut into 1 inch cubes
5 medium carrots, quartered
1½ cups fresh or frozen peas

Combine flour, salt and pepper. Coat meat with mixture. Brown meat thoroughly in moderately hot fat in large fry pan or deep pot. Sprinkle remaining flour mixture over browned meat; stir. Add water and cover tightly. Simmer 2 to 3 hours, or until meat is tender. Add onions, potatoes and carrots. Simmer, covered, 15 minutes. Add peas and simmer again until vegetables are tender. Stir occasionally. (Serves six)

Here are additional tips: When browning meat cubes, don't crowd the pan. If the pan is small, brown only a part at a time. Also, don't let the mixture boil: This can cause undesirable changes in the meat texture. You can omit browning the meat if desired. Thicken with a flour paste made with cold water after vegetables are tender.

This is the basic recipe for beef stew, but it can be varied according to your tastes. You might want to add other vegetables like lima beans, celery, or green peppers. Another variation is to include two bay leaves and six cloves while cooking. Remember to remove them before serving.

Charcoal broil squash

Acorns and butternut squash, onions, potatoes, sweet and white and corn on the cob should be wrapped in aluminum foil for charcoal broiling.

Charcoal briquets are made by converting forest industry byproducts under very high heat. They are then pulverized, mixed with other ingredients to improve quality, pressed hydraulically into pillow shapes, dried and packaged.

To get more heat from burning briquets, tap them gently to remove the gray ash.

Never leave an electric charcoal starter on briquets more than eight minutes or you risk burning out the element.

When you choose a grill for use on balconies or terraces, make it a heavy one, such as the hibachi type, that isn't easily tipped over.

Economical vegetable entrees

Nourishing fillings for peppers

Sweet, mild green peppers are one of the most appealing vegetables the market, with their vivid color and shiny, firm skin. Often called bell peppers because of their shape, sweet peppers are available all year round, but supplies are heaviest June through October. Store them in a cool, humid place and use within a few days afyer purchase.
within a few days after purchase.

There are many ways to use peppers in everyday menus. Dice them raw in salad and sandwich fillings. Add them to stews and meat loaves for color and flavor.

Green peppers stuffed with corn beef hash, minced ham, or a chicken mixture make tasty, economical entrees.

It's easy to prepare peppers for stuffing: just cut a slice from the stem end, remove the seeds and parboil for five minutes to make them a little tender. While they're draining, assemble one of these delicious and nourishing mixtures: Potato-and-Cheese, Sausage-and-Tomato, or Eggplant-and-Tuna.

POTATO-AND-CHEESE-STUFFED GREEN PEPPERS

- 6 green peppers
- Boiling water
- 1½ teaspoons salt, divided
- 4 slices bacon
- 3 tablespoons finely chopped fresh onion
- ¼ teaspoon finely chopped fresh garlic
- 3 cups diced cooked potatoes
- 1 cup diced Cheddar cheese
- ½ cup chopped celery
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ½ cup soft bread crumbs

Wash green peppers. Cut a thin slice from the stem end of each and remove seeds. Place peppers in a saucepan with boiling water to cover and 1 teaspoon of the salt. Cover. Bring to boiling point and boil 5 minutes. Remove from water and invert to drain well. Cook bacon until lightly browned; drain and crumble reserving fat. Cook onion and garlic in 2 tablespoons of the bacon fat 3 to 4 minutes or until tender. Add potatoes, cheese, celery, crumbled bacon, remaining ½ teaspoon salt and pepper. Mix well and spoon into peppers. Mix bread crumbs and 1 tablespoon bacon drippings. Sprinkle over the tops of peppers. Place in casserole. Cover and bake in 350 degree oven 30 minutes. Remove cover and bake 10 minutes longer to brown crumbs. Makes: 6 servings

SAUSAGE-AND-TOMATO STUFFED GREEN PEPPERS

- 4 green peppers
- Boiling water
- 1½ teaspoons salt, divided
- 1½ cups cubed firm-textured bread
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 pound sausage meat
- 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
- 1 large egg, slightly beaten
- ½ cup chopped peeled fresh tomato

Wash green peppers. Cut a thin slice from the stem ends of each and remove seeds. Place peppers in a saucepan with boiling water to cover and 1 teaspoon of the salt. Cover. Bring to boiling point and boil 5 minutes. Remove from water and invert to drain well. Lightly brown bread cubes in butter or margarine in a skillet; remove and reserve. Crumble sausage in skillet and cook until brown. Drain off and discard fat. Add bread cubes, onion, egg, tomato and remaining ½ teaspoon salt. Mix well and spoon into drained peppers. Place peppers in a casserole. Cover and bake in 350 degree oven 20 minutes. Remove cover and bake 10 minutes longer. Makes: 4 servings.

EGGPLANT-AND-TUNA-STUFFED PEPPERS ITALIAN STYLE

- 1 medium eggplant
- 6 tablespoons olive or salad oil, divided
- 1 cup fine dry bread crumbs
- 2 tablespoons capers
- 2 cans (6½ or 7 ounces each) tuna, drained
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- ¼ cup chopped fresh parsley
- 1/8 teaspoon minced fresh garlic
- 6 large green peppers

Wash eggplant and cut, unpared, into 1-inch cubes. Cook in 4 tablespoons olive oil in skillet until almost tender (cook over low heat to prevent browning). Add bread crumbs and capers. (If capers are salted, rinse them in cold water.) Flake tuna and add along with next 5 ingredients. Mix lightly but well. Cut out stems and remove seeds of peppers. (Do not cut off tops). Fill with the mixture. Place in an oiled baking pan. Pour remaining 2 tablespoons olive oil over the top. Bake in a preheated moderate oven 350 degrees 1 hour or until peppers are tender.

Yield: 6 stuffed peppers.

Potato-and-Cheese Stuffed Green Peppers

This chowder stretches the catch

Here are two new recipes that will make you a clever camper who can make the most out of the least or substitute completely and quickly in case the fish just aren't biting.

Stretch-a-Catch Chowder needs only a pound of fresh caught fish to create a hearty main dish. You simply stretch your catch with canned tuna or shrimp then add extra heartiness with instant mashed potato granules.

When the fish just aren't biting, Foiled Pork Chops are the perfect way to bait those campside appetites. Two convenience products, both easy to use and easy to take along, lend a special taste treat to the chops. Just stir together the contents of one envelope of brown gravy mix and some of your favorite bottled salad dressing. Since you cook the chops in individual wrappings of foil, there are no pans needed. Crackers or bread, fresh fruit and coffee, milk or tea round out your menu.

Both meals will provide your family with servings from each of the four food groups needed daily for good nutrition.

Stretch-A-Catch Chowder

STRETCH-A-CATCH CHOWDER

- 3 cups clam juice or water
- 1 can (13-oz.) evaporated milk
- ¼ cup minced onion
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1 envelope (5-servings) instant mashed potato granules
- 1 pound fish fillets, cut in chunks
- 1 can (7-oz.) tuna or 1 can (4½-oz.) shrimp, drained

Combine clam juice, milk, onion, salt, and pepper in large pan; bring to a boil. Stir in potato granules with a fork or whisk, stirring until smooth. Add fish and tuna; simmer 5 to 10 minutes, until fish flakes easily when pierced with a fork. 6 to 8 servings.

FOILED PORK CHOPS

- 4 to 6 pork shoulder chops
- 1 envelope (1-oz.) brown gravy mix
- ½ cup water
- ¼ cup bottled salad dressing (any flavor)
- Sliced dill pickles, sliced raw carrots or sliced onions

Place each pork chop on a 10-inch square of heavy-duty aluminum foil. Stir together contents of gravy mix envelope, water, and salad dressing. Place a spoonful on each chop and top with a few slices of pickle, carrot, or onion. Wrap tightly. Grill about 4 inches over hot coals 30 to 40 minutes, turning frequently, until tender and well cooked. 4 to 6 servings.

This quicky dessert is not for dieters

Soothe those aching sweet teeth with a quicky dessert of peanut maple mousse. This one is not for sincere dieters. Make it ahead and keep chilled until ready to serve.

PEANUT MAPLE MOUSSE

- 2 egg whites (at room temperature)
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
- ¼ teaspoon imitation maple flavor
- 1 cup heavy cream, whipped
- ½ cup finely chopped cocktail peanuts

Beat egg whites with salt until foamy. Gradually add brown sugar, beating until mixture is glossy and holds a peak. Beat in maple flavor. Fold in whipped cream and cocktail peanuts. Spoon mixture into individual serving dishes. Chill at least one hour before serving. If desired, garnish each serving with a dollop of whipped cream topped with finely chopped peanuts. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Chef's salad makes hot menu item

There are many types of lettuce on the market, but the most popular one is the solid-headed variety generally called iceberg. Good quality iceberg should be clean, crisp, tender, with a head heavy for its size. If two heads look similar in size, weigh one in each hand; the heavier one is the better buy.

Wash greens promptly when you bring them home from market. Cut out the core of iceberg lettuce and let cold water run down between the leaves. Wrap in paper towles and place in a plastic bag or airtight container, and store in refrigerator. Greens should stay crisp for over a week if they are kept cold and moist. Greens should never be cut; it bruises and discolors the leaves. Tear the leaves with your fingers into the size pieces needed.

Chef's Salad is one of the most popular items on many restaurant menus; it's generally always served chilled. This recipe for Skillet Chef's Salad is quite original and different — it's served hot. The trick here is to have all the ingredients ready — lettuce leaves, salami, cheese, cucumber, celery, tomatoes and eggs — so they can be tossed quickly in the spicy cooked dressing. Thus you have a warm yet crisp salad with delightful flavor and texture.

"Lettuce" probably reached the English language through the Old French "laitues," plural of the adjective "laitue" meaning "milky," used in referring to the plant known then because of its heavy milky juice. Fresh Bisque Laitue is a heavenly soup with French overtones. It's very simply made with ingredients you may already have right now in your kitchen: iceberg lettuce, scallions, parsley, condensed beef broth, light cream, and spices. The result is a thin cream soup of great delicacy that may be served warm or cold. What a delightful surprise for your next dinner guests!

SKILLET CHEF'S SALAD

- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ¼ cup chopped fresh onion
- ½ clove garlic, minced
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon prepared mustard
- 1 cup water
- 1/3 cup cider vinegar
- 6 cups torn iceberg lettuce leaves
- ¼ pound salami, cut in strips
- ¼ pound Swiss cheese, cut in chunks
- 1 cucumber, sliced
- 2 ribs celery, cut in diagonal slices
- 2 tomatoes, cut in wedges
- 2 hard-cooked eggs, cut in quarters

In large skillet melt butter. Add onion and garlic and cook until tender. Blend in flour salt, sugar, mustard, water and vinegar. Stir constantly until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Add remaining ingredients, heat 2 minutes, toss to mix lightly and serve.

Makes: 6 to 8 servings.

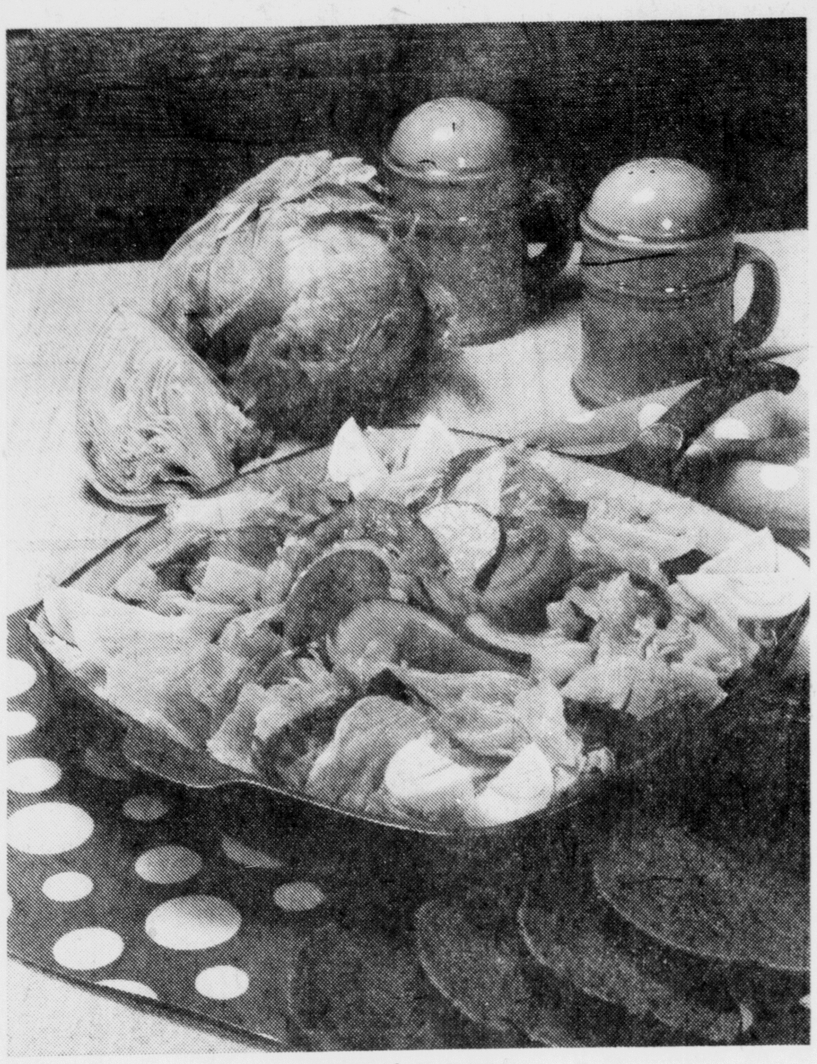
FRESH BISQUE LAITUE

- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ½ cup chopped scallions
- ¼ cup chopped parsley
- 1 can (10½ ounces) condensed beef broth
- 1 cup water
- 7 cups torn iceberg lettuce leaves (1 head)
- 1 cup light cream
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- ½ teaspoon dried leaf tarragon

In large saucepan melt butter; add scallions and parsley. Cook over medium heat until scallions are tender. Stir in undiluted beef broth, water and lettuce leaves. Cover and simmer 25 minutes. Puree in electric blender or food mill. Return to saucepan; stir in cream, salt, pepper and tarragon. Serve hot, or chill and serve cold. Makes: 6 cups.

GERMAN-STYLE WILTED LETTUCE

- 6 cups iceberg lettuce torn into bite-size pieces
- 2 hard-cooked eggs, diced
- 1/3 cup chopped fresh onion
- 4 slices bacon
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 3 tablespoons cider vinegar



Skillet Chef's Salad

Wash lettuce, drain well, dry and tear into bite-size pieces. Place in a salad bowl. Sprinkle with hard-cooked egg and onion. Set aside. Cook bacon until lightly browned; remove and drain, then crumble over lettuce. Cool fat slightly, add sugar, salt and vinegar. Heat to boiling and pour over lettuce. Toss lightly. Serve immediately. Make: 6 servings.

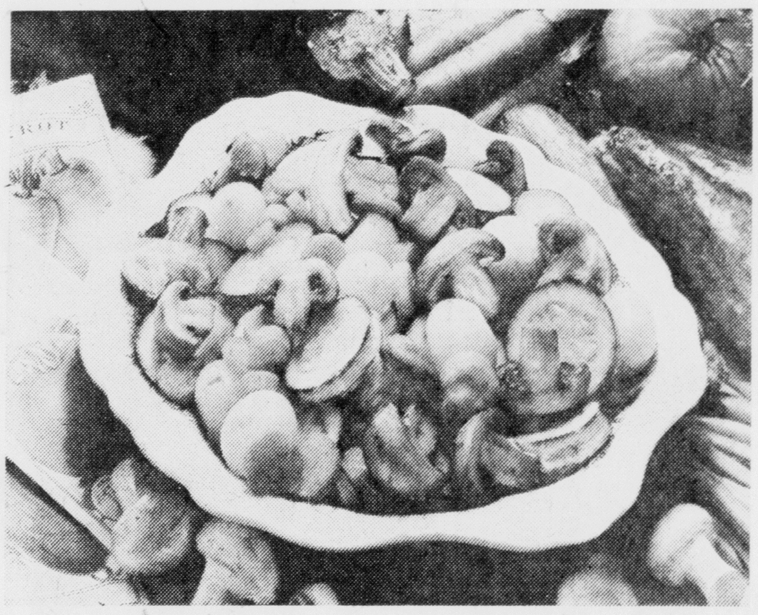
Team fresh vegetables, mushrooms

One way of adding variety to garden-fresh vegetables is combining them with mushrooms. Green beans, peas, stewed tomatoes or braised cabbage can be teamed with sauteed mushrooms. Simply rinse the mushrooms briefly in clear water, pat dry, slice and saute them in hot butter or margarine before stirring into the vegetables.

Raw mushrooms can be added to tossed green salads, spinach salad, tomato and onion rings, zucchini or cucumber slices. Because of their porous texture, mushrooms tend to blot up dressing, distributing its aroma throughout the salad. For additional flavor marinate the mushroom slices in salad dressing for an hour before adding to other ingredients.

MUSHROOMS WITH GARDEN STEAMED VEGETABLES

- 1 pound fresh mushrooms or 2 cans (6 to 8 oz. each) whole mushrooms
- 6 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon marjoram leaves, crumbled
- 1/8 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
- 1 cup thinly sliced baby carrots
- 8 tiny white onions
- 2 cups sliced zucchini



Mushrooms with Garden Steamed Vegetables

Rinse, pat dry and halve fresh mushrooms or drain canned mushrooms. In a large skillet melt butter. Add mushrooms, salt, marjoram and black pepper; saute for 5 minutes; stir in lemon juice. To steam remaining vegetables, place carrots and onions in top portion of steaming pot over boiling water or, in steaming basket or wire rack over (not in) boiling water. Cover and steam for 5 minutes. Add zucchini; cover and steam 5 minutes longer or until vegetables are tender. Gently stir vegetables into mushrooms. Heat until hot. Yield: 6 to 8 portions.

HOT MUSHROOM AND CABBAGE SALAD

- 1 pound fresh mushrooms or 2 cans (6 to 8 oz. each) sliced mushrooms
- 6 slices bacon
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ½ cup minced onion
- 4 cups shredded cabbage
- ¼ cup water
- 2 tablespoons white vinegar
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon dill seed
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper

Rinse, pat dry and slice fresh mushrooms or drain canned mushrooms; set aside. In a large skillet saute bacon until crisp; drain on paper towels; crumble and set aside. Drain off all but 2 tablespoons of the bacon fat from skillet. Add butter and melt. Add onion and reserved mushrooms; saute for 5 minutes. Add cabbage, water, winegar, sugar, salt, dill and black pepper. Bring to boiling point. Reduce heat; cover and simmer for 7 minutes or until cabbage is crisp-tender. Sprinkle with reserved bacon. Yield: 6 to 8 portions.

Bake all at once

Looking for ways to keep your cool when the weather is hot? If you're a homemaker you have to bake even in summer, so try to do all your baking at once. Then you won't have to heat the oven — and your kitchen — repeatedly.

If you're planning a casserole or a roast for dinner, for example plan to bake a loaf or two of bread at the same time. The new frozen doughs will help you keep cool because you don't have to mix it or knead it.

Just remove it from the freezer in the morning; grease it lightly and put it into a greased bread pan, and let it rise according to package directions.

When your casserole is ready to go into the oven, your bread will be ready, too. Serve one loaf with dinner; an extra loaf can go into the freezer until the next time you want to treat your family with fresh home-baked bread.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Polanski's 'Chinatown' a sweet 'n' sour dish

by DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — There was a fabulous turnout of stars for the screening of Roman Polanski's latest film, "Chinatown," costarring Jack Nicholson and Faye Dunaway. It's an interesting movie, although slow at the beginning, but it should do well.

Among those present for the screening and party: Raquel Welch, Kirk Douglas, Goldie Hawn, David Janssen, Cher, Mike Nichols, Diana Ross, Jill St. John, Cass Elliott, Bruce Dern and the movie's stars. Miss St. John stole the show in something tight, black and lacy.

This is a private-eye story whose title is its first mystery. It is somewhat misleading (Chinatown plays only a small part in "Chinatown"). Despite this discrepancy, Paramount still elected to have an Oriental motif for the post-screening party. Bartenders and waiters were in Chinese costumes and the menu featured such goodies as Thien-Suan-Ku-Lao-Jou and Feng-Wei-Lsia — that's sweet and sour pork and deep fried shrimp, in case you've forgotten your Chinese.

BRUCE DERN said he found the film too violent. Since he's abandoned his career as a heavy, he's turned full circle and is now anti-violence.

We talked about "The Great Gatsby." He said he felt the reviewers reviewed the film's publicity campaign and not the picture itself. He says that it's doing fabulously well in London and well enough all around the world so that it will eventually return a profit.

"We'll get our deferred salaries," he said, "but just barely."

Frank Sinatra continues his comeback, or whatever you want to call it. He's going to tour Japan for the first time. His recent tour of eastern states raised some $200,000 for Variety Clubs International. They returned $55,000 to Frank for his own favorite charity. (If you're interested, that's a medical education center in Palm Desert, which he established and named for his father.)

Director Billy Wilder says the new freedom in moviemaking is "helpful — if you use it with discretion. The problem is that too many directors exaggerate it."

One area where women have not yet crashed through the sex barrier is in record producing. And Bobbie Gentry wonders why not.

She says she often produces her own — beginning with "Ode to Billie Jo" — but has never taken or received credit for that aspect of her work. She does her own arranging, too. But, she says, as far as she knows there isn't a single girl (or even a married one) working as a record producer.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

JACK NICHOLSON

MRS. RESSIE FIX, who as a child always wanted to be on the stage, has launched a career as a TV commercial actress at age 81. Her roles are not those of the stereotyped grandmother.

81-year-old widow scraps retirement for actress' life

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD — Ress Fix, a white-haired 81-year-old widow, planned to live out her days on a small pension in Indianapolis. Instead she has a bright new career making television commercials.

Despite white hair and clear hazel eyes, Mrs. Fix is not the sweet-faced fluttery grandmother of movie stereotypes. She is poised, dignified and lives by the solid tenets of Midwest mores and her strict Methodist upbringing.

Since coming to Hollywood in 1969 she has appeared in a score of commercials from beer and automobile blurbs to riding a motorcycle and she models as well for magazine advertising.

"I ALWAYS WANTED to be on the stage as a girl," Mrs. Fix said during an interview in her small, neat apartment, a trace of Indiana twang in her voice.

"But my father was a strict Methodist and thought acting was sinful.

"But father relented when I attended DePauw University. He allowed me to appear in the school plays. In those days it was a strict Methodist school with no card playing or dancing allowed.

"Of course it never occurred to the students to smoke or drink. And the plays were all very traditional and correct."

Although she fell in love with Julian Fix in college, Mrs. Fix took off the summer of 1916 as a single girl to tour the Central Community Chautauqua circuit with two other DePauw graduates in an act they called, not too originally, "Two Hits and a Miss."

In the fall the Fixes were married. They eventually moved to Indianapolis where Fix worked for the telephone company and she taught English, speech and drama for 32 years at Arsenal Technical High School.

"All those years I was a frustrated actress," Mrs. Fix said. "But I kept up with the students. Dealing with them every day never allowed me to think old."

Mrs. Fix has a son, Jay, who is now known as Jay Stewart, the announcer on television's "Let's Make a Deal."

"Jay fulfilled my ambitions," Mrs. Fix said, laughing. "And occasionally my husband would appear with the Indianapolis Civic Theater. I even worked in one play with him, 'The Royal Family.'"

IN 1941 Julian Fix died. Mrs. Fix retired in 1959 but continued on as a substitute teacher at Arsenal Tech earning $22 a day.

"In 1969 I became ill," Mrs. Fix said. "It was a matter of living out my days in Indianapolis or coming west to see my son, Jay. He rented this apartment for me and I guess I could have continued to draw my pension and scrape along on Social Security."

Instead, she dusted off her performing ambitions. Her first job three years ago was for a national hamburger chain, followed by a supermarket commercial. There have been jobs for cigarets, a salad dressing, a brand of coffee and cameras, among others.

She has a strange affinity for motorcycles, having done three such blurbs, for Honda, Kawasaki and another motorbike featured in a beer ad.

"Commercials have provided me with a wonderful income," Mrs. Fix said. "I earned more when I was 80 years old than in any other year in my life. It's certainly more than my $22-a-day substitute teaching. And when I'm not working I collect unemployment compensation to boot.

"My motivation has been Jay. I want him to be proud of me. I enjoy it all. Working keeps me independent. I don't have to ask Jay for anything. He lives around the corner and we manage to spend a great deal of time together. And I have two married granddaughters I see from time to time."

HER SOCIAL LIFE is more active than it ever was in Indiana. Mrs. Fix attends the Methodist Church each Sunday. She is a member of the Motion Picture Mother's Club for mothers of famous performers, the Screen Smart Set, the National League of American Pen Women, and Delta Kappa Gamma national teachers' honorary society, along with the Friday Morning Club which, logically, meets every Friday morning.

"These organizations develop a person," Mrs. Fix said.

Last year Jay secretly entered a photograph of his mother in the Southern California Senior Citizen Beauty Contest. In all there were 500 applicants. Mrs. Fix was among the 25 finalists and has the cup to prove it.

A what-not shelf also holds the Woman of Achievement Award from the Hollywood branch of the National League of American Pen Women, which she won for some of the local radio scripts she wrote over the years.

"I haven't lost touch with my friends in Indianapolis," Mrs. Fix said. "I talk to them on the telephone and we exchange letters. They are very proud of my success out here.

"But I love California now. I have a grave beside my husband's in Indiana, but I don't even want to be put under the cold sod back there."

'Get Smart' girl Barbara Feldon gives up homelife for a boat

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD — Barbara Feldon, the star of "Dean Martin's Comedyworld" and sexy spy in the "Get Smart" series, enjoys a distinctive life style of constant change and variety.

A divorcee, Barbara makes her home on a 42-foot power cruiser, Cioppino, docked at Marina Del Rey.

She bought the cruiser a year and a half ago but has become a permanent resident only in the past nine months.

BARBARA EXPLAINS her domicile this way: "I bought the boat for weekends. But after the first weekend I decided I'd rather live here than in my house."

She still owns a seven-room dwelling in Hollywood, complete with fruit trees, reflecting pond and colorful garden.

But she prefers the boat and the continuing change in panorama — other boats gliding by, the tides, the gulls and small fish that dart around her floating home.

The boat itself is comfortably furnished. There is a full galley but the head has a shower only. No tub.

There is a large stateroom aft with a double bed. The central cabin is spacious, all things considered, and the boat can sleep seven persons, more or less comfortably.

Barbara frequently entertains for dinner on the Cioppino but only one couple at a time to avoid giving her guests claustrophobia.

Her favorite dishes are her own version of sukiyaki (chicken, onions, garlic, soy sauce, scallions, noodles, shrimp and bean curd) cooked in a wok, and smorgasbord.

INDEED, BARBARA said she leads a smorgasbord life, tasting this and that, traveling, meeting new people, seeing new places.

Since her divorce she has been the steady companion of producer Bert Nodello who is no stranger to the Cioppino. Barbara's other faithful companion is her pet cat of 13 years, a Siamese who answers to Yang.

Barbara hasn't seen her co-star, Don Adams, in the defunct "Get Smart" series since the show was cancelled. They live in different worlds and never did have anything in common except the series.

BARBARA FELDON, star of "Dean Martin's Comedyworld," makes her home on a 42-foot power cruiser. She originally bought the boat for weekends, but quickly decided to move in fulltime.

Although she is five-feet-nine and weighs only 114 pounds, Barbara is a diet gal. She counts every calorie, even shunning beef and pork in favor of fish and chicken.

Barbara has a first rate mind and attends night classes in painting and drawing at UCLA.

Her Hollywood house displays much of her work as well as the canvases of her friends. It is a Spanish design with polished wood floors providing a rich border for her Persian rugs.

She kept a pondful of fish in the yard until the local racoons discovered the edible prospects and soon devoured them all.

Barbara, however, is fascinated by fish and is installing a powerful spotlight at the bow of her boat to attract fish at night so that she can watch them in their natural habitat.

ABOARD THE Cioppino (actually the Italian name for a fish stew) Barbara wears blue jeans, a blouse and boat shoes. She has a small wardrobe — there isn't too much closet space on board — mostly pants, sweaters, shirts and blouses.

"Get Smart" has given her financial independence, making it possible for her to work at comfortable intervals. She appears on game shows and television specials — enjoying the travel to New York.
